Maine Day Set For May 15

Students Requested To Sign Up For Work

Maine Day is back! At a joint meeting of the General Student Senate last Tuesday it was unanimously voted to renew the traditional campus "spring house-cleaning" day with Maine Day set for May 15 this year.

A faculty-student committee comprised of Prof. Maurice D. Jones, chairman, Philip J. Brockway, J. Carroll Demsey, Prof. Roger Clapp, Dean Edith G. Wilson, Dick Pierce, Frances Donovan, Wentworth Schofield, and Bud Leonard has drawn up plans for two "work periods." Students will be requested to volunteer to work either in the morning from 8:30 to 11:30 or in the afternoon from 1:00 to 4:00. Off-campus students may sign up for work with members of the committee. Some entertainment program may be planned for Saturday night.

Alpha Gamma Rho Damaged By Fire Last Saturday

Fire from an undetermined cause starting near the chimney destroyed the ram pasture of the Alpha Gamma Rho house Saturday afternoon at about five o'clock, and water damaged other parts of the house. The Orono fire department quickly averted another disaster by preventing the flames from spreading to the lower rooms.

Seven students had residence there, three of whom were in the house at the time of the fire. Men from nearby fraternity houses warned the three of the fire and attempted to go to the third floor, but the flames had made too great a headway. Loss was decreased by the active assistance of the Phi Mu and students from other fraternities in getting belongings and water out of the house. Only three windows were broken, and sleeping accommodations, beds and bedding, and stored luggage were lost.

The Alpha Gamma Rho house, a former faculty home, was adequately insured, and the personal belongings of the members were also insured. Plans are being considered by the Alumni group which controls the property for making repairs since in a case like this a priority can be had.

Three of the house members are staying at a private home at 120 Oak Street, three at Phi Mu Delta, and one at Lambda Chi Alpha. The furnishings are being stored.

Ruth Draper, Monologist To Give Benefit Performance

Miss Ruth Draper, internationally famous actress and monologist, will present a benefit performance of original monologues at the University on Thursday, May 6, in the Women's Gymnasium in Alumni Hall at 8:00 p.m. Admission will be 50¢ each, 25¢ for students of the University.

Miss Draper, who is returning from a tour of Canada, will give several performances in Maine. She will appear before the soldiers of Dow Field, Bangor, the Presque Isle Air Base, and the Houlton Air Base as well as at the University.

Appearing professionally as a monologist first in 1911, Miss Draper has toured the world with her performances, appearing in Asia, South Africa, Europe, South America, Australia, and New Zealand. In 1918 she spent seven months giving performances at AEF camps in France. In 1928-29 she appeared for eighteen consecutive weeks at the Comedy Theatre, New York City. She is famous for her superb characterizations and is considered among the world's leading performers in the difficult art of monologue acting.

AWARDED DEGREE HERE

Miss Draper's repertoire includes 36 monologues with a cast of 57 characters. Her performances run the gamut from high comedy to deep human tragedy with an intense feeling for human nature and realistic inter-

Leads Well Taken But Performance Irregular In Maine Masque's Presentation Of 'Claudia'

By Freda Flanders

Able performances by the leads but irregularity in the quality of some parts of the production characterized the Maine Masque Theatre's presentation of "Claudia" this week, the final offering of the current season.

"Claudia"—Trivial with Overtones of Life—requires only a willing ear on the part of the audience, but great subtlety and skill from the players. This is first of all an actress's play, and rests chiefly on the ability of Claudia herself to carry it along. Of primary interest is the development of Claudia's character from a naive and irresponsible young child-wife to a mature woman who can understand and accept what joys and sorrows life has to offer. The story is lightly told and must be deftly handled to keep from becoming forced or ponderous.

FIRST ACT LACKING

The first act was mediocre and lacked spontaneity. The lines were too studied, and the scenes on the whole were not convincing. Because of the very nature and function of the first act, that is, introductory and descriptive, its progress needed to be swift and brilliant to support the somewhat inconsequential dialogue. Unfortunately it was neither.

The second act hit the pace with zest. The lines were read nimbly and effortlessly, and each character made the most of the situation. While she was there, the stage belonged to Madame Daruschka (Gwen Cushing), who set the mood for the scene. For gusty dialogue and sly innuendo given with unrestrained verve, this was the highlight and was the most enthusiastically received by the audience.

The tenseness and sudden shifts of mood in the last act were the greatest challenge to the actor's ability, calling for restraint to prevent the play from bogging down in sentimentality and bathos. Here Claudia was at her best and most convincing.

Dayson DeCourcy gave his usual good performance, as David, Claudia's long-suffering husband, sustained and finished throughout. Claudia herself (Ruth Higgins), while getting off to a poor start in the first act, found herself in the second, and from then on showed progressively greater insight and grasp of the role.

The part of the Englishman was uncomfortable and difficult, and Ed Falardeau seemed slightly ill at ease in a mustache and British accent. Jane Harley as Mrs. Brown did not quite realize all the possibilities of the role. A review would not be complete without a word about Pauline Forbes' portrayal of Bertha, a performance which was sympathetic and commendable.

pretation. She writes her own sketches.

In recognition of her ability she was awarded, in 1941, the honorary degree of Doctor of Fine Arts by the University.

The proceeds of Miss Draper's benefit performance will go to the University Emergency Service Committee to be used in war relief. Tickets will be sold only to the capacity of the hall and will be on advance sale in the Bookstore. Although she ordinarily receives a large fee for her performances, Miss Draper generously offered to contribute her services without cost providing the University would charge nominal admission and make all proceeds available to war relief.

The annual Spring Retreat of the Maine Christian Association will be held Sunday, May 2, during the afternoon and evening. The meeting is open to cabinet officers and all members of the association.

The group will leave the MCA building at 2:30 to go to the camp site on the Stillwater River. Reports of the year's work and a discussion of plans for the summer and fall terms will comprise the business of the meeting.

Those wishing to attend should make reservations at the MCA building by noon, April 30.

E. B. Whites Guests Of English Club

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. White, well-known authors, were guests at a meeting of the Contributors' Club, Sunday, April 25, in the Balentine sun parlor. Following the business meeting, which was presided over by Margaret Heaton, president pro tem, the program consisted of the reading of original short stories by student members of the club. Frances Ann Sheehy read "Story Without End," Hughene Phillips read "Memory Trace," and Frances Higgins read "Downhill Race." The reading was followed by a general discussion of short story and editorial writing in which Mr. and Mrs. White took part.

Faculty members and their wives present at the meeting were Dr. and Mrs. Milton Ellis, Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Flewelling, Dr. and Mrs. Albert M. Turner, Mrs. Mary Crandon, Prof. Cecil J. Reynolds, and Prof. Walter Whitney.

Students attending the meeting were Anne Ring, Margaret Heaton, Priscilla Loring, Hughene Phillips, Frances Ann Sheehy, and Frances Higgins. E. B. White is a prominent figure in the literary field as the editor of "One Man's Meat" in Harpers. He is a frequent contributor to the New Yorker which he helped to start. One of his best known short stories is "They Watched Their flocks by Night." His most recent book is the "Sub-treasury of American Humor." Mrs. White is a member of the New Yorker's editorial staff.

Bobcats To Reign At Prom Tonight

The Bates Bobcats will furnish the music at the formal Junior Prom, which will be held in the Memorial Gym tonight from eight to one o'clock. The gym will be decorated with pine and evergreens as it was last year.

Dr. and Mrs. E. Reeve Hitchner and Prof. and Mrs. Stanley A. Wallace will be the chaperons. Dr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Hauck, Dean and Mrs. Arthur L. Deering, and Dean Edith G. Wilson will be among the guests.

The committee in charge of the dance is as follows: Frank Squires, chairman; Bob Nutter, Clarence McIntire, Dolly Lamoreau, and Mildred Wooster.

Pierce Announces Invitations Sale

Commencement invitations may go on sale at the Treasurer's office before May 10, the previously announced date, according to an announcement by Richard M. Pierce, chairman of the Commencement Week committee, this week. Further announcement will be made on the bulletin board in front of the Bookstore.

Three Seniors, Eight Juniors Named All-Maine Women At Annual Banquet

Summer Students Register May 5, 6

Registration for the summer term for students in the college of arts and sciences will be held in departmental offices Wednesday, May 5, Thursday, May 6, and Friday, May 7, Acting Rean Roy M. Peterson said today.

It is important that all students who expect to begin the summer term June 7 register promptly and list their courses on the junior-senior registration card. Besides this registration card, the student should fill out at this time one program card. These should be brought by the student to the office of the dean of the college where they will remain until June 7 when they will be called for. The student will not need to present his registration card to a sectioning committee.

Lynch Will Speak At Baccalaureate Service, May 23

The Reverend G. Ernest Lynch, minister of the First Unitarian Parish of Portland, Maine, will be the guest speaker at the annual baccalaureate service at the University of Maine Commencement program, Sunday, May 23.

Mr. Lynch is a graduate of Duke University and Harvard Divinity School. He has held pastorates in the Second Congregational Church (Unitarian), Marblehead, Mass., and the First Parish in Portland.

As a member of the board of directors of the Portland YMCA, Pine Tree Council, Boy Scouts of America, and children's service bureau he has been an active participant in young people's work. He has served as chairman of the committee on social education and action for the Maine Council of Churches and has served as a member of the three-man board of arbitration of the South Portland Shipbuilding Corporation. He is widely known as a weekly commentator on the program entitled "News on the Religious Front."

Whitten Elected Interfrat Prexy

John Whitten of Phi Eta Kappa was elected president for the coming year at a meeting of the Interfraternity Council Tuesday night. Clarence McIntire, Alpha Tau Omega, was elected vice president, and Leon White, Phi Mu Delta, was elected secretary.

John Creed, Kappa Sigma, and Everett Ingalls, Beta Theta Pi, were named members of the Executive Committee. Elected to the assembly committee were Garrett Speirs, Phi Gamma Delta, John Suminsby, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Philip Sweetser, Sigma Chi.

Mrs. A. L. Deering, Mrs. Mary Crandon Made Honorary Members By Society

Three senior and eight junior women were honored last night by election to membership in the All-Maine Women Society, highest non-scholastic honor accorded to women students. At the same time Mrs. Arthur L. Deering, wife of Dean Deering of the college of agriculture, and Mrs. Mary Perkins Crandon, instructor in English, were named honorary members of the society.

A surprise feature of the banquet program at Estabrooke was the gift by the All-Maine Women to Dean Edith Wilson of two University of Maine commemorative plates. Presentation of the gift was made by Betty Price, president. The plates, containing views of Stevens Hall and the University Library, were given Dean Wilson in appreciation of her work as adviser for the All-Maine Women of which she is an honorary member.

New students elected to membership are: Seniors: Mary Hempstead, Priscilla Loring, Lois Savage; Juniors: Mary Billings, Olive Bradbury, Helen Clifford, Priscilla Hopkins, Joan Manwell, Esther Randall, Frances Sheehy, and Ruth Troland.

DEFENSE LEADER SPEAKS

Mrs. Deering was named an honorary member in recognition of her long friendliness and helpfulness among the women students and because she has had three daughters who became members of the society. Helen Deering, a senior, is at present a member; Mary, of the Class of 1938, and Marjorie, of the Class of 1940, were previously members. Mrs. Crandon, member of the English department since 1937 and an alumnae of Maine in 1923, was named to honorary membership in appreciation of her work with women students as an adviser and her service on the University committee for women students.

At the banquet, Mrs. Donald Payson of Portland and Augusta, director of the Citizens' Service Corps of the State Office of Civilian Defense, was the guest speaker. Dean Edith Wilson also spoke on the program as did Doris Bell, a sophomore, and Frances Sheehy, a junior.

MARY HEMPSTEAD, Alpha Tau Omega, was elected president of the YWCA, and active in the Maine Masque. She has been a leader in University radio work and served on the Prism board. This year she was president of Panhellenic Council. She is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority.

Priscilla Loring majors in English, is a dean's list student, and holder of a University scholarship. She has been active in the Contributors' Club. This year she was elected to Phi Kappa Phi and Phi Beta Kappa, scholastic honorary societies.

Joint Meeting May 3, Dean Wilson Speaker

Doris Dexter was elected secretary and Louise Eastman was elected treasurer at a meeting of the Panhellenic Council, Tuesday afternoon. Plans were made for an intersorority meeting Monday evening, May 3, which will take the place of the annual Panhellenic banquet.

The joint meeting of all sororities will be held at 7 p.m. in the North Estabrooke recreation room.

Dean Edith G. Wilson will be the guest speaker, and Mary Hempstead, retiring president of the Panhellenic Council, will be toastmistress. The presidents of the five sororities will report on the achievements in war work and philanthropic work by the respective sororities. Music and dramatic entertainment will be furnished by the sororities.

New sorority presidents speaking at the meeting will be Esther Holden, Alpha Omicron Pi; Olive Bradbury, Chi Omega; Arletta Thorpe, Delta Delta Delta; Connie Carter, Pi Beta Phi; and Marie Haines, Phi Mu. Priscilla Hopkins, Chi Omega, will speak as the new Panhellenic president.

Lydgate Junior Day Speaker At Assembly This Morning

William A. Lydgate, editor of the Gallup Poll, spoke on the topic "Public Opinion on the Post-War World" at the annual Junior Day assembly held in Memorial Gymnasium this morning.

Alfred Hutchinson delivered the president's address for the Class of 1944, and the prayer was given by Dayson DeCourcy, class chaplain. Richard Chadwick, chairman of the Junior Day committee, presided over the assembly, and President Arthur A. Hauck spoke for the University in introducing the speaker.

Mr. Lydgate's wide experience in the measuring of public opinion enables him to speak with authority on the prospects of public opinion trends after the war. His observation is that American public opinion sometimes gets ahead of national leaders.

AMERICAN PEOPLE THINK

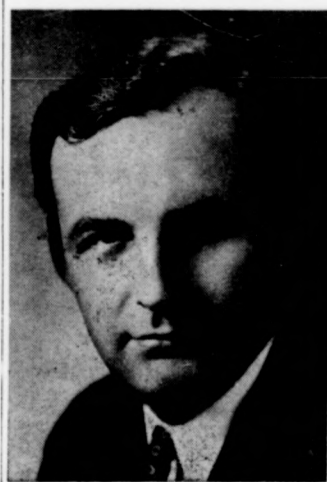

When the Gallup Poll began, there were a large number of students of government who believed that the average man was inclined to be completely emotional in his thinking on problems of the day, that the average man was only interested in his own welfare of that of his particular group or section of the country, and that he was a "band-wagon rider," anxious to trim his opinion to the prevailing wind.

Mr. Lydgate, on the other hand, by sampling public opinion through the Gallup Poll over a period of years finds that instead of showing selfishness and short-sightedness and instead of "following the leader," the American people have generally been far ahead of tradition-minded politicians. Another result of the Gallup Poll is that if majority opinion had been acted upon more often or more quickly, many of the international headaches might have been avoided.

Make-up classes in women's gym will be held on Monday, May 3, and Thursday, May 6, at 7:00 and 8:00 p.m. in Alumni Gym.

WAA Council keys may be ordered in the Office of Physical Education this week.

The deadline for all material for the new Freshman Handbook will be May 1, it was announced by Harriett Steinmetz, editor-in-chief.

We See By The Poll...

Results of the American Opinion Poll published in last week's Campus were not startling and on the whole showed that University of Maine students are in sympathy with the more publicized plans for solving the present and post-war problems of America and the world.

Sentiment was overwhelmingly in favor of "taking steps, now, before the end of the war, to set up with our Allies a world organization to maintain the future peace of the world." It appears that Maine students have little respect, at present, for isolationism.

We were surprised to find that 132 people, or 20 per cent, are opposed to an attempt to eliminate discrimination against Negroes in the United States.

Miss Jean Whittet, associate secretary of the Maine Christian Association, points out some of the trends shown by the poll with the comments which follow.

"The poll revealed that a lot of very good thinking has been going on among students as to the problems of peace and reconstruction. The very strong conviction that men in the armed forces should continue their interest and discussion of these issues was encouraging.

"Although this is spoken of as a 'global war' the poll seemed to indicate that many students still have their thinking oriented towards the Western nations, with little comprehension of the powerful forces which are being given expression around the world. Many students assumed that 'colored races' meant the Negro race, and failed to include the brown and yellow groups who are also pressing toward self-realization and freedom. Although these colored races far outnumber the white population of the earth, and the problems of racial, economic and political imperialism are closely related, there was a good deal of complacency in facing the very real danger of racial conflict after the present war. Many thoughtful people feel that 'race and politics' is the critical world issue underlying the present conflict, and that the western nations must come to terms with this problem. China, India, and Africa are fighting today for the same goals of freedom, independence, and equality of status as are the peoples of England and the United States. Prof. Liston Pope of Yale, chairman of the Commission To Study the Organization of Peace, has recently said: 'If we really propose to extend democracy throughout the world, the white people had better begin immediately to demand the safeguarding of minorities everywhere, because they themselves will comprise a minority if a world democracy is attained. The white man has been largely responsible for the development of faith in democracy, and for teaching this faith to the world. Can he rightly blame the peoples of the world if they press for the realization of the ideals he has taught?'

"Many comments indicated that 'civilization' and 'education' are equated with our own standards in this respect, without regard to the cultures of other peoples which may be equally worthwhile as a contribution to the world family of nations.

"Answers to the question on the repeal of the Oriental Exclusion Act showed the lack of information on this issue which is common in our country. Under the quota system there would be no flooding of America with cheap labor, but only the admission of a handful of Orientals each year, less than the number annually smuggled in each year before the war.

"Most of us admitted freely that we did not know much about Russia, yet were pretty suspicious of her. This suggests that there is need for much greater information and understanding of a country that can no longer be ignored."

Footlights And Ether

"Hello, Frisco, Hello" brings to the screen Alice Faye's first picture in two years. It's the same old story of Barbary Coast (Alice Faye) versus Nob Hill (Lynn Bari) with John Payne as the prize. Miss Faye really gives out on the songs and the movie looks like some good entertainment.

"Slightly Dangerous" may have been just as the title suggests for any of the girls who allow the men in their life to see the picture unchaperoned. Lana Turner really turned on her charm, and it may take a few days to get the boys back to normal. This is purely propaganda and should be taken as such.

John Garfield, "tough guy" of the movies, enacts the title role in the Screen Guild Players' version of the film "Johnny Eager" over Columbia network on Monday, May 9, at 10 o'clock, Station EWT. Garfield portrays the role taken by Robert Taylor in the MGM movie produced last year.

"Air Force," claimed to be the best aviation film to date, has for its heroine a Flying Fortress named "Mary Ann." It is dedicated to the simple and excellent purpose of showing how U. S. airmen fight and has among its crew John Ridgely, George Tobias, John Garfield, and Harry Carey. Its battles are not thrown together by some of the more imaginative cinema writers but are actual air battles, including a re-enactment of Colin Kelly's attack on the battleship "Harauna." The picture shows all of the excitement of air war in the Pacific without any Hollywood glamour.

POLITICAL SCENE

By Elbridge Burton Davis

With the 1944 national conventions, less than 14 months away, interest in the forthcoming presidential election is on the increase. Recent statements by the rival national committee chairmen have highlighted the jockeying between the Republicans and Democrats over convention dates, sites, and candidates.

Frank C. Walker, Democratic chairman, has called for a brief campaign with the conventions held in the autumn, while Republican chairman Harrison E. Spangler has charged that this is an attempt to weaken the minority party's chances by allowing less time for campaign activities.

BELIEVE FDR WILL RUN

The burning question of the moment is whether or not President Roosevelt will seek a fourth term. Washington correspondents and political analysts in various sections of the country are virtually unanimous in declaring that the chief executive will again be the Democratic nominee. However, a bitter battle is forecast at the convention when the New Deal forces stack up against the Southern conservative wing of the party, which has the support of former Postmaster-General James A. Farley.

Inside information indicates that the Southerners may place in nomination the name of Senator W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas, a vigorous Roosevelt foe who has the tacit approval of several Southern governors including spectacular young Gov. Ellis Arnall of Georgia. But any opposition to Roosevelt in the convention should not be considered too seriously as the Northern and Western sections of the party, along with the machine bosses of Chicago, New York, Kansas City, Jersey City, and Memphis, are solidly behind the President.

OPPOSITION LACKS POWER

Indications, at present, point to Roosevelt's renomination in a convention where the opposition will be much

DEWEY HAS APPEAL

An evaluation of the situation at this early date is exceedingly difficult as the picture in the Republican race is very badly obscured. However, perhaps the strongest probability is that the nomination will once again go to Willkie, who more than any other Republican appears to combine the qualities of statesmanship, vigor, courage, and breadth of vision, and whose wide interest in world politics gives him a broader and more popular appeal than that of the other candidates who are busy themselves in purely domestic concerns.

Sun Burned Coeds Create New Fad On Maine Campus

By Frances Higgins

Well, sun-bathing time is here, or at least it was here the first of the week. It has been a part of the average coed conversation, and it is very much a part of the varied assortment of pink arms and legs and red faces seen here and there about campus. If the weekly snowstorm hasn't been too drastic, that half-baked appearance, brick red on one side and winter white on the other side of the face will be quite prevalent this week.

While most all Maine women are strolling or sauntering across the campus at a slower pace these balmy spring days, All-Maine Women scurry in and out through the usual mob, keeping an eye on their new chickens which just hatched on Thursday night.

JAMESON PICTURED

Puzzled students are learning that the brunette basketballer in last week's Collegiate Digest is Peg Jameson, freshman forward on the All-Maine basketball team. And who might the other gal be?

Isn't Maine wonderful! It really seems that way when the Colby Echo comes out with feature articles on transportation problems to the hill. The long bus ride to Bangor and back is nothing compared to the daily bus trips out to Mayflower Hill and back that Colby must make every day.

EVENING GOWNS AGAIN

It's evening gown time again with Junior Prom and house parties and one thing after another coming up. The Maine man seems to like that bit of glamour, too. This is the year for the Maine coed to shine, what with transportation problems and all pushing the import out of the picture.

The Balentine tennis courts are ready for use again. It is good tennis weather right now. As soon as the snow drifts have melted off the courts, they should have loads of business.

Dean Peterson To Give Course On Latin America

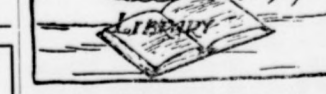

"Latin America, Yesterday and Today" will be the name of a course to be introduced at the annual summer session at the University of Maine by Dr. Roy M. Peterson, head of the department of Romance languages and director of the session. The course will be one in an expanded program of teaching, covering Latin-American History, relationships and language.

Other courses in the Latin-American Spanish field will be Elementary Spanish to be taught by Professor Marion Buzzell and Dr. John Klein, and two courses to be taught by Professor Frances Arnold, in Second-Year Spanish and Conversation and Composition.

The new emphasis on Spanish and Latin-American courses is intended to meet the needs of teachers offering instruction in Inter-American relations. The content of the new course by Dr. Peterson will cover the background of the Latin-American nations and a study of their problems. The development of Mexico and the Argentine will be especially emphasized.

In the field of Spanish, recognition of the growing importance of that language to the American people will be shown by offering classes to those who have had no previous training in the language.

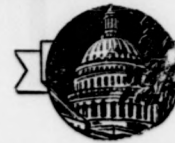

(This is the first of two articles on national politics; the second will discuss the governmental trend in Washington today and present the issues of the 1944 campaign.)

College libraries this month are receiving for exhibition purposes exact copies of drafts of the Declaration of Independence. Included is one never before shown to the public.

The Library of Congress has assembled these various drafts in a book, 2000 copies of which it has printed, for distribution to libraries throughout the country. Historical notes on the evolution of the text of the Declaration as adopted by the Continental Congress July 4, 1776, complete the book.

The version of the Declaration getting its first public showing was written by John Adams. It contained changes made by him and Jefferson after a study of the first draft. Nine texts in all are shown, six of which are in Jefferson's handwriting. Two are "official texts," one being the broadside printed the night of July 4,

BOOKS IN THE FLAMES

WASHINGTON—(ACP)—Books are a symbol. The college library and its books are the heart of every campus. The insignia of many a college shows an open book signifying light, learning, and the wisdom only man can pass from mind to mind. Books are a symbol of the freedoms for which we fight.

The other day monitors for the Federal Communications Commission picked up a Berlin broadcast praising Adolf Hitler, he of the impenetrable prose style, as a lover of good books.

"To read a lot is equivalent of a good education," the radio voice said. "It was Adolf Hitler who promoted this idea in Germany."

The voice went on to say Hitler sponsored "not only books on National Socialism but books on German poets" and until he did "there were no good books in Germany."

On May 10, the world will remember how well Hitler loves good books. On that date in 1933, 25,000 good books burned in the square before the University of Berlin.

A student barker stood by to shout in the night as the books were cast into the huge bonfire:

"Erich Ludwig—burned for literary rascality and high treason against Germany."

"Erich Maria Remarque—for degrading the German language."

The book burnings were sponsored by Goebbels, the minister of "public enlightenment." Other bonfires were held at the universities of Munich, Frankfurt, Breslau, Kiel.

The lover of good books eventually drove hundreds of writers from the Reich, among them Thomas Mann, Arnold and Stefan Zweig, Alfred Döblin, Josef Roth, Ernst Glaeser, Jacob Wassermann. The "equivalent of a good education" did not include reading Heinrich Heine, Ernest Hemingway, John

Dos Passos, Franz Werfel. It did include millions of copies of "Mein Kampf."

The "Kulturdirection" of the Nazis followed the blitz. The Louvain library in Brussels was destroyed. French libraries, bookstores, and newsstands were pillaged by Gestapo agents to "prepare the transfer of literary, artistic and cultural treasures from the vanquished to the victorious country." In Paris, the Gestapo went from bookstore to bookstore with a list of condemned books to be seized within 30 minutes under threat of severe penalty.

On April 24, the Library of Congress in Washington will be 143 years old. Its 414 miles of bookshelves and 7 million books cover every branch of human knowledge and culture, every crackpotism and profundity.

Sometimes visitors hesitate to enter the library. "May I come in?" they ask the attendant at the door.

"Of course, come right in," the attendant says. "It's your library."

That's part of what the war's about. It's to keep the flames from roaring at our library doors.

GUNNING FOR THE POLL TAX

Although they aren't saying much about it yet, the anti-poll tax Congressmen have high hopes of getting legislation banning the tax in federal elections through the House very soon.

A petition to draw the bill out of the judiciary committee requires signatures of 218 members. More than three-fourths of this number have signed already.

This is no trifling accomplishment. Few petitions for discharge of a committee have received signatures so rapidly. One hundred fifty Congressmen signed this one in three weeks.

If the pace continues, the bill may come before the House early in May. And that would leave a full year and a half to get it through the Senate, where it died in filibuster last year.

Bates Has Speakers' Bureau

LEWISTON, Maine—(ACP)—Burnese beggars, Boston's have-nots, black cats—name the topic and the Bates college speakers' bureau will furnish a lecturer well versed in the subject and eager to speak for no return other than the experience gained.

Throughout the academic year the bureau sends out undergraduates to speak before organizations of the surrounding communities. Students who are interested in gaining greater proficiency in public speaking volunteer their services, the only requirements being that each must be a capable speaker who will not set his audiences yawning and nodding, and he must be adequately and accurately informed on his topic.

Usually students choose a subject with which they are familiar through actual experience. Thus a French girl has talked on her school days in France, a Negro student explained what the Negro thinks, and a thumbnail sketch of Burma was offered by the daughter of a missionary who had spent most of her life there.

Should an organization prefer a lively debate on a controversial issue of current interest, the request is promptly filled. Dramatics students give plays, feeling like troupers in a stock company when they arrive on the scene to find no furniture available, exits in the wrong places, no dressing rooms, and the makeshift curtain going up in an hour.

Look Pert and Pretty . . . Stay Gay all Day in Cottons!

You'll thrill at the lively young dresses we have to show you in tubable, lovable cottons. Dozens of dear designs. To see these smooth numbers is to want them. And right now is the time to pick them up.

Greet the lush days of Spring with the gayest plaids, stripes, and novelty checks . . . in seersucker, linen, gingham, prints, and sheers.

Prettily, peppily detailed in all your favorite colors and sizes.

Three State Meets Highlight Saturday's Sport Schedule

Reed, Roley Are Maine Entries In Golf Championships

Maine's current contribution to the nation's "gutta percha" game will play for individual Pine Tree State championship titles Saturday at the Penobscot Valley Country Club. And representing the University of Maine will be Walter Reed, captain, manager, and coach of the 1943 Pale Blue golf varsity, and Red Roley, newcomer and number two man of the team.

PORT FAIRFIELD'S FAIRWAY STAR

Each man from Bowdoin, Colby, and Maine will play 36 holes to decide the 1943 champion, and each college is limited to two entries. Last year Reed, Port Fairfield's contribution to fairway fame, took individual honors in the Maine intercollegiate championship held at Augusta.

With Reed and Don Griffie leading the way, the 1942 edition of the Pale Blue varsity golf team had a highly successful season. Getting off to a shaky start, the gutta perchers dropped a State Series match to Bowdoin, 5-4, but on the New England trip came back strong to take Boston University 6-3. The following day a strong Harvard club almost swept away the Maine opposition by a tune of 8½ to ½. Maine then won the two remaining State Series matches, beating Colby 7½ to 1½ and Bates 8 to 1.

Maine's 1943 fairway varsity, comprised of Reed, Red Roley, Bep Morse, Joe Ingalls, Bud Rourke, and Elmer Knowles, ran into stiff opposition on their annual New England trip last week-end, dropping matches to Boston University and Harvard.

Boston University 7 Maine 2

Singles—Reed (M) defeated Cargen (BU), 4 and 3; Jaquin (BU) defeated Roley (M), 3 and 2; Treadwell (BU) defeated Morse (M), 7 and 5; White (BU) defeated Ingalls (M), 6 and 4; Green (BU) defeated Rourke (M), 7 and 6; Taft (BU) defeated Knowles (M), 7 and 6.

Foursome—Reed and Roley (M) defeated Jaquin and Cargen (BU), 3 and 2; Treadwell and White (BU) defeated Morse and Ingalls (M), 7 and 6; Green and Taft (BU) defeated Rourke and Knowles (M), 7 and 2.

Harvard 7 Maine 2

Singles—Reed (M) defeated Nye (H), 7 and 6; Cameron (H) defeated Roley (M), 1 up; Ellis (H) defeated Morse (M), 4 and 3; Hallett (H) defeated Ingalls (M), 5 and 4; Arthur (H) defeated Rourke (M), 4 and 2; Tuckerman (H) defeated Knowles (M), 4 and 3.

WAA Banquet On Wednesday

Athletic Awards To Be Presented

Maine Seals and other sports awards will be presented to University of Maine women for activity in team sports, individual tournaments, and the health program at the annual Women's Athletic Association Banquet to be held on Wednesday, May 12, in Estabrooke Hall.

Helen Clifford, the incoming president of the WAA Council, will be toastmistress. Iva Henry, the outgoing president, will present chevrons, letters, and numerals, and Miss Helen Lengyel, director of women's physical education, will present several Maine Seals, the highest athletic award given to women on the Maine campus. A plaque will be given to the class which has accumulated the largest number of points for participation in athletics. The new president of the WAA Council will receive the president's star, and the other new officers will be presented.

Phyllis MacNeal is general chairman of the banquet committee, which includes Helen Deering, program; Marie Rourke, decorations and seating; Helen Clifford, awards; and Mary Frances Spangler, invitations and publicity.

Bear Cub Nine Opens '43 Schedule

Next week the Frosh baseball team really swings into its schedule. The club will play four more games. Next Monday they take the field against Brewer and next Thursday Kents Hill will be the opponent. The week after next they wind up the season against Coburn and Dexter.

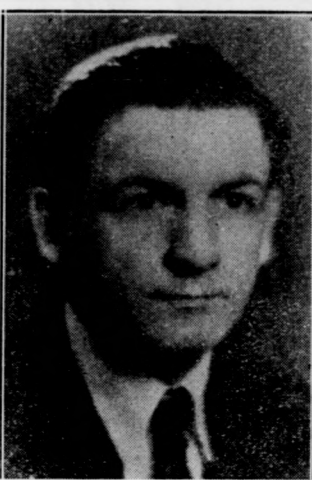

The regular first string lines up as follows: Garvin at first; Parsons or Cervonne at second; Antell at shortstop; Hollet at third; and Chalmers, Dieffenbach, and Yocffe in the outfield.

Notis and Tuck are Coach Sezak's two top hurlers, but Peachey, Dutton, and Peterson will see action in the coming encounters.

Parady will probably get the nod as starting catcher, but Poynter has been looking good behind the plate. Coach Sezak will probably use both a lot before the season is over.

Morse and Ingalls (M), 6 and 5; Arthur and Tuckerman (H) defeated Rourke and Knowles (M), 5 and 4.

Soldiers To Go Collegiate Under New Schedule

ASTP Trainees Eligible To Join Student Activities

Traditional college life will become more of a reality to the men engaged in the Army Specialized Training Program as two new rulings of the War Department go into effect, the OWI announced last week.

The first provides that the soldier-students may join fraternities if invited to do so although, it was stressed, there is no compulsion on the fraternities to issue such invitations. The second establishes a program of competitive team sports within the Specialized Training units to help inculcate the "will to win" and to aid in physical conditioning of the men.

SPORTS WITHIN UNITS

Intercollegiate sports competition will be ruled out as the soldier-students will not have time to train for or participate in such events, but there will be plenty of scope for first-class competition within the units themselves. Team sports will be limited only by the availability of facilities and equipment, by the interest of the students, and by the ingenuity of the instructors. Suggested sports include soccer, speedball, touch football, modified football, basketball, volleyball, and baseball as it is felt that these, in particular, are conducive to the attainment of the program's four objectives:

- "1) To develop those qualities, capabilities and reflexes associated with first-class physical condition.
- "2) To develop in the soldier-students certain fundamental skills essential either to safety or to effective operations in modern warfare.
- "3) To instill in the minds and the hearts of the soldier-students an aggressive, fighting spirit.
- "4) To provide a sound, sane, and wholesome counter-poise to the highly accelerated schedule of academic study that is involved in the specialized training program."

Pratt, Peckham To Defend Titles In Tennis Meet

By Dick Danforth

Greatly pleased with the results of the Boston trip, Coach Starr of the varsity tennis team resumed practice Monday to iron out a few weaknesses that were shown on the trip. The team is now preparing for the state singles and doubles championships, which are to be held on the Orono courts Saturday.

CLOSE BUT NOT QUITE

Although the team was blanked by Harvard last Friday, the match was much closer than the team score shows. Seven of the nine matches went three sets, with Bert Pratt and Mal Peckham providing some stiff opposition for the John Harvards.

Things took a turn for the better when the Bears met Boston University on Saturday. Relieved of the strain of playing the opening match and playing under much more favorable conditions, the Pale Blue had little trouble in whipping the Terriers by an 8-1 count. Most of these matches were taken in two sets, and BU received their lone point when the Bears were forced to forfeit their final match because of the time limit.

TEAM STANDINGS

The standing of team members on the Boston trip was Bert Pratt, No. 1; Mal Peckham, No. 2; Phil Miller, No. 3; Carl Kilpatrick, No. 4; Floyd Smith, No. 5; and Jim Hastings, No. 6. The first and second, third and fourth, and fifth and sixth men paired for the doubles matches.

As yet it is too early for Coach Starr to determine just what the team standing will be for the State Meet, al-

Kenyonmen Seek Conference Wins On Southern Trip

Pastimers To Play Rhode Island And Northeastern Nines

With the home front well taken care of by three State Meets, Coach Bill Kenyon's varsity baseball team makes its annual southern "debut" today and tomorrow. This afternoon the Black Bear diamonders will be playing Rhode Island State, with Coach Frank Kenney as feature attraction, and tomorrow the "down-easters" meet Northeastern in Boston for a twin-bill attraction.

Kenyon's roster for the southern trip lists sixteen players. The Maine mentor has a mound staff of Gordon Tooley, Al McNeilly, and Dick Palmer, and catchers Bud Lyford and Bert Murch, infielders Johnny Whitten, Charley Markee, Charley Norton, Jim Donovan, Mert Melon, and Don Presnell, and outfielders Bob Nutter, Windy Work, Leon White, Marlowe Perkins, and Garry Speirs.

Tomorrow's double header with the Northeastern Huskies will mark the second Saturday the Maine team has had a twin-bill against New England Conference opposition. And the Bostonian diamond nine, coached by Foxey Flumere, may prove just as strong as New Hampshire was last Saturday. Flumere's 1942 contribution to the national game ended up as Conference champions.

The Northeastern baseball nine will probably line up with Ed Sakovitz at first, Mike Azone at the keystone sack, Walt Hurley at short, and Bob Otenti at third. In the outfield, Flumere has pinch men Fred Pearce, Paul Cleary, and Gabe Conner. The Northeastern mound staff is composed of Will Shanon, a veteran of two campaigns, Jackie Cunha, captain of the Arlington high championship team last year, and Russ Washburn, a Maine boy. Bob Johnson is the Huskies' first-string backstop.

Wesleyan university has recently been appointed a V-12 college in the navy's training program. (ACP)

BEAR FACTS

By Bud Hale

Last Saturday saw the return of the long-awaited spring sports week-ends to the campus, with the air around Memorial Gym filled with the noise of cheering spectators, the crunch of spikes in the cinder track, and the smack of the horseshoe as it hit the willow. Phenomenal feats, feats that happen once in a decade in Orono, really gave the sunshine seeking crowds their money's worth.

YEARLING STREAK SNAPPED

Number one feat of the day was the victory over the freshman track team by the combined teams of Deering and South Portland. The draft-ridden yearlings fielded their smallest squad in many years, for less than a dozen men were on hand to meet the cream of the Portland schools. Without delving into the records, we venture to state that the last time a yearling team saw the wrong end of the score was back in 1938, when South Portland teamed with Thornton Academy to run the freshmen into the ground.

If anyone is still uncertain as to whether or not that was a P-40 flying low along the track Saturday, you can now toss aside your aircraft spotters' guide. On flagging it down we found it to be Herb McKenley, Boston College's colored sprint star, just out for another field day. This lad, who hails from the West Indies, romped away with the honors in the 440, 220, and 100 yard dashes, his 9.9 seconds time in the latter event being the fastest ever seen in Orono. Unfortunately, as there was a wind at his back, this time could not be entered as a record.

IRON MAN

On the diamond Bill Kenyon's pastimers ran into a little difficulty in the person of one Irving "Sheik" Karelis. Handcuffed by the big New Hampshire portside for the entire seven frames of the opener, the Bears watched helplessly while the Wildcats pounded Tooley and Merchant for 15 hits and 13 runs. The Kenyonites came back on the field for the nightcap with a burning desire for revenge in their hearts, but the same Sheik came back on the field to pull an Iron Man feat. This time he made things even tougher for the Bears, for the best they could do was rap (Continued on Page Four)

Maine Tracksters Favored To Take Bowdoin, Colby

Riddled by the misfortunes of war, the Bowdoin, Colby, and Maine track teams get together Saturday at Orono for the annual state meet. All three colleges will be represented by a minimum of veterans and a larger number of inexperienced men. Although this fact makes it hazardous to pick a winner, sources in Brunswick and Portland have unhesitatingly named Maine a top-heavy favorite.

The 46th renewal of the meet will see Bates missing from the traditional four-cornered rivalry. The meet had originally been scheduled for the Bobcats' Garcelon Field, but when Bates officials announced that their athletic teams would play "informal schedules" for the duration, the meet was switched to Orono.

Only a few who took part in last year's meet at Brunswick, in which Bowdoin edged out Maine for the championship by a one-half point margin, will be in the running tomorrow. The Maine and Bowdoin squads have competed but once outdoors this spring, and Colby has not been tested at all.

The Pale Blue trackmen won their only outdoor meet over Boston College last Saturday by an 83½-51½ margin. Chester Jenkins' squad captured several first places but none of the winning marks were outstanding. However, Maine does appear to have a fairly well-balanced team. Hamm and Estabrooke are expected to place in the distance events, Barber in the middle distances, Leclair and Hadlock in the hurdles, and these two and Butler in the jumping events. Bailey and Phillips are Jenkins' hopes in the dashes as John Radley is out with a bad leg. Dodge, Sawin, Butler, McIntire, and Hutchinson will carry the Pale Blue colors in the weights.

Johnny McGee's Bowdoin aggregation opened its abbreviated outdoor track schedule by beating Bates Monday 76-58. All the running events were shortened from the legitimate outdoor distances, making it impossible to compare performances turned in by Maine's runners in the Boston College meet. The Polar Bears will have Dobrow and Woods in the dashes, Hickey in the hurdles, and Woods and Branche in the middle distances. Lewis, Senter, and Reed are Bowdoin's distance men, while Taussig and Taylor are the only weight men.

The meet tomorrow will be Colby's first and last of the outdoor track season. The Mules lost to Maine indoors two months ago by a 75-42 score but (Continued on Page Four)

Reverend Douglas Frazier To Speak Here Sunday

Laura Jackman Featured Soloist

The Reverend Douglas Frazier, director of youth activities of the Universalist Church of America at Boston, will be the speaker at the MCA Sunday service on May 2.

Mr. Frazier, a native of New York State, attended Cazenovia Seminary, Syracuse University, and St. Lawrence University where he received his B.S. in 1932 and his B.D. in 1936. He has done graduate work at Harvard Divinity School.

Mr. Frazier has held pastorates at Henderson, New York; Caribou, Maine; and Malden, Mass. For two years he was Dean of the summer institutes held at Ferry Beach in Saco. Since February, 1941, he has been director of youth activities of the Universalist Church of America. In this office he is responsible for the youth program of the denomination.

The music for the service will feature a solo, "With Verdure Clad" from "The Creation" by Haydn, which will be sung by Laura Jackman, soprano. The anthem will be "God So Loved the World" from "The Crucifixion" by Stainer. James Gordon Selwood directs the Chapel Choir and Stanley Murray is accompanist.

Ten Fraternities To Hold Parties

Ten fraternities will hold their annual spring house parties next weekend. The following houses will have formal or semi-formal dances Friday, May 7: Phi Mu Delta semi-formal, Theta Chi formal, Phi Eta Kappa house party, Lambda Chi Alpha formal, Kappa Sigma house party, Delta Tau Delta formal, Phi Kappa Sigma formal, and Phi Gamma Delta house party.

On Saturday, May 8, Sigma Nu and SAE will hold formal dances. Vic dances for the week-end of May 7 and 8 are as follows: Friday night, Sigma Nu; Saturday night, Theta Chi, Phi Eta Kappa, Lambda Chi Alpha, and Sigma Chi.

Among the freshman women elected to Neat Mathetai last week was Jeanette Morse Thompson. The Campus mentions this in order that there may be no confusing this name with another Miss Thompson, also a freshman.

Herman Levesque Drowned Saturday At Basin Mills

Herman F. Levesque, 19, of Van Buren, a freshman in the college of agriculture at the University and a pledge of Alpha Gamma Rho, lost his life Saturday afternoon while attempting to swim ashore from a boat at Basin Mills.

While rowing in an old boat with a companion, Levesque lost an oar when the boat started into swift water and attempted to jump to the abutment of the bridge at Basin Mills but failed to reach it. His friend, Lawrence Redman, swam ashore.

Members of the Penobscot County sheriff's department conducted grappling operations for several days but have failed to find the body to date.

Six High Schools Win Places In Speech Contest

The first place winners in the speech contest for Maine secondary schools which was held Friday at the University of Maine were as follows:

Serious reading, Geraldine Cabana of Waterville who spoke "Until Charlot Comes Home"; humorous reading, Ruth Comeau of Foxcroft Academy, "The Jukes Family"; extemporaneous speaking, Howard Gottlieb of Bangor High School who spoke on the subject for all contestants in this group, "World Government"; original oration, George Wark of Caribou, "What Americans Are Fighting For"; radio speaking, John Higgins of Bangor; group discussion, Clement Herbert of Lewiston and George Broun of Bangor who spoke on "World Government"; interpretative reading, Douglas Perry of Rockland who spoke "A Nightmare at Noon."

The contest, attended by about 80 students, was under the direction of Dr. Howard L. Runion, professor and acting head of the department of speech at the University. The judges in the finals were Prof. Mark Bailey, Mr. Charles O'Connor, and Mr. John Roberts, all members of the University faculty.

Summer Faculty Member To Teach Education Courses

Dr. Paul Sloate Miller, principal of Davey Junior High School in East Orange, N. J., will be a member of the staff of the University summer session for the twelfth consecutive year, it was announced here today by Dean Roy M. Peterson, director of the session.

As in recent years Dr. Miller will teach courses in Creative School Control and Visual Education. In addition he will introduce a new course called Curriculum Construction in Secondary schools.

Dr. Miller is a graduate of Gettysburg college and Yale university and obtained his Ph.D. from New York university. During the first World War he served with the American Red Cross. He has had a long and varied career in the field of education as teacher, assistant principal, principal, and superintendent. He has taught at the School of Education, New York University. From 1929-1940 he was principal of Eastern and Stockton schools in East Orange, N. J. Since that time he has served as principal of the Vernon L. Davey High School in that city.

At the meeting of the Home Economics Club on April 22, the following officers were elected for the year 1943-44:

President, Margaret Brown; vice-president, Joan Kimball; secretary-treasurer, Betty Jenkins; social chairman, Dorothy Currier.

University of Maine graduates with General Electric number 86, it was announced recently by R. C. Muir, G-E vice president and chairman of the company's education committee.

Four junior home economics majors have been elected to membership in Omicron Nu, the home economics honor society. The new members are Julia Robbins, Dolly Lamoreau, Joyce Iveney, and Mrs. Mary Fogler Claverie. Membership in Omicron Nu is based on scholarship and ability in home economics.

Three pledge reports have been announced by Robert Worrick, secretary of the Interfraternity Council: to Lambda Chi Alpha, Robert Ramsdell; to Sigma Chi, Vincent Perry; to Tau Epsilon Phi, Richard Giesberg. Joseph Flanagan has dropped his pledge to Delta Tau Delta.

out two singles. Pale blue posies to the Sheik.

A lot of credit also goes to bespectacled Dick Palmer. Although his efforts were somewhat overshadowed by the amazing accomplishment of Karelis, Dick hurled a beautiful five-hit ball in the nightcap; but grouped misplays on the part of the infielders proved fatal to his efforts.

Eddie Card, Wildcat third sacker, escaped serious injury in the final frame of the nightcap when, chasing a foul fly under full steam, he crashed into the third base bleachers. He took the count momentarily, but then he came to and left the game amid a big hand from the small crowd that had braved the exposure and hunger to see the finish.

In closing we'll climb out on the proverbial limb and venture to say that the Bears will come out on top of two counts—track and tennis—in Saturday's festivities.

have nearly all of that team available for the State Meet. Jerry Lewis, Negro hurdle, dash, and jumping ace, is expected to place in all these events. Dolon is a particularly good dash man, Captain Jim Bateman is sure to pick up some points in the middle distances, and may garner some points in the jumps. Robinson, recent winner of the Portland Boys' Club baby marathon, and Wood, freshman pole vaulter, are also expected to aid the Colby cause considerably.

The javelin, hammer, and discus events will take place Saturday morning, while the remainder of the meet will be run off in the afternoon beginning at 1:30. No records are expected, but every event will probably be close.

Awards Given, Skulls Tapped, Speaker At Assembly May 6

Major W. M. Lask To Leave Maine For Fort Eustis

Major Walter M. Lask, who has been the assistant professor of military science and tactics here for the past three years, is leaving the University of Maine to go to the Replacement Training pool at Fort Eustis, Virginia.

Major Lask graduated from the University of Alabama in 1933 with a reserve commission of 2nd Lieutenant in the Coast Artillery. In 1936 he became a Pennsylvania State Policeman and was associated with them until he came to the University of Maine in the fall of 1940.

Major Lask received his Major's commission while at the University of Maine in July of 1942. While here he has been coach of the rifle team.

Prof. Herbert R. Brown of Bowdoin College will speak, President Arthur A. Hauck will announce awards of scholarships and prizes, and new Senior Skulls will be tapped at the annual Scholarship Recognition Day assembly, Thursday, May 6, at 9:30 a.m. in Memorial Gymnasium.

Seniors who have maintained an average of B or higher will be named when President Hauck announces the year's academic honors. A representative of each honor society in the University will be on the speakers' platform.

Dr. Brown, English and American literature professor, is the author of The Sentimental Novel in America, 1789-1860. He taught English at Lafayette, Duke, and Columbia before coming to Bowdoin.

Voice students of Mr. James Gordon Selwood will sing excerpts from Mozart's sparkling opera "The Marriage of Figaro" in a recital Wednesday evening, May 12, 17 North Stevens.

Arias, duets, trios, and ensemble numbers will be presented and the story of the opera, with its many plots and counterplots, will be explained. This opera is considered one of the three greatest opera comedies of all times and many of its charming melodies can truthfully be classified as "popular" music. The cast, and complete program, will be announced in next week's Campus.

HASTINGS HANDS DOWN

The Maine net mentor also had a great deal of praise for the fine play of Jim Hastings. Playing for the first time in intercollegiate competition, Jim won his match at Boston University hands down.

Summing up the trip, the Maine coach related that except for the few deficiencies shown by the lack of practice, the Maine team showed up as equals to the big college teams.

The University of Hawaii's paper, the Ka Leo O Hawaii, which automatically was discontinued after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, has resumed publication. (ACP)
