BUD HINCKLEY '35 IS DROWNED WHEN CAR PLUNGES INTO RIVER

Win Robbins '32 Makes Valiant Effort To Effect Rescue

A.T.O. ATTEND FUNERAL

Bob Salisbury, Roger Nash Were Other Occupants Of Roadster

Funeral services for Robert Hinckley '35, who was drowned Saturday afternoon after an automobile accident on the Bangor road, were held Tuesday morning at Bluehill. The services were attended by a delegation of the victim's Alpha Tau Omega fraternity brothers.

The accident occurred when the automobile driven by Robert Salisbury '36 and occupied by Hinckley and Roger Nash, of Harrington, skidded, hit a fence, and plunged off the Red Bridge into Penjea-wock Stream. Nash and Salisbury managed to extricate themselves from the wreckage of the car, and tried vainly to pull their companion out through the top.

Winston Robbins, instructor of mechanical drawing at the University, who was following the car, saw the accident, and after tearing off his clothing, dove into the icy waters in an effort to rescue the imprisoned student. After three attempts, he was forced to give up his efforts, as his body was numbed by the cold water.

A telephone company crew which happened to be passing at the time succeeded in righting the overturned car, and assisted Robbins in withdrawing the body, which was taken in a police ambulance to the Eastern Maine General Hospital. Efforts to revive the victim by means of an inhalator proved futile. Salisbury and Nash were treated at the hospital for exposure and bruises. Salisbury was released Saturday night. Nash is still in the hospital with a knee injury.

The accident was investigated by Bangor police, who expressed the belief that the car was traveling at a high rate of speed when it skidded. Tracings of the vehicle's path indicated that it proceeded for approximately 300 feet before plunging into the stream, and had crashed into the guide fence, breaking a post enroute. Hinckley was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hinckley, of Bluehill, and was a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. He had been a Dean's List student ever since entering the University. He was an officer in the local R.O.T.C. unit, a member of Sigma Delta Zeta, and treasurer of his fraternity.

An investigation into the accident will be conducted before the grand jury at the January term of the superior court, according to a statement made Tuesday of this week by County Attorney J. D. Maxwell.

PURE FOOD INSPECTOR ADDRESSES MAINE CLUBS

"Protection for 100,000,000 Guinea Pigs" was the subject of a talk by C. C. Sullivan, Chief Inspector of the Boston Station of the Pure Food and Drug Administration, when he spoke at Coburn Hall, Tuesday afternoon, December 5.

Mr. Sullivan gave examples of misleading advertising, which can not be prohibited under the present Pure Food and Drugs laws, and outlined briefly the chief provisions of the proposed Copeland Bill. Examples of definitely harmful products and of the deceptive advertising concerning them were displayed. The lecture was sponsored by the Agricultural Club and the Home Economics Club.

Spots on Noses and Much Silence Are Indications That Initiations Are Here

Red roses, sundry colored and shaped dance caps, and noses besmirched with mysterious black and white substances, marked the beginning of "Hell Week" for five more of Maine's fraternities this week as the initiates trudged wearily about the campus by day, and the surrounding countryside by night.

TAU BET PLEDGES 11 AT ANNUAL SMOKER

Actor T. Abbott Receives Tau Beta Slide Rule. Moreland Speaks

Eleven pledges to the local chapter of Tau Beta Pi, national honorary technology fraternity, were announced at the annual tech smoker held in Alumni Hall Tuesday evening of this week. Of these eleven eight were seniors and three juniors. The seniors are: Armand Giguere, William Canders, Richard Lull, John Pollock, Robert Adams, Elliot Reed, Peter Karalekas, and Kenneth Parsons. The juniors included James Sanborn, Raymond Thorne, and Donald Pederson.

The smoker, as usual, was a highly enjoyed social affair with humor provided by various students, representing the Chemical, Civil, and Electrical Clubs. The crowning touch of humor of the entire evening, however, was the address by James Moreland, instructor of journalism.

Actor T. Abbott received the Tau Beta Pi slide rule which is presented annually by that fraternity to the sophomore who receives the highest rank in the College of Technology in his freshman year.

Abbott's scholastic average for both semesters last year was 3.77. He is a member of the Boothbay Harbor High School delegation which last year received the freshman scholarship cup, presented each spring to that secondary school in Maine having three or more of its graduates in full standing in the freshman class, whose representatives as a group have attained the highest scholastic standing for the preceding fall semester.

LOAN FUND GAINS $17 FROM VICTORY DANCE

Seventeen dollars has been added to the Student Senate Loan Fund as a result of the victory dance which the Senate conducted after the Bowdoin-Maine game, according to a report presented by Kenneth Foster at a meeting of the Student Senate held in Rogers Hall Tuesday evening. Alpheus C. Lyon is now acting president of the Senate in the absence of John B. Quinn, who is in forestry camp at Princeton.

MASQUE SCORES HIT WITH YEAR'S SECOND TWIN PERFORMANCE

Ingalls and LaChance Stars In Casella's 'Death Takes a Holiday'

By the Campus Roaming Reporter
Professor Mark Bailey added another triumph in dramatic production to an already long list when the Maine Masque, under his direction, presented "Death Takes a Holiday" in the Little Theatre in Alumni Hall on Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week.

Elston Ingalls '35 and Charlotte LaChance '35, stars of past Masque performances, scored again with their characterizations of Prince Sirki, played by Ingalls, and Grazia, played by Miss LaChance. Paul Langlois '34, appearing in his first major part in a Masque production, gave a creditable performance in the role of Major Whitread.

John C. Willey, president of the Masque, lifted his role of Baron Cesarea through his excellent portrayal of the character of the old statesman, to a co-starring role with that of Ingalls. Richard Wooster, in the role of the Duke, again gave an excellent performance in a part that required several bits of difficult emotional acting.

The play, on the surface appearing fantastic, was written for the Italian stage by Alberto Casella, and was later rewritten for the American stage by Walter Ferris. Death, one of the characters in the play, takes a holiday for three days, and suspends his usual activities. During this three day period he meets and falls completely in love with a beautiful girl. Naturally, complications of various sorts arise, and their solution provides a dramatic production that is in no place lacking of complicated and intensely interesting situations, which make it a play that has been one of the outstanding successes of the present season on the professional stage.

Throughout the winding and unwinding of the plot of the play it is building itself up to an ending that for dramatic value and emotional stimulation rivals any play of recent years. The philosophy of the play, an optimistic combination of the eternal problem of life and death arouses thought and discussion.

Among the best shots of the play were the first appearance of Ingalls in the role of Death. Clever make-up and lighting effects gave this shot an emotional power that pulled the breath from the audience. Another extremely well done

DONALD W. REED

REED IS APPOINTED TO ASSIST A. A. A.

Extension Service Worker Will Aid in Milk Mar- keting Agreements

Donald W. Reed, economist for the Extension Service at the University of Maine, has been granted a 90-day leave of absence to assist the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in the development of the milk marketing agreements in the New England area, it was announced today by Arthur L. Deering, director of the Extension Service.

Dean Deering expressed reluctance in losing the services of Mr. Reed. However, he said, that in view of Mr. Reed's thorough knowledge of the dairy situation in the state and his acquaintance with dairymen, he is particularly well fitted to serve Maine's dairy interests.

Harold S. Boardman, president of the University, approved of the release in view of the critical dairy situation facing Maine dairymen and others in the Boston area.

While Mr. Reed's headquarters will be in Washington, it is expected that field work will be done in Maine and adjoining territories. He is responsible to Mr. B. B. Derrick, in charge of trade agreement in the dairy section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Winthrop Libby, Caribou, who is now in the temporary employ of the Extension Service, will be retained until Mr. Reed returns, Mr. Deering announced.

E. F. DOW ATTENDS TAX CONFERENCE, BOWDOIN

Head of History Department U. of M. Delegate to Regional Con- clave, Maine Colleges

Professor E. F. Dow, head of the Department of History at the University, attended a conference on taxation at Bowdoin College last Friday and Saturday which was held under the auspices of the American Political Science Association which sponsors regional conferences in different sections of the country.

The chief topic under discussion was the "Breakdown of the General Property Tax in Maine." State and local officials, faculty members of the four Maine colleges, and interested citizens took part in the discussion which was of an informal nature. Henry Long, commissioner of taxation in Massachusetts, was the principal speaker at the conference and the other speakers included Professor Benson of Harvard, Leo Hinds, of the Portland Board of Assessors, Bertram Packard, commissioner of education in Maine, and Mr. Holley, state assessor of Maine.

Professor Dow stated that he thought the conference was very beneficial since both the representatives of the theoretical side of taxation and those of the practical side were present to express their opinions. Several types of taxation were discussed, and sales and income taxes were under discussion as a means for supplanting the general property tax.

FRESHMEN ALLOWED TO BE IN FRATERNITY BOOTHS

Interfraternity Council Passes Rul- ing at Special Meeting Held to Clear Up Question

Fraternities will be allowed to entertain freshmen and their guests at fraternity booths at the Military Hop tonight according to a decision reached by the Interfraternity Council at a brief meeting held in Rogers Hall Tuesday evening.

The measure, introduced by Kenneth C. Foster, secretary of the Council, and passed with little discussion, reads:

"Freshmen shall be allowed to accept invitations to fraternity booths at formal dances of the University as a whole."

This rule was passed in order to make the situation clear, since it was felt that under the wording of the new rushing system there might be a question as to whether or not the inclusion of freshmen in the fraternity booths would be a violation of the rule.

PARSONS IS NAMED FOOTBALL CAPTAIN

Ernie and Ken Black Picked Co-Captains of Cross Country Team

Closing a brilliant football career in a blaze of glory, Philip S. Parsons was elected honorary captain of the 1933 state championship football team of the University of Maine. The election took place after the letter award assembly held in the Memorial Gymnasium last Wednesday. Kenneth D. Black and Ernest T. Black, Maine's twin stars of cross country and track, were elected co-captains of the University of Maine's state championship cross country team at the same time.

Parsons' election is a climax to a highly successful college career, not only on the athletic field but also in the classroom. In addition to being an All-Maine end for three successive seasons, he is a member of Alpha Zeta, national honorary agricultural fraternity, and his name appears consistently on the Dean's List. He is president of the Senior Skull Society, and has been for the past two years president of the Class of 1934. In his sophomore year he was vice-president of the class. During his junior year he served as a proctor in the freshman dormitory, and he has taken part in several varsity track meets.

His football ability is beyond question, for he was the only player in the Yale Bowl on the day of the history-making Maine-Yale game this year who was not taken off his feet during the game. Only once during the entire season was Phil taken off his feet and that was in the Bates game.

The Black twins have proven their right to the positions of co-captain through their consistently high grade work, not only in cross country but also in track. In his freshman year Ken hung up a new indoor record in the 880 yard run at the University. This year is the first that Ernie has been eligible for varsity competition, since he transferred to Maine from Syracuse last year. His showing, however, in cross country this season has placed him in a front rank position. In his assembly speech last Wednesday, Coach Chester Jenkins paid the Black twins a high compliment in praising their work, not only in their running, but in the spirit which they have instilled into the other members of the team through their constant practice and conscientious efforts to build themselves into the runners that they are.

Wooden Engineers at Princeton Camp Grow Moustaches, Beards and Shiver

By the Campus Roaming Reporter

It's cold in them thar hills, and don't you forget it. By them thar hills I mean the hills of Princeton, Maine, where the U. of M.'s gallant foresters are hiding out, on a nine weeks' vacation. It was Johnny Paul who wrote from the camp that if we on the campus think it's cold here, we should go up there and we would think that Orono was Florida.

Honorary Lieut. Colonel Is To Be Announced At Intermission

Shining sabers, gorgeous gowns, and handsome tuxedos will mingle into a conglomerate whole tonight when Joe Roman and his Pennsylvanians go into action at the annual military ball, which will be held in the new Memorial Gymnasium beginning at nine o'clock and lasting until two.

It will be "the" event of the season, and the feature of the evening will be the announcement of the election of the honorary lieutenant colonel. The nominees upon whose names the persons attending the ball will base their selections are: Ruth Libby, Charlotte Lachance, Dorothy Sawyer, and Agnes Crowley.

One other feature of the evening will be the presence of Adjutant General J. W. Hanson as guest of honor. Adjutant General Hanson has accepted a bid to membership into the local chapter of Scabbard and Blade, and will be initiated prior to the opening of the ball.

Who They Are

Miss Libby, chosen as an All Maine Woman in her sophomore year after having been a member of the Sophomore Eagles, was also a member of the Women's Student Government Council, and of the Maine Outing Club. She is women's news editor of the Campus, and is one of the highest ranking students in the junior class.

How To Vote

For the benefit of those attending the Military Hop tonight: When you enter the gym write the name of your choice for honorary lieutenant colonel on the back of your ticket, but be careful that you do not write it on the check stub, which will be torn off.

Also for the benefit of those attending the hop: The Off-Campus booth will be the sixth one on the left of the entrance door.

She has been active in journalism not only on the Campus board, but also in work on the Freshman during her freshman year and also in work on the 1936 Freshman Handbook. She was chosen a member of Neai Mathetai and of Sigma Mu Sigma, honorary psychology fraternity. She is a member of the Home Economics Club and of the Y.W.C.A., and has won the Sigma Mu Sigma Scholarship and the Elizabeth Abbott Balentine Scholarship.

Miss Sawyer has been active in dramatics since her freshman year, having taken part in the Spanish Club production that year and in several Masque plays since. Last year she was chosen by Earl Carroll for a tie first place with Melba Gifford '34 as the best looking woman in the University.

Miss Lachance has been active in the field of dramatics at the University, having had major parts in several Masque plays and minor parts in others. She has also been active in the work of the French Club. She played the leading role in the Masque production of "Death Takes a Holiday" this week, and was a

Service

The appointment of Donald W. Reed of the University of Maine's Extension Service to an important position with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration brings to the front a phase of the activity of the University that often escapes attention. That phase is the service performed by faculty members primarily, and occasionally by students, for the state and nation, aside from their regular duties at the University.

Examples of this are numerous. Only a little more than a month ago, Professor Maurice D. Jones was granted a leave of absence to serve with the national government. Two years ago Dean Paul Cioke served on a committee appointed by Ex-President Hoover for unemployment relief.

Work of this kind is valuable not only to those who receive its direct benefit, but also to the University, for in doing it the institution is carrying out its functions of service to the state and nation. It might be well if more concrete opportunity for students to serve in various non-University capacities were provided. Not only would the student be helping others, but he would also be educating himself, since such work would logically fall in the line of his major interest at the University.

Our Theatre

The unusually excellent performance of "Death Takes a Holiday" by the Maine Masque two nights this week, again showed the lack of general student appreciation and support of this well worthwhile activity at Maine.

An encouraging fact was that the audience was somewhat larger than those of the past, but the increase was not an increase in the number of students in attendance, but in the number of outsiders.

There are plenty of reasons why the dramatic efforts of the students at Maine deserve support. In the first place the plays are always of the highest type culturally and from the standpoint of interest, and they are invariably well done. In the second place the amount of time and work spent in rehearsals, in the learning of lines, in the collection of "props," in the building of scenery, in the selling of tickets, and in the making arrangements are reasons in themselves for support.

In the third place, Maine this year has a new theatre, designed especially for the productions of the Masque, and in which permanent leather upholstered seats are soon to be installed.

So when the Masque swings into action in the second section of this school year, let's have more students enjoying a good show.

A Mascot

A problem for Maine students to think about is how to get a bear for Maine's mascot. The problem involves several solutions. First the securing of the bear itself, second the raising of sufficient funds to feed and care for him, third housing him, and fourth deciding upon whom would fall the duty of actually caring for him. All these, however, can and ought to be met.

Faculty members sometimes criticize students for failure to attend assemblies, but they have lost ground for their argument, since only five faculty members attended the assembly last week, exclusive of those who were taking part.

Why Know A Foreign Language?

In order that the student body as a whole may have a clear understanding of the recent changes in the College of Arts and Sciences, we are presenting a series of explanatory articles of which this is the fourth.—Ed.

By Dean James Muilenburg

About this time every year the campus resounds with cries about the inadequacies of the ranking system. One need not expand on the shortcomings of grades. They are already recognized by most teachers. If we could only find better ways of evaluating ourselves, all would be serene. There is a lot of hocus-pocus about the book-keeping type of education. Students are not alone in their dissatisfaction with a ranking system. But how after all may our achievement be gauged? How shall we measure the process by which one is being liberally educated?

Of course, this raises a multiplicity of problems which we have relished a thousand times and more. But one of the changes we have initiated this year seems to me to strike in the very direction that we all desire. I mean the new requirement in foreign language. While we shall continue to be concerned with certain language entrance requirements, our only requirement in college is that the student have a reading knowledge in one foreign language. We are not exercised over hours and credits. If a student has succeeded so well in his language study in preparatory school that he can pass the reading test upon entering the university, he is forthwith excused from further work in the field. That occurred this year in the case of several freshmen.

The great advantage of this requirement is obvious. It puts the matter entirely up to the student. I have yet to see the student who has not felt the importance of this at once. His protest against language has always been that it never did anything for him. He forgot it all within an incredibly short time. Ask the senior of this year who has had but one year's work in a language how much he retains of the subject. Do not embarrass him by asking him to read a page of the language in question. But the man who has learned the language sufficiently well to read an ordinary page of prose possesses something. A literature is at his disposal. The sense of power he gains by such competence will encourage him to retain that power and perhaps even to "keep up" with the language by dipping into the literature of his acquired language occasionally.

A second advantage is equally obvious. It supplies a motive that has a drive behind it. One can manage to accumulate ten or any other number of hours more readily than he can acquire real ability to handle the language. The one task he will perform ploddingly, the other energetically. It is not even necessary that this work be done in class. That requirement savors of a former academic era. When we insist that our curriculum is student centered, we mean just that. The touchstone of all our efforts is just this significance for you as human beings. We want you to test our efforts by this. We believe our language requirements are a case where the touchstone applies.

What language a student shall take depends upon so many considerations that it is impossible to raise them here. But the student is at an advantage if he continues the language which he began in preparatory school. It may be well in certain cases to begin a new language if he has had serious difficulty with that language. If a student knows what his major field will be when he enters the university, he should by all means find out what language is most important in his field of major interest. Our Department of Zoology and the Department of Chemistry in the College of Technology require German. Prospective English majors are required to take one year of German. This of course would not be sufficient to satisfy the requirement of reading knowledge. Situations will doubtless arise where Italian or Spanish would prove a wise choice. The point should be clear that if one is to acquire a reading knowledge in a language, he would do well to choose a language which he is likely to need or use in the course of his career.

One word more. People who are majoring in a foreign language would do wisely to support their major subject by another language, preferably one that has a close relationship to it. This was the chief reason why the departments of French and of Spanish and Italian were placed in one Department of Romance Languages. Students majoring in one or the other of these languages would elect work in at least one more language. The Department of English recognizes the importance of related languages by their German requirement. Latin is desirable for any language major, especially majors in the Romance languages. Latin majors should be encouraged to take a year of Greek.

To return to our opening reference to ranks. I wish it were possible for us to devise a way in which we could measure our achievement as we are trying to do in language. That will logically raise the question of examinations and particularly that variety which is another part of our new curriculum, the comprehensive examination.

The Freshman "Y", progressing rapidly on its 1933-34 program, held an interesting meeting Wednesday evening at Maples.

Christmas carols were first sung and then Miss Eliza Clark was introduced by the co-chairman of Freshman "Y", Elizabeth Wilhelm.

Miss Clark, a graduate from Wellsley last June, was a member of the Grenfell Mission to Labrador during the summer of 1932. She explained briefly the history of the Grenfell expeditions and told in her own pleasing manner, many personal incidents of her sojourn there.

The next Freshman "Y" meeting will be held Wednesday, Jan. 3, at which time Freshman officers of "Y" will be elected.

A group of Y.W. girls interested in social service will prepare a dinner at the Wesley House in Orono on Thursday, December 14, for four Orono girls of grammar school age. This is the preliminary to a shopping expedition to Bangor where suitable winter clothing will be purchased for these girls.

GLEN GRAY TO START NEW SERIES OF BROADCASTS

Glen Gray and his original Casa Loma Orchestra, a sensation among college crowds during the last three seasons, takes to the air next Thursday, December 7th, at 10 P.M. E.S.T., using an 83 station hook-up over the WABC-Columbia network for Camel cigarettes. The new program is known as the Camel Caravan, and will continue every Tuesday and Thursday at the same hour.

The Casa Loma Orchestra holds the record for the number of college dances for which it has furnished synopated rhythms. It has five times broken the Princeton tradition that dance orchestras appear on the campus only once.

Among the 70 or more universities and colleges where the Casa Loma Orchestra has played are Yale, Penn, Penn State, Ohio State, Ohio, Cornell, Amherst, Michigan, Vassar, Lehigh, Colgate, Williams, Lafayette, Hamilton, Syracuse, and Boston.

Featured with the Casa Loma Orchestra on the "Camel Caravan" will be the songs of Irene Taylor, the girl with the most vivid radio personality on the air today, and the harmonies of that engaging trio the Do-Re-Mi Girls.

Members of Neai Mathetai met with freshman girls receiving an average of 2.5 or above, Tuesday evening, December 5, at 8 o'clock in the faculty rooms in South Stevens.

Professor Huddilston explained the meaning of scholarship and the purpose of Neai Mathetai. Following this, Martha Tuomi spoke about Phi Beta Kappa, Eva Bisby about Phi Kappa Phi, and Beatrice Cummings about Omicron Nu.

February 23 is the date set for this year's Vodvil Nite, which will be held in the new Memorial Gymnasium. According to Clifford Ladd, who will be in charge of the affair again this year, plans are already under way for an evening of entertainment that will be distinctly new and different from any Vodvil Nite Maine has even seen.

The MAINE CAMPUS

GEORGE HAINES, according to Old Lady Rumor has presented a diamond to a home-town girl up in Fort Fairfield, named Adelaide Burke.... Betty Wilhelm and Betty Crowley were very busily engaged in the manufacture of fudge at the Cabin one night recently, but the fudge wasn't quite, because the two Betty Co-eds, instead of adding brown sugar to the mixture, added mustard.... Better try boiling eggs next time.... Inmates of North Hall report that Howard (Soap) Stevens has hung around there so much that as a home-ec major he would probably be a Dean's List man.... When one of the newer inmates made a mistake in the process of dressing little Ann Carol, Stevey pointed out the mistake, and showed said inmate how to do the job correctly.... Wedding bells seem to be breaking up that old gang of Henry McCusker's.... Portsmouth never was as far from Orono as the map shows.... It's a long story, but the other night, Monday to be exact, when the S.A.E. initiates were being given their little military drill, two co-eds passed on their way to ye olde river bank for ye olde dragge on ye olde cigarette.... So the captain of the guard called for the initiate army to capture the two, who by that time had passed the house.... The humor of the situation shows up when we learn that they chased two co-eds, and captured a dozen, who were brought back to the S.A.E. porch, where they were entertained.... Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Thelma Davidson is asked to notify Ed Backer at once.... Helen Thompson gets the prize onion for the stag dance racket of convincing one man to pay her way in, and then leaving him flat to walk home with another.... It is said that lolly-pops are being served at the Phi Eta house.... And the observation powers of the ordinary co-ed stood the usual test the other day when a class of co-eds got a cut on the second floor of the South Wing of Stevens, and passed a small fire in the hall without noticing it.... A fairly large amount of the well known rubbish had collected in one of the tomato can ash trays, and caught fire.... Some of the members of one of the English Literature Classes recently learned that a Spencer is not a brand of corset, but is a pull-over sweater.... Ben Caswell is reported to have made the claim that there is nothing he can't teach a woman.... We'd be tempted to say that if he is human he can probably teach a woman things he didn't know he knew.... But even at that his statement is rather challenging to the average Maine co-ed.... And with everybody by this time hurrying wildly about for that stray stud or the room-mate's silk gloves for ye olde military balle tonight, it promises to be an affair that will provide much meat for this space in the beginning of the year, 1934.... Some of the kissing scenes in the Masque play seemed to lack that certain something that most of those on the screen and behind the library pillars have.... Three of Maine's co-eds wouldn't confess that the big coon-skin covered lads they were out with Saturday night in the big Pierce-Arrow were Dartmouth men, but we can spot a Dartmouth man anywhere, so come on Wormwood, Saunders, Inc.... Fess up.... And we nominate for our roll of honor this week everyone who had a hand in the production of "Death Takes a Holiday."

Professor William J. Sweetser will be in New York City from the 4th to the 8th of December at a meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Don Murphy '35 is suffering from a sprained ankle received Monday, which forced him to use crutches for several days.

The twentieth annual state 4-H contest will be held this year at the University of Maine on December 28, 29, and 30. The program will include a reception, an evening of games and stunts, a meeting of the Maine State Association of 4-H Club leaders, a tour of the campus, a banquet, and the final assembly at which the state champions will be announced and prizes awarded.

Balentine Opens Wide Its Doors to Frosh At Bountiful Thanksgiving Dinner Thursday

Having left their verdant ties and dressed in their Sunday best, dormitory men who were unable to be with their families on Thanksgiving Day spent the first holiday of the year at Balentine when one hundred boys from Hannibal Hamlin and Oak Halls were entertained there.

Dinner was served at one, after an hour of dancing in the South parlor. The dining room was filled to capacity. At tables accommodating eight students each, Balentine, Colvin, and Maples girls ate with their brothers, boy friends, and fellow students. In many cases this was the first time in their college careers that the boys had been in the Balentine dining room, except for fraternity initiations. The student body joined in singing the Doxology, the men's voices resounding strangely in the girls' dining hall.

Conversation became fluent as soon as the turkey had disappeared. By the time the fruit course was served, the boys were sufficiently at home for pre-season practice in baseball, pitching first grapes, then oranges. There were no casualties. Cigarette smoke filled the room for the first time in many years; speeches were demanded, but the speakers refused to speak.

When the group left the dining room there was dancing again in the South parlor. Those boys who did not dance found other interesting diversions. Miss Ring was surprised to find some of them sitting reading, in the matron's room in South Balentine. Others carefully removed name plates from doors on first floor corridor, and added caustic comments to the fire drill regulations.

Balentine held open house for freshmen all afternoon and evening. Freshmen came and went; people danced and turned over victrola records and danced some more. At ten, when the gong sounded, the last freshman left Balentine at the end of their first Thanksgiving day away from home admitting a secret ambition in their hearts—to win the track meet and have their rules removed.

Charles E. Crossland, alumni secretary at the University, is on a week's trip to New York City, Philadelphia, and Baltimore to attend the meetings of alumni associations in those cities. Mr. Crossland will be back on campus on Monday of next week.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES

TO BE THE CHAMPION TRAP SHOOTER

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

WALTER BEAVER, holder of the coveted Grand American Handicap, says:

"Winning a trap-shooting championship is partly a matter of luck, partly the result of practice and partly healthy nerves. I'm a steady smoker. People kid me about it at the tournaments. They say I never have a cigarette out of my mouth. During all these years I've been smoking Camels, not only because I like their taste and their mildness, but also because they never jangle my nerves."

It's no fun to feel that your nerves are ragged—and to wonder why. Check up on your eating...your sleep...your cigarettes. Switch to Camels. Your nerves and your taste will tell you that Camels are a more likable cigarette—and that they don't upset your nerves.

On certain mountains in the Near East is a limited collar of earth—called in Turkish, "Yacca." Tobaccos grown there cost as high as $1.00 a pound. Carefully they are examined, leaf by leaf. Often it takes a man a whole day to select two pounds of certain of these fine tobaccos. Lucky Strike is the world's biggest user of fine Turkish tobaccos. For these tender, delicate Turkish leaves are blended with choice tobaccos from our own Southland—to make your Lucky Strike a cigarette that is fully packed—round and firm—free from loose ends. Christmas Handicap Meet In Indoor Field Tomorrow

Coach Expects New Talent Will Show Up; Many Freshmen Are Expected To Be Outstanding

In order that track coach Chester Jenkins may determine the prospective candidates for the varsity and freshman squads, the Intramural Athletic Association will sponsor its annual Christmas Handicap meet in the indoor field tomorrow. Medals will be awarded to the first three place winners.

Attempting to carry out the purpose of the event, members of the varsity squad who have shown themselves to be particularly outstanding will not compete.

In the dashes, Don Huff and Clyde Higgins have both shown up well in practice and in the freshman-sophomore clash last week. Huff starred on the 1936 yearling aggregation; Higgins was an outstanding member of the 1935 squad.

Jack Gatti, frosh quarter miler, is picked to win this event, having covered the distance in 52 4-5 seconds in the dual meet last Saturday. Gatti starred in the 440 while at Bridgton, having won the state school championship last year. O'Connor and Pronovost are promising candidates for the varsity.

Bill Hunnewell, national freshman cross country champion, and Larry Osgood, stellar runner from Lee Academy, are leading middle and long distance men. Both Hunnewell and Osgood placed first in the events they entered in the annual attempt of the freshmen to rid themselves of rules.

If the results of the freshman-sophomore meet are any indication of ability, then Galen Eaton '36, has shown himself to be a promising pole vaulter and high jumper. Eaton won the high jump and tied for first with Frank Gross in the pole vault. However, he will be ineligible to compete for the varsity this year, being a transfer from Northeastern University.

In the hammer throw, George Frame and Art Roberts are leading contenders for varsity berths. In practice, Frame has thrown the thirty-five pound missile about fifty feet. On the yearling squad "Red" Swab turned in a good performance last week. These men, along with Jack Thompson, sophomore weight man, have also shown up well in the discus.

Myron Collette is the outstanding shot putter for the varsity this year, the graduation of Alton Alley having left a large gap in that event.

MAINE WILL MEET DARTMOUTH IN 1934

Curtis Announces Schedule Has Four Home Games. Rhode Island Opener

For the third year in succession the University of Maine students will be able to see their team in action on four different Saturdays on their home field. The 1934 schedule which was released recently shows that Maine is playing only one new team next fall; that game will be with Dartmouth at Hanover, New Hampshire. The 1935 schedule will also have four home games according to T. S. Curtis, faculty manager of athletics. This makes the fifth year out of the last six that Maine football fans are able to watch their favorites in action for the greater part of the season on the home gridiron. The complete 1934 schedule follows:

Sept. 29	Rhode Island	Orono
Oct. 6	Lowell Textile	Orono
Oct. 13	Dartmouth	Hanover

CURTIS IS WAITING FOR SNOW TO START WINTER SPORTS JOB

Graduation Has Taken Many Stars from Team. Lew Hardison Is Strong

The lack of veteran varsity material isn't worrying Coach Ted Curtis of the University of Maine Winter Sports team half so much right now as the lack of that white, fluffy element which with its cold, sombre drifts transforms autumn into winter, and makes the janitor daily shovel deeper into the old coal bin.

In fact, if Curtis is to send a contender to the Lake Placid Winter Sports Meet in January he needs and must have snow. If it drifts so high and blows so cold that Orono will look like Labrador, he won't be at all disappointed. All the more opportunity to get in a much needed practice session.

For last year, Curtis and his Snowbirds waited until far into the spring for the snow which never came. Like some weary Mohammedan praying for rain, two dozen husky snow warriors would daily scowl at the sky and call aloud for the provident snow.

It was March before the State Meet, which was to have been held at Orono, was finally called off. And with it, a sturdy, rugged Snowbird squad had to content themselves without a 1933 defense of their State crown. Four seniors graduated without that which they wanted most of all—a final, lasting victory over Bates and Bowdoin.

And with the Senior Class of 1933 went Sorenson, Ashton, Ashworth, and Elliott, all men who had won their spurs by outstanding accomplishments in the intercollegiate meets of their pre-graduation days. Don Green and Horace Drummond likewise failed to return to college this fall.

So now, Coach Curtis is faced with the problem of building his team around a mere handful of veterans that are left. Prince, a sophomore snowshoer, Lew Hardison, a senior, Phil Parsons, Milton Owen, Karl Hendrickson, and Sam Favor, with a galaxy of lesser known talent will furnish the outline of the team.

In Hardison, who has shown intercollegiate ability in snowshoes, Curtis will attempt to create a skier to take the place of the absent Sorenson and Green. Sam Favor will do some jumping, while the slalom, down hill, and long distance skiing will be divided among the other of the squad.

Parsons has shown ability in the snowshoe dashes and his teammates, Prince and Hardison, have proved their worth in the long distance snowshoe hikes. Curtis is right now looking for a suitable skater.

So it seems that all the Winter Sports mentor needs now is a good big snow storm.

Roger Hefler spent the past week-end visiting in Jonesport.

SPORTS SPIELS

By BOB BERG

The possibility of having varsity basketball back at Maine has aroused a great deal of interest among the student body and court fans throughout the state. Last week, Ted Curtis publicly announced that Maine would be willing to sponsor a varsity hoop team provided one other college in the state also took up the sport.

As yet, the only college heard from concerning its attitude towards adopting the popular indoor sport was Colby and sad to relate, the athletic moguls at Waterville are against the plan on account of financial reasons. Bowdoin and Bates are still to be heard from. Bates almost adopted basketball last year after the students had raised quite a cry for the court game. Bowdoin has come out with the statement that it would consider the question.

"Bud" Cornish, sports editor of the Portland Press Herald, and an anonymous scribe writing a column for the Lewiston Sun have taken sides with the University of Maine and are urging the other Maine institutions to engage in varsity basketball. Both reporters believe that the sport would be a paying one since it has proven to be the most popular of all winter sports in the Pine Tree state as attested by the crowds at high school games and tournaments.

Of course, probably the chief objection which might come from both Bates and Bowdoin would be that hockey is played at these two schools and it takes place during the same season as basketball and naturally a considerable number of athletes would give up hockey for basketball. All right and good, but it is quite certain that hockey is not a paying sport.

For instance, here is what the Lewiston Sun has to say about Bates playing hockey, "We appreciate the fact that Bates is laying out lots of dough on their new baseball field. The local college didn't make any too much money on two home football games this year either. Now they intend to hook up with Colby and Bowdoin and lose some more money on hockey."

The writer goes on to say that most of the hockey games played are postponed and very few fans outside of the students attend the college games. "There's no money in hockey and the colleges ought to realize it by now."

There was some rumor spread about that a basketball quintet from Bowdoin had challenged a Maine team to play an informal game. However, this cannot be brought about because according to Ted Curtis, the athletic board of Maine will not allow a group of students to represent the University in a game with Bowdoin or any other college unless the sport is recognized as a varsity one by both colleges.

From what sources we've learned, it would seem that Bowdoin is very seriously considering making basketball a varsity sport. The student body, it has been learned, is entirely in favor of such a move. Concerning Bates, a wall has come up as to why the college wants such an up-to-date gymnasium as it has, if it does not intend to have basketball.

SOPHS BEAT FROSH TO KEEP RULES ON BY WEIGHT POWER

Class of 1937 Shows Promise For Running; Hunnewell Is High Scorer

Supremacy in the weight and field events after they had been defeated in all of the longer runs, gave the sophomores a 78-57 victory in the Freshman-Sophomore track meet, Saturday.

At the heels of the tall, dark haired Bill Hunnewell, cross country sensation, freshman runners paraded to a startling lead in the 440, 880, mile, and mile and a half running events. The sophomores had earlier scored 30 out of a possible 36 points in the shot put, hammer, javelin, and discus.

Hunnewell, who not so long ago decided to take up track as a pastime, won victories in both the mile and the 880 and then waited for his teammates, Bob Corbett and Larry Osgood, at the finish of the mile and a half race for a triple tie.

Behind the freshman star in score were Collette, Eaton, Huff, and Roberts with ten points each. Swab, the only freshman to score in the weights, had nine points.

The summary:
100 Yard Dash—Won by Huff '36; second, Higgins '36; third, Perkins '37. Time, 10 2-5 seconds.

PRISM PHOTOS ARE NEARING WORK'S END

1935 Yearbook Will Contain Pictures of All Campus Buildings

The Prism photographers are rapidly nearing the end of their work for the 1935 yearbook. Photographs of nearly all of the students and faculty members have been secured, and all organizations on campus will have been recognized with pictures and write-ups before the year is out. Photos of all the buildings on campus will also appear in the Prism this year.

Among the features of the yearbook which will appear next May are several full page two color shots of campus views, a bigger and better sports section with more pictures than ever before, and a radically distinctive art theme. The Prism will also feature a page of composite photographs made up from photos of the best looking men and women on campus. Social and dramatic highlights of the year will be included, photographically and otherwise. The yearbook will cover all phases of campus life for the school year.

member of the Women's Athletic Association Council.

Miss Crowley, now serving her third successive year as secretary of the Class of 1935, had an important role in the Maine Masque's first offering of the season, "Counselor-at-Law." She was active last year in the Sophomore Eagle Society, and this year is a member of the Sister Council. For two years she has been captain of the Class of 1935 hockey team. In addition she has played basketball and been a member of the Women's Athletic Association Council for two years. She is a member of the Spanish Club, the Y.W.C.A., and the Intercollegiate Debating Team.

Tickets on Term Bill

An announcement made this week by Ardon C. Mercier, chairman of the Scabbard and Blade committee in charge of tonight's gala affair, states that the charge for admission may be placed on the next term bill, thereby making it possible for more persons to attend the ball.

The members of the committee in charge are Ardon C. Mercier, chairman, Leonard R. Hunt, Dana McNally, Charles Sinclair, and George Warren.

Orchestra Outstanding

The orchestra itself is a feature of the ball, even were it not for the anxiety surrounding the choice of honorary lieutenant colonel. Joe Roman and his Original Pennsylvanians have been featured on the radio over stations WEAJ of New York and WLW of Cincinnati. They have played in the leading Keith's vaudeville circuits throughout the nation, and have been featured at many collegiate functions.

The orchestra tonight will be situated directly at the back of the gymnasium, and will be equipped with microphone and amplifiers for specialty numbers.

Intermission Specialties

At intermission there will be several features to attract the attention of the crowd of gaily betuxed and begowned lads and lassies. Not only will the announcement of the choice of honorary lieutenant colonel be made, but also refreshments of the highest order will be served by waiters, fitted out with the conventional waiter's costumes. In addition the newly initiated members of Scabbard and Blade will be awarded service bars, badges of membership in Maine's honorary military fraternity.

The boundaries of the fraternity booths this year will be the backs of chairs and divans. There will be no fences as in days of yore. Each fraternity will have a space allotted to it on the floor, and on this space will be arranged its booth.

Patrons and Patronesses

The patrons and patronesses for this, the outstanding social event of the fall season, will be: President and Mrs. Harold S. Boardman, Dean and Mrs. James N. Hart, Dean and Mrs. Paul Cloke, Dean and Mrs. James Meilenburg, Dean and Mrs. Arthur L. Deering, Dean and Mrs. Lamert S. Corbett, Major and Mrs. Edward J. Oliver, Major and Mrs. Sidney S. Eberle, Captain and Mrs. Loren P. Stewart, Captain and Mrs. Hugh Wear, Treasurer and Mrs. Frederick S. Youngs, and Professor and Mrs. George W. Small.

Mince Pie Gives Frisky Bush Tail Real Job and Enjoyment

Delectable mince pie was enjoyed by the campus pet, Sciuridae Eutamias, served in the elm tree 'neath the Campus office window Tuesday afternoon. Mince pie, according to authorities, is the latest fad in squirrel diatetics, and little Sciuridae had trouble keeping the pie in his dukes. Many reporters and what-nots in the office strolled to the window to take a gander at the little gray rodent with the bushy tail.

of those, and in the second place it is so cold up there that bed is the only warm place in the camp. Bob Leadbetter even has his dog along, and the hound sleeps on the foot of Bob's bunk, thereby keeping Bob's feet warm.

Well, we're paying the boys a visit, so let's not bother to knock at the door. They never lock it when they're all there, so we'll walk right in, and listen to the beautiful chords struck by the snores of the husky and stalwart youths from the University of Maine. Don't pay any attention to Mal Goodwin's talking in his sleep, but just trot over to Johnny Quinn's bunk and say "I move we adjourn."

In less time than somewhat, Johnny is awake, and telling us what's going on, and to look at Johnny in the dark of the cabin, only slightly alleviated by the moonlight on the snow outside, at first makes our hair begin to stand right up, and then pushes from our frozen lungs a loud laugh. Yes, Johnny Quinn looks quite satanic, because he has shaved off a heavy beard and now has a very swanky moustache, and a little goatee, which is very becoming to our Student Senate president.

Let's not wake Professor Ashman because sleep is a mighty comfortable thing, but let's trot down to the Ritz. Here we find among others, Don Favor and Norm Gray, both of whom become quite talkative, and tell us that one of the most disagreeable jobs in the camp is jumping out of their warm bunks and lighting the fire in the stove to warm up the cabin, even before the sun is up.

By the way, Reid Sidelinger, Maine's champion beard grower of last year, is using a razor this year and not competing in any tonsorial adornment contest.

And now about the daily life of the boys. They get up at the call of the cookee, who yells in a clear and loud voice at six o'clock "Roo-ooo-oooo-llllll Out." After a breakfast of the most appetizing and stomach-filling kind the bunch hikes six miles into the woods to work, carrying in addition to their axes, a lunch. After a day of work in the woods, they hike back to camp, sit around the fire awhile, and then pile into bed again.

One of their first jobs on arriving at camp was to lay in a supply of wood for the winter, and the backs of the cabins (on the outside, of course) are piled high with enough wood to last until they return to the campus at the end of January.

But, let's scam now, and let the boys go back to their slumbers, for in the morning they have to go into action again, and they will need all the sleep they can get.

Dr. Flewelling Gives 2nd In Series of Readings

Dr. Flewelling, of the English department, gave readings from Robert Frost, Wednesday afternoon at South Wing of Stevens Hall. The poems had a familiar, New England flavor, that is typical of Frost. Into the calm reflection of the New England countryside, "The Witch of Coös" brought the element of witchcraft. Pathos crept into "The Death of the Hired Man." "The Road Not Taken," as well as several shorter poems, were also included.

scene was that early in the second act when Ingalls in the role of Prince Sirki and Willey in the role of Baron Cesarea carried on a clever and witty dialogue with the punch provided by Ingalls' double-edged answers to Willey's questions. The last scene of the play, in which Death lures Grazia, played by Charlotte Lachance, to go with him was also very well done.

Throughout the play only one scene was used, and credit to the stage managers of the Masque must be given for the excellence of the set, a modernistic one, which added greatly to the atmosphere of the play, and helped to arouse the audience emotionally.

The cast:

Cora, Hope Wing; Fedele, Lionel Desjardins; Duke Lambert, Richard Wooster; Alda, Ruth Kimball; Duchess Stephanie, Ruth Walenta; Princess of San Luca, Alice Sisco; Baron Cesarea, John Willey; Rhoda Fenton, Kitta Davis; Eric Fenton, Howard Stagg; Carrado, Robert Morris; Grazia, Charlotte Lachance; Prince Sirki, Elston Ingalls; and Major Whitread, Paul Langlois.

Leonard Gaetz '37 visited friends in Boston over the week-end.

3 about Cigarettes

Not so long ago practically all cigarettes were made by hand

Now, Chesterfields are made by high-speed machines that turn out 750 cigarettes a minute, and the cigarettes are practically not touched by hand.

BY the use of long steel ovens—drying machines of the most modern type—and by aging the leaf tobacco for 30 months—like wine is aged—Chesterfield tobacco is milder and tastes better.

Only pure cigarette paper—the best made—is used for Chesterfield.

And to make sure that everything that goes into Chesterfield is just right, expert chemists test all materials that are used in any way in the manufacture.

Chesterfields are made and packed in clean, up-to-date factories, where the air is changed every 4½ minutes. The moisture-proof package, wrapped in Du Pont's No. 300 Cellophane—the best made—reaches you just as if you went by the factory door.

In a letter to us, an eminent scientist says:
"Chesterfield Cigarettes are just as pure as the water you drink."
