

PRESIDENT EMPHASIZES
FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES
IN ADDRESS TO ALUMNIUrges Careful Thought
Before Passage of
New Tax Bill

Some of the problems which face the University of Maine, a discussion of the work which the University is attempting to do, and the effects of drastic reductions at this time, were discussed by President H. S. Boardman at a meeting of the Augusta Alumni Association, at the Hotel North in Augusta Tuesday evening.

The meeting was held in order that the 241 graduates and former-students of the University living in and near Augusta might know how the University is progressing and some of the problems which present conditions are forcing on it.

Alumni Secretary Crossland presided at the meeting and President Boardman was the principal speaker.

Emphasizing the fact that the staff of the University had never been paid the average for the country and that this fact had made hard the work of building the effective administration of the institution, Dr. Boardman pointed out some of the things which will be necessary if a material reduction in state support results from the present meeting of the legislature.

Excerpts from the President's address:

"The fall of 1921 saw over half a million young men and women entering the colleges and universities of our country. Of this number 175,000 were in Land-Grant Colleges. Ten years later both of these figures had more than doubled. In 1920 there were over 35 million young people in the United States between the ages of 5 and 20 and 65 per cent of this number were in the public schools. Ten years later there were over 38 million between the same ages and 70 per cent were going to school. Twenty-one out of each hundred of the population were in school. What will happen if, due to the present depression, drastic cuts are made, thus greatly lessening educational opportunities? It is a serious problem which confronts us. A break in the continuity of such opportunities means a serious handicap for the present generation of young people. They cannot wait. Each passing year which is barren of opportunity means a year lost for them."

"One is struck by the ultra-conservatism in some sections of the country and the liberal tendencies in others. Also by the many problems in education and finance in evidence, some of which may well take their place in the calendar of the present day. We are likely to feel that our problems are new and while we admit our predecessors had them to solve, we sometimes think that they were different and that the solutions under former conditions were probably much easier."

"Success in business is much more easily measured than the success of an educational institution. In measuring the former there are very tangible assets and liabilities, and in general the greater the assets over the liabilities the more successful is the business. The educational values of an institution cannot be measured directly in dollars and cents or from any system of bookkeeping which has ever been devised. Therefore, when the question is asked, 'Are you progressing educationally and, if so, how rapidly?' many factors must be taken into consideration in order to answer. The product of an educational institution consists of the students who pass through its doors. The quality of the product depends in a large degree upon the kind and amount of training."

Joel Marsh, Miler, Injures
Knee in Ski Jump Accident

Joel Marsh, of Scarsdale, N. Y., came to grief on his first ski jump attempt, Sunday, and now Coach Chester A. Jenkins is frantically juggling his University of Maine varsity relay squad to find a substitute for the sophomore veteran.

Without the knowledge of either Winter Sports Coach Ted Curtis or Jenkins, Marsh ascended to the top of the Stillwater jump, slid down the icy ways, flew off into the air, and landed in a tangled heap, his right knee bending under the weight of his body. A physician later diagnosed water-on-the-knee, and announced that the speedy miler would be useless to the team for the remainder of the indoor season.

THIRTY LIONS IN FILM
COMING TO BANGOR

Thirty lions were used for one scene, the great thrill moment in the Coliseum, in Cecil B. DeMille's spectacle, "The Sign of the Cross," which, with Fredric March, Elissa Landi, Claudette Colbert, and Charles Laughton, comes Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week to the Opera House in Bangor. It is said to be the first time this number of lions has ever been used for one scene of a moving picture.

URGES CAUTION

PRESIDENT H. S. BOARDMAN

SENATE COMMITTEE
TO PLAN LOAN FUNDWill Draw Up Plan For Drive
And Present It At Next
Senate Meeting

A committee to draw up a plan for the raising of funds to add to the Student Loan Fund of last year was appointed by President John Wilson of the Student Senate at its meeting held in Rogers Hall Tuesday evening. This committee, consisting of James E. DeCourcy, chairman, Stephen A. Barry, and Lawrence J. O'Connell, will look into the situation regarding the possibilities of raising money and the need of money for student loans at the present time. It will then report back to the Student Senate at its next meeting.

Last year's Student Senate raised a fund of over $1000 at a time when it was able to fill an urgent need in assisting numerous students, some of whom would probably not have been able to complete their requirements for graduation without the loan. It is hoped that this year's Senate will be able to be of the same kind of service.

Wrestlers Will See Action

Coach Sam Reese's matmen will go into action for the first time tonight when they grapple with members of the Eastern Maine Conference Seminary wrestling team in Alumni Gymnasium at 6:45 P.M. The Pale Blue mentor will probably compete in one of the twelve matches already arranged. Those competing in the contest will be J. Adams '36, D. Boone '35, R. Captain '35, H. Copeland '36, R. Copeland '35, A. Fitch '35, L. Graves '33, Gray '35, G. Soule '35, W. Otis '35, and P. Whitaker '35.

INTRAMURAL BALL
NEXT TUESDAY TO BE SEASON'S BESTQueen of the Ball Will Be Chosen; Nate Gold To Provide Music

Society will blossom forth once again on Tuesday night of next week, when the annual Mid-Winter Ball will be held in Alumni Gym under the auspices of the Intramural Athletic Association. The shining feature of the ball this year will be the choosing of a queen of the ball from among the girls present. This will be done by a secret committee chosen by the committee in charge of the ball, though it was earlier announced that a vote of the student body and later a vote of those present at the ball would be taken.

Stepping in when a depression is very much in evidence the committee in charge of the ball has urged and still urges those attending not to indulge in corsages, since they are an unnecessary expense.

Nate Gold and his Commanders have been selected as the orchestra for the affair, according to an announcement made last week by Jack Leddy '34, chairman of the committee in charge. This orchestra is considered one of the best dance bands in New England, and has made an enviable reputation for itself on the campuses of other Eastern colleges.

The patrons of the ball will be: President and Mrs. Harold S. Boardman, Dean and Mrs. James N. Hart, and Treasurer and Mrs. Frederick S. Youngs. The chaperons will be Professor and Mrs. Stanley M. Wallace, and Mr. and Mrs. William Kenyon.

Tickets may be procured from John Wilson, Mun Romansky, Fred Bendtsen, Jack Leddy, John Doyle, Rodney Noyes, Allan Hamilton, Gil Richardson, John Vinskus, Elwin Moulton, Russ Shaw, Don Corbett, Fred Burk, G. Robertshaw, or Swank Osgood.

Bates Confronts
Maine in Debate

The Junior Varsity debating team of the University of Maine met a like team from Bates Monday evening in a non-decision debate over radio station WLBZ, Bangor.

The Maine speakers, Carl Hendrickson and Alfred Gordon, who replaced Max Fitch who was unable to participate because of illness, upheld the negative of the proposition, Resolved: that one-half of local and state revenue should be derived from sources other than tangible property. The Bates speakers were Carleton Mabey and Wendell May.

The next scheduled debate will take place Friday, February 24, against the University of New Hampshire. David Brown and Ralph Copeland, the Maine representatives, will argue the affirmative of the question, Resolved: that the United States should not agree to the cancellation of all inter-Allied war debts.

The debate against New York University will take place on March 14, rather than February 14, the date erroneously announced in last week's Campus.

Social activity, begun on Tuesday night of next week with the Intramural Ball, will continue on Wednesday afternoon when at 2:30 o'clock, Phi Sigma, honorary biology fraternity, will hold a tea-dance in Alumni Hall. Smith Ames and his Isle O'Blues Orchestra will furnish the music for the affair, and Dr. F. H. Steinmetz and Assistant Professor Fay Hyland will be the chaperons.

Admission to the dance will be 40¢.

Intramural A.A. Serves Maine
By Providing Athletic Events

Tuesday evening is the date for the Mid-winter Ball, sponsored annually by the Intramural Athletic Association. Already co-eds have begun to wonder what the other girl will wear, and every student is speculating upon the selection of the queen. Little thought is being given, however, to the organization which provides the campus with one of the outstanding social events of the year.

The Intramural Association was organized in the fall of 1920 with the purpose of stimulating interest in sports for men who are not varsity material. Intramural sports are as a rule carried on by the college or university, and the University of Maine association is unique in that it conducts all such activities on the Maine campus with practically no cost

AS LAMBDA CHI ALPHA HEADS LIST WITH 22PROF. JOSHI SPEAKS
ON GHANDI'S WORK
IN INDIAN STATEExplains Meaning of Movement Which Indian Leader
Is Heading

Professor Sunder L. Joshi, head of the department of Comparative Religion and Indian Philosophy at Dartmouth College, was the speaker in Assembly last Friday, his topic being Mahatma Ghandi.

Mahatma Ghandi is the spokesman of the new spirit in India. Prof. Joshi told his audience, a spirit which arose in various countries as a by-product of the World War. Ghandi is responsible for the revival of the idealism of the religious spirit in India. He has taken the religious traditions of the past very seriously and endeavors to apply them to all human relations, thus creating much misunderstanding between India and Great Britain.

The religious spirit of India is embodied in three interesting words from the Sanskrit language. According to Ghandi an understanding of the divine in man is the main purpose of religion. The two great ideals of India are: "Thou shalt have no selfish desires," and "Thou shalt not do thy work with any desires as to the results of the work." Man's freedom must not be interfered with by orders from anyone including God.

One of the Sanskrit words means abstinence from taking life, an attitude of harmlessness to any human being. The idea of kinship with the lowest of animals is much emphasized in Ghandi's doctrine. He believes also that the best way to settle arguments is by getting together, and he emphasizes this method as more important than warfare.

Another of the words embodying India's religious spirit means wholehearted devotion to the ideal of truth, the great weapon of man against difficulties and problems.

Ghandi believes, said Prof. Joshi, that the true worth of life is not to be measured by the accumulation of wealth and his spirit of utter self-denunciation has made a great impression on the world.

Little Appointed To Navy Academy

Henry P. Little '36 was appointed principal to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis this week by Senator Wallace H. White of Maine. He had previously been appointed third alternate by Senator Hale, at the time when Karl N. Hendrickson '36 was named second alternate. Little will now take the entrance examinations, mental and physical, and if successful will enter the Academy this summer. He took the competitive examination given by the Civil Service Commission last month, and it was on the result of that examination that he was appointed. The entrance examinations will be given on April 19.

Little is business manager of "The Freshman," a member of the band, and was a member of the freshman cross-country squad last fall. He is the son of Leslie E. Little of the Class of 1904, lives in Augusta, and is a student in the College of Technology. Last night he was pledged to Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

It's all over now, hands have been shaken, grins have been exchanged, and the little mysterious looking pins have been securely fastened to lapels. The unofficial list of pledges gathered last night by the Campus shows that 214 freshmen were pledged by sixteen fraternities last night, a total of 39 more than pledged last year at the same time. Lambda Chi Alpha heads the unofficial list with twenty-two, while Kappa Sigma and Phi Mu Delta are second with nineteen men each. For the first time an official list of pledges will be gathered by the secretary of the Interfraternity Council, according to a ruling of the Council.

The unofficial lists follows.

Of Season With 42-17 Win
Over Prep School

Jumping into the lead with the opening gun, the Freshman A basketball team coasted along to its eighth straight victory as it buried a gamely fighting Ricker C. I. quintet under a 42-17 score at the Armory Tuesday night.

Starting off with an 8-2 lead in the first quarter, the frosh hoopsters added nine more points to their score before the half ended to make the count 17-10. With two Ricker men forced out of the line-up in the second half, Woodbury, Johnstone, and Doherty began to sink shots from all angles, adding twenty-five more points to the Maine score, while the best that the prep school boys could do was to collect two baskets and three foul shots.

Each team put on an excellent exhibition of foul shooting, with the freshmen converting eight out of eleven free tries, and Ricker making good seven out of eleven. Harold Woodbury was high scorer for the frosh team for the seventh time this year as he sank six baskets and five charity shots.

The No Tuition Bill

A bill, which at first glance might appear to be a boon to education in the State of Maine, was introduced in the State Legislature on Tuesday of last week, when Representative Leathers of Hermon proposed a measure to abolish tuition at the University of Maine to residents of the state. Free education is certainly a goal toward which to work, but if the proposed bill were passed the University would be unable to continue its existence, because the bill does not provide for a new source of income to replace the tuition.

Even if this bill does not pass, the University will operate next year on a budget reduced by $251,000, caused first by a $61,000 reduction in the income from the mill tax because of the revaluation of the land of the state, secondly by a decrease in the University's appropriation of $150,000, and thirdly by a miscellaneous decrease of $40,000.

Tuition brings in annually about $230,000 to the University, a small sum in comparison to the running costs of the institution. With the decrease of $251,000 mentioned above an added decrease in the University's income of $230,000 caused by cutting out the tuition would mean a total decrease of $481,000, nearly half a million dollars, with which to operate the University next year.

The total income from the mill tax for the present college year amounted to $757,289. When $251,000 is cut from that amount it will leave a total income from the state of $506,289. When we realize that the cost of educational and administrative salaries alone amounts to $600,000, it is obvious that the passage of the proposed bill with an additional loss of $230,000 from tuition would mean ruin to the University.

It is natural for the citizens of the state to go to their largest items of expense when they want to cut appropriations in order to balance the budget. One of Maine's three largest expenses is the University, so unfortunately, the finances of the institution are in danger when the people begin looking for a place to save.

An intelligent State Legislature, however, upon serious consideration of Representative Leathers' bill with regard to the effect it would have upon the University and on the state, will in all probability defeat it.

Courtesy

Courtesy is an integral part of one's education, and should be practiced while one is in the process of getting that education. Students, in general, are fairly courteous, but occasionally they either forget their courtesy or show that it isn't grounded deeply enough to have a permanent effect on their conduct. This lack of courtesy showed itself yesterday morning during the assembly when numerous students walked out in the middle of the program, presumably because they could not hear the speaker. What opinion that speaker will have of the student body of the University of Maine is not very difficult to guess. In the future may we remember that "actions speak louder than words."

Who would be President of the United States after March 4th if the attempted assassination of President-elect Roosevelt had been successful last night?

CORRESPONDENCE

Dear Editor:

I am a new-comer to the University, (but not a freshman). While in most respects I am just crazy about Maine, there is one custom prevalent here which I cannot understand. Where I come from it is the generally accepted practice to

President Emphasizes Financial Difficulties in Address to Alumni

ing which they get, and this in turn depends chiefly upon the training and proficiency of the faculty of instruction and investigation."

"The University of Maine has never been able to reach even the average salary scale of institutions of our class. This has resulted in an excessive turn-over in the professorial staff. This difficulty was being gradually overcome up to the time of the beginning of the depression. I should like to emphasize that whereas many institutions in the country went ahead by leaps and bounds during the decade following the World War, the University of Maine steadily kept on the even tenor of its way. While many institutions have made sweeping reductions in the salaries of their faculty members, an investigation will show that we are still far below the average. The Land-Grant Colleges have the name of paying the poorest salaries of any of the institutions of higher education with the possible exception of some of the small denominational colleges. A recent report from the Office of Education in Washington shows that in general the salaries now being paid at the University of Maine fall just above the lowest quarter point for institutions of this class. In other words, we have not yet approached the average or median for our class."

"The faculty is the heart of an institution. A good teacher with poor equipment can do a much better piece of work than a poor teacher with the very best of equipment."

"It has been my aim to develop a better faculty and I feel that an investigation will show that year by year definite results have been accomplished. During my administration I have been faced with the duty of filling five major offices. In each case much care and effort were given in an attempt to find the best man possible. Certain limitations, financial and otherwise, were factors which had to be taken into consideration. In each case I feel that the results have justified the selection."

"The State has dealt generously with us in the past and we feel that even during these difficult times enough support will be given us so that we can carry on. The Legislature of 1929 passed a Mill Tax Resolve which gave the institution an amount equivalent to one mill of the valuation of the State. For the current year this amounted to $757,000. Included in this amount was not only the appropriation usually made for current expenses to meet the before mentioned Federal aid. We had also to absorb the expenses of the department of Forestry which had previously been met by the State Department. We were also warned to develop a building program and to save funds from year to year to carry it out. We were also told not to come back to the Legislature with any requests except in case of extreme emergencies. We have religiously kept faith with the State in all of these provisions. We feel that we have carefully conserved our resources and that an investigation would show that our money has been wisely spent."

"We realize that the financial crisis has imposed a duty upon the institution which we cannot and would not shirk. Just what our part is may be variously estimated. It is realized that the amount necessary to finance the institution is one of the large appropriations of the State and it is very natural to look to these appropriations for large reductions when attempting to find funds. It is hoped, however, that careful consideration will be given by those in our legislative halls to the importance of education and that before these opportunities are taken away from our young people at least equal sacrifices shall be made along other activities."

"If the budget appropriation is accepted we shall be operating next year on at least $251,000 less than this year. This means a reduction of almost 28% in State funds. No one knows at the present time what reduction will be made in Federal funds. It would appear, therefore, that in order for us to adjust ourselves to this reduction in income we shall not only have to declare a moratorium upon all building construction which in itself will seriously retard the development of the institution but also make changes in the institution which will seriously affect its work and its service to the State and to the people of the State."

"A bill is now before the Legislature to reduce the amount of income from the State from one mill to two-thirds of a mill. If this should prevail and we should still have to meet the Federal offsets from this amount, not only would our building program be stopped for years to come but drastic changes would have to be made in the institution."

"The University of Maine belongs to the people of the State. It is theirs to do with as they think best but wise judgment and careful counsel should be exercised to prevent lasting damage being done to an institution the heart and soul of which is made up of the living and growing youth of the present generation. Improvements to inanimate objects may be curtailed, yes, may even be held in abeyance for a period of time, after which a speeding up process used over a comparatively short space of time will allow the previously curtailed program to be reached; whereas in education this is not true and irrevocable harm, extending over many years, may be the result of hastily conceived, unwise curtailment."

A Washington's Birthday program will be presented in assembly Monday at 9:45 A.M. The program will consist of features suitable to the occasion.

show a lecturer the courtesy of remaining perfectly quiet even though one could not hear a word. When everyone does this as a matter of course, it is very seldom that anyone cannot hear who wants to.

At the lecture Wednesday morning I managed to hear most of the lecture although I was almost in the very rear of the chapel, and although everyone around me was busily engaged in conversation. But it was a strain, and many times I almost gave up the attempt.

Why can we not establish a habit of showing common courtesy both to the lecturer and to our fellow students?

Sincerely yours,

Having thus disposed of the matter the chair settled back without any appearance of being out of breath. It was none other than the President Pro. Tem. of the Senate, lame-duck George H. Moses of New Hampshire.

You will remember that he was defeated by Al Smith who, in his speech in Boston, referred to Moses as 'Hawshaw, the detective.' His loss is a great one to the Republican Party in the Senate for he is not only the President Pro. Tem., but also is Chairman of the powerful Rules Committee and stands high in several other major committees, including Post Offices, Foreign Relations, Commerce, and Printing.

Your correspondent received a letter shortly after the election that might prove interesting from the point of view of illustrating his sense of humor.

"Thanks very much for your letter of recent date. I am sure that my real friends went to the bat vigorously; but evidently the combination was too wonderful for us."

Naturally, I have some chagrin about the result; but I find myself in awfully good company in defeat."

In looking over the list of committees of the Senate for this session it is interesting to note the effect that the lame-ducks will have on changing the general complexion of things. Maine's importance will be considerably enhanced. Senator Hale will be the ranking Republican on three of the most powerful of the committees, Rules, Naval Affairs, and Appropriations, of which he is now Chairman. Although the Democrats will hold

A VALENTINE a day, throws your money away.... But according to the large mail bags that were seen being toted around our fair campus on Tuesday "Somebody Loves You".... It seems that Joe Senuta received a Walymyrm that hinted that college boys have ivory heads. The very idea. Girls, will we stand for having our big he man referred to in such manner?.... At least there are two people on the campus who are, or would like to be, Westerners, for reports running around loose after the S. A. E. sleigh ride (or was it high ride?) tell us that Phil Odiorne and Cynthia Wasgatt did some fancy equestrianizing on that ride.... Well, well, well, cute little Lolly Graves, one of Sam Reese's wrestlers, is Bea Cummings quite a man.... If anyone tells you that Romansky can't throw confetti and even wrestle with it, tell that person that he is slightly in error, for Mun is a confetti artist par excellence.... Old Lady Rumor tells us that Donna turned in Skip Goodwin's pin in favor of Johnny Qsgood, employed in the dish-washing department of the Commons Dining Hall.... Observed hovering in the shadows of Alumni Hall in the dampness of Tuesday night: Jack Wight and Midge Strout.... According to the scenes taking place in front of the Book Store during chapel period yesterday morning, S. A. E. has let up a little on its rushing of freshmen and is doing some heavy rushing for Alice Sisco.... And referring you to line 379620 above concerning Valentines, Frank Pasquale is reported to have received one from a Boston beauty named Ida. We're not sure but we have a sneaking suspicion that this Ida is the same girl we wrote about in this space last week, when it was reported that Bob (Spieffer) Berg had lost his heart.... Roger Burk has announced that he wants to make the Snoopus because it will make him popular. Thanks, Roger, but we're afraid you've got the wrong idea. However, it is pretty fine to find someone occasionally who really admits that he enjoys getting his name in this column.... What's this about a mysterious phone call Peg Davis received a couple of weeks ago?.... Little Dave Brown, coming journalist, has taken up where Bill Bratton left off and is harboring ambitions of some day having a moustache. Bill's has since gone down the sink.... We nominate for our roll of honor this week, BRUCE ASHWORTH who, in the Dartmouth Winter Carnival while doing the ski jump lost his balance and went flying into a crowd of 4,000 knocking about a dozen down, but fortunately, not hurting them. He makes the roll of honor this week, because after that spill, recorded as the worst of the Carnival, he went back and jumped again.... And we nominate for oblivion this week drivers who go through puddles when there are pedestrians alongside, who suddenly find it necessary to shovel a few tons of mud out of their eyes, and wring three quarters of the Pacific out of their clothes.... At last a long-awaited event has happened, and Lee Ingerson is wearing Don Poole's Sigma Chi pin. Well, it's about time, isn't it?

Wooden soldiers in the war against decay

To conquer the forces of decay which attack telephone poles, scientists of Bell Telephone Laboratories carry on a relentless campaign.

They study many kinds of wood, test many preservatives. They isolate wood destroying fungi and insects—study them in the laboratory—search for a practical means of combating their attack. They have set out armies of stub poles in Mississippi, Colorado and New Jersey where altitude, climate and soil vary widely. At regular intervals they inspect these poles to learn which woods and preservatives are best.

Such scientific thoroughness is one reason why Bell System plant becomes more efficient each year. And why telephone service is so dependable.

ROBERTSHAW WINS TITLE IN MAINE AMATEUR BOXING

Scoring two technical knockouts and winning a third bout on points, Gilbert Robertshaw of Union Village, R. I., prominent member of the senior class, and heavyweight champion of the University during his sophomore year, took first honors in the 175-pound class at the annual K. of C. invitation boxing tourney held at Lewiston last Friday night.

Eight men were entered in Robertshaw's division. In his first bout he scored a technical knockout when his opponent's seconds threw in the towel. The second bout proved to be a true slug-fest, and after three hard-fought rounds he was given the decision. In the last match Robertshaw's opponent refused to fight and another technical knockout was awarded the collegiate fighter. By virtue of his victories, Robertshaw was given a large boxing trophy.

ILLUSION:

Right before your very eyes the man of magic draws rabbits, vegetables, flowers, fruits—even babies—all from an empty tub! What an astonishing fellow he is!

EXPLANATION:

The assorted rabbits, babies, carrots, cabbages, ribbons and other magical "props" are not created by magic. The tub has a false bottom that is conveniently displaced, and numberless wonderful things spring to life in the magician's nimble fingers. They do literally "spring" because they are made to compress into the bottom of the tub, taking their natural shape as the magician lifts them out.

CAMELS

*It's FUN TO BE FOOLED
...IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW*

Tricks are legitimate on the stage but not in business. Here's one that has been used in cigarette advertising...the illusion that blending is everything in a cigarette.

EXPLANATION: Blending is important...but it makes a lot of difference what is blended. Inferior tobaccos can be blended to cover up their humble origin. But your taste soon detects the trick.

The proper use of blending is to bring out the full "round" flavor of mild, high-grade tobaccos. It's the costliness of the tobaccos, as well as the blending, that counts.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent by others in the attempt to discover just how Camels are blended. The blend is important.

But all the while Camel spends millions more for choice tobaccos...to insure your enjoyment.

Light up a Camel. Relax, while the delicate blue smoke floats about you. Enjoy to the full the pleasure that comes from costlier tobaccos.

Keep Camels always handy...in the airtight, welded Humidor Pack.

JENKINS TAKING 20 MEN TO U. CLUB MEET AT HUB

Mile Relay Team Looks Good for Place At Boston

For the past two weeks Coach Jenkins' Pale Blue tracksters have been working consistently in preparation for the University Club Indoor Track meet to be held in Boston on Saturday. Time trials have been held frequently during the past few days in order to determine those who will represent the Black Bear in the Hub city. The Pale Blue mentor expects to enter about twenty men in the contest.

Ken Black, present holder of the indoor record in the half-mile run, will compete in his favorite event along with Harry Williamson. Entered in the one-mile run are Don Corbett, cross country runner, and Horace Drummond and Harry Saunders, both members of the 1935 freshman squad. Maine will be represented in the dashes by "Mel" Means, Rod Mullaney and Maurice Goddard, all outstanding men in these events last season. Goddard will also compete in the hurdles.

Don Faver, the "all around" track man, will, in addition to throwing the thirty-five pound hammer, run in the high hurdle event. Alton Alley will be Jenkins' only entrant in the shot put.

Freeman Webb, state champion pole vaulter, will both pole vault and high jump. Phil Havey will aid him in the pole vault, and Chick Shea in the high jump. Those who will compete in the broad jump have not been picked as yet, but outstanding men in that event are Warren Flagg, Phil Havey, Charlie Bunker, and Chick Shea.

Final time trials for the one-mile relay team consisting of four quarter milers had not been held at press time. Candidates for the team, in the order in which they finished in the time trials held on Monday, are "Ellie" Moulton, Bob Pendleton, Bill Cole, Don Corbett, "Prony" Pronovost, Larry O'Connell, and "Mac" MacKintyre.

Frosh Hoopsters Face Tough Aroostook Trip

As far as games are concerned, the 1933 Aroostook schedule of Bill Kenyon's Maine Freshmen is not psychologically adapted to the relative strength of each of the team's five Spudland opponents. Although it would be rather difficult to Pale Blue runner. He has turned in as fast a time for any run from the quarter mile to the one mile as the leading Maine runners are capable of doing in their specialty events. Coach Jenkins had expected a great deal of Marsh in the impending meet and had figured on him to add a few valuable points to the team's total.

It is hoped that Marsh's case will serve as an example in the future for other Pale Blue track men who would like to partake in some other activity while working out for track. Without a doubt, Marsh feels worse about his ill-fortune more than anybody else in the University as he is one of the most conscientious tracksters under Coach Jenkins. Still, one little slip-up and something happens.

explain, Coach Kenyon says that it is usually on the second and third games of the trip, he gets the best performances from his players, but this year, on these two important dates he is stacking up against the weakest of the Potato county's five teams that he will meet on the trip. After a game with Houlton on February 20, the yearlings will play in succession Presque Isle and Caribou, and on February 23 and 24, they will encounter Fort Fairfield, and later Aroostook Central Institute at Mars Hill. The first night of the five-game trip, thinks Kenyon, is one of the hardest for several reasons. The team must accustom itself to the small, irregular-shaped courts of high school gyms, and the game is always the first to be played under extreme partisanship conditions.

Of the ten men the yearling mentor will take on the trip this year, he has two more to choose. Woodbury, Dunlevy, Johnstone, MacAlary, and Doherty will comprise the A combination while Raymond, Blackwell, and Breslaw are positive understudies. Bearer, whom Kenyon has had a watchful eye on lately, and Kenny seem to be the most outstanding candidates for the vacant forward and guard jobs, but any of a number of dark horses may rush through at the last moment to pull a surprise on the leaders.

In spite of the fact that the freshman outfit will be meeting a team one night each week, it seems to be the general impression that it will weather the fight with its undefeated slate still intact. The team suffers more than usual this year from lack of reserve but the brilliancy of a strong forward line is expected to dull the prospects of any but an exceptionally durable opponent.

Because of the Washington's Birthday holiday next Wednesday, the Campus will be issued on Friday of next week instead of Thursday. All copy for that issue must be in the Campus box, Box 49, Alumni Hall, by Tuesday noon of next week.

SPORTS SPIELS

By BOB BERG

Although time and time again Coach Chester Jenkins has advised and urged his Pale Blue tracksters to pay strict attention to their track work and not to indulge in any other sport for the mere sake of having fun, since invariably it seems that athletes sustain some sort of an injury while taking part in another sport, still the track men persist, without reasoning, in entering some other activity while not practicing on the track cinders. Only last Sunday, a perfect example of this was exhibited when Joe Marsh, outstanding Maine miler, received an injured knee while ski jumping and will be without a doubt unavailable for any more running the remainder of the indoor season.

Never having participated in ski jumping before, Joe Marsh decided to try his hand at it as the sport appeared fascinating and quite easy. However, the result was disastrous for the sophomore track man, as after taking off from the jump, he lost his balance in mid-air and landed in a heap at the bottom of the jump and received a severe knee twist. Upon examination by an Orono physician, it was learned that water had formed on Marsh's knee and he would not be able to run for some time.

Marsh's accident has thrown a wrench in Maine's chances in the mile run at the University Club Meet at Boston Saturday. The sophomore trackster had improved this season more than any other has to be a different kind of tobacco from that used in cigarettes...and it has to be made by an entirely different process...

OUT in Kentucky, where they have pretty women, fast horses, and blue grass, there grows a tobacco called White Burley. It doesn't grow anywhere else in the world.

There is a type of this White Burley that is best suited for pipe smoking. It is neither too thick nor too thin. It is not light and chaffy; at the same time, it is not rank or strong. "U. S. Type 31" is the government classification for White Burley.

Since no other pipe tobacco has yet been found which seems to equal White Burley, this is what we use in making Granger Rough Cut.

Next, we use the Wellman Method, a famous 1870 method of making pipe tobacco, to give Granger its fine flavor and fragrance. Then, too, Granger is "Rough Cut"—just like they used to "whittle" their tobacco off a plug with a jack-knife. It smokes cool, lasts longer and never gums a pipe.

And finally, we want to sell Granger for 10 cents. Good tobacco—right process—cut right. So we put Granger in a sensible soft foil pouch instead of an expensive package, knowing that a man can't smoke the package.

Granger has not been on sale very long, but it has grown to be a popular smoke. Folks seem to like it.
