

Bates Snowmen Hand Maine 27-17 Defeat in Winter Sports Meet

Many Fans Follow Events; Maine Team Will Compete at Rumford Monday

With perfect weather and excellent snow conditions, the first winter carnival of the Maine Outing Club, held last Saturday, was a complete success. Starting with the dance Friday evening and ending with the ski jump on Saturday afternoon, the events were run off smoothly and without a single hitch.

The first snow events were held Saturday morning, and started with the 150-yard snowshoe dash. This was easily won by Clayton Hardison of Maine, but Bates captured the other three places. Next came the 7-mile ski race. Wilfred Davis, Maine's best bet in this event, was unfortunate enough to draw position No. 1 in this race. The men started at one minute intervals, and each man's time was taken. Carpenter of Bates, a freshman who ran in his first college race, won first place, while Chick of Bates came in second and Davis third. These three men finished within 48 seconds of each other, something which is very unusual in a long race of this kind.

Between the start and finish of the ski race, the 2 mile snow shoe race was run off. Whitten of Bates, who is the national champion in this event, won quite easily, while Cutting of Maine finished in second place.

The ski jump, held Saturday afternoon at 2:30, was the most spectacular event of the carnival. Wallace Lovell, Bates' star jumper, won first place with two fine jumps of 52 and 55 feet, and Edward Hansen of Maine finished close behind him for second place. Wilfred Davis and Leif Sorensen, who were expected to finish high up in the final rating, failed to prove their worth in this event. Davis was somewhat unsteady on his first jump and lost some points that would otherwise have landed him in first place, and Sorensen fell on his second jump. These two men finished in third and fifth place respectively. Simpson of Maine won fourth place, but as he was ineligible for competition, Sorensen was credited with the fourth count.

After the final jumps, exhibition jumps were in order. Sorensen and Davis of Maine, and Whitten and Lovell of Bates thrilled the large crowd present with spectacular double jumps and Harry Davis of Maine did a jump while blindfolded.

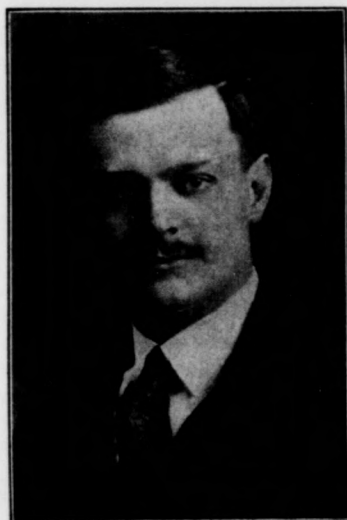

The final score of the meet was: Bates 27, Maine 17. In averaging the total points for the ski race and the jump, Wilfred Davis of Maine was announced the best all-around skier of the meet, with Wallace Lovell of Bates second.

While the meet was won by Bates, the Maine Outing Club does not feel disappointed in its team; on the contrary, it feels that its men are capable of taking the Bates team over in the State Meet on February 22. Davis might have placed better in the ski race had he been luckier in drawing for starting positions; Plummer might have placed in the snowshoe dash had not a piece of out-jutting crust caught in his snowshoe and tripped him as he was on the verge of crossing the finish-line; and both Davis and Sorensen have jumped further than they did Saturday. On the other hand, Hardison did some excellent work by winning the snowshoe dash and placing fourth in the cross country, and Cutting pulled the surprise of the day when he came in close behind Whitten for second place in the 2 mile snowshoe race.

Monday and Tuesday next week, three men of the Outing Club's team will travel to Rumford to compete in the New England Carnival. The following men will represent the club: Clayton Hardison, Wilfred Davis, and Leif Sorensen, who was practically brought up on the Rumford jump.

Summary of Carnival events:
150-yard snowshoe dash:—won by Hardison, Maine; second, tie between Whitten and Jones, Bates; fourth, Hobbs, Bates. Time: 21 1-5 seconds.
2-mile cross country snowshoe race:—won by Whitten, Bates; second, Cutting, Maine; third, Hobbs, Bates; fourth, Hardison, Maine. Time: 12 minutes, 40 4-5 seconds.
7-mile cross country ski race:—won by Carpenter, Bates; second, Chick, Bates; third, Davis, Maine; fourth, Lovell, Bates.
Ski jump:—won by Lovell, Bates; second, Hansen, Maine; third, Davis, Maine; fourth, Sorensen, Maine.

Dr. Little Has New Position

Dr. C. C. LITTLE

Dr. Clarence L. Little, director of the Roscoe B. Jackson Memorial Laboratory for cancer research and also director of the Dorr station of the Mount Desert Island Biological Laboratory will act as director of the Mount Desert Island Biological Laboratory at Salisbury Cove the coming six months, during the absence on the Nile of Dr. Herbert Vincent Neal, formerly of Lewiston, now of Tufts College, and who for many years has been connected with the Mount Desert Island Laboratory, first as a member of the staff and for three years as its director. The Mount Desert Island Biological Laboratory was transferred from Harpswell to this island to be nearer Government facilities as offered them by Acadia National Park and the personal interest and support of Supt. George B. Dorr. Dr. Neal has gone to the Nile in quest of the electric eel and for other scientific work.

Dr. Edith Patch Named Head of Entomology Society of America

Dr. Edith M. Patch, entomologist at the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station has recently been appointed president of the Entomological Society of America. This is a distinct honor for Dr. Patch, who was one of the founders of the society, in that she is the first woman ever to hold this position.

Miss Patch was the organizer of the department of entomology at Maine in 1903, and since then she has been at its head. She is now doing research work on the project of aphididae, ecology and life history studied with special reference to food plants of migratory species. The work is largely concerned with aphids which attack economic plants in some stage of their life history. This project is financed by the Adams Fund.

Besides her research writings, she is an author of nature stories for children. One of her books "Holliday Pond," published in April, 1929 has gained considerable notice. Another, "Holliday Meadow," is now in press.

GIRL HEADS ENGINEERS

Miss Winifred Hackett, twenty-three-year-old student of Birmingham University, Birmingham, England, has just beaten all the men in the electrical engineering department of the university and won a scholarship entitling her to a year's research course. A public tribute to the excellence of her work has been paid by Professor Cramp, chief of the department, who says she is head-and-shoulders above any of the men in originality, persistence and patience. Miss Hackett spent much of her last vacation in a large electric factory. She has received many offers of positions, but declined them all to continue her studies.

Dean Marriner of Colby College Is Chapel Speaker

Tells Maine Students That Business Wants College People

Dean Marriner of Colby College spoke in Chapel Monday morning on "College Men in Business". The popular belief that "business does not want college men" is becoming discredited in spite of Carlyle, a prominent New York banker's statement in the New York Times that "a college education is a four-year's handicap for a man going into business". Carlyle goes on to say that in college a man acquires lazy habits of thinking, that he is not required to work hard, make decisions, or think rapidly and energetically. Quoting Emerson the dean said, "I like people who can do things". So do colleges and business, is Dean Marriner's belief.

The speaker cited numerous surveys that have recently been made by large industrial organizations to prove that college graduates are filling an increasingly important place in the business world of today and that a college training makes for success. Not only engineering positions but business offices such as finance and advertising are being occupied by college men, he said. This has been shown, he brought out, by a survey made by the National Electric Light Corporation. Turning to the transportation field, all of the operating officers on the Pennsylvania Railroad have for the last ten years been college graduates, the dean told his audience. Mr. Marriner said (Continued on Page Six)

Freshman Thinks He Flunks; Passes and Inherits $3,000

Thinking that he was failing in several of his courses Donald H. Wilson of the freshman class packed up his trunk and went to his home in Greenville, Maine. He left word for University authorities to send him his rank sheet. This all happened on Wednesday of the final examination period.

Friday morning Donald received his ranks and found that he had passed in all of his courses, and on the same day he learned that an uncle had died and left him somewhere in the neighborhood of $3000.

He has returned to the University of Maine and is well underway on his studies for the spring semester.

First Compulsory Chapel Exercise Held at Colby; President Johnson Urges "Fair Trial" for Plan

Majority of Students Oppose Rule Which Requires Attendance Three Times Weekly or Suffer Credit Loss

Resenting the brand "bootleg chapel" on Colby College, President Franklin W. Johnson, Wednesday morning at the first compulsory chapel exercises, urged students to give the plan, which was suggested by the Student Council "against the wishes of the majority of students," a fair trial. The address marked the opening of a new semester.

The new rule on chapel attendance prescribes that students must attend the exercises at least three times a week. The exercises, the president said, will be known as the "Men's Assembly." Students, he said, will pay the penalty of cuts by reduction of course credits.

President Johnson praised the college paper's editorial column for expressing objection to the new rule stating "it would be a most unhappy state if no one dared, or if the opportunity were lacking, to voice his opposition to measures taken in matters relating to our common life." His address, in part, follows:

"We are starting out this morning on an experiment in the corporate life of the college. The change from what had become voluntary attendance at Chapel to required attendance three times each week at what we shall call the 'Men's Assembly' may seem to some to be not progress but retrogression. If we are wise, we shall not form a hasty judgment, but shall make our final estimate after a reasonable trial of the new plan.

Maine Book Week Opens Today at M.C.A. Building New Books on Display

Maine Book Week begins today with a display of books and pamphlets in the M.C.A. building. Book Week is sponsored by the Maine Christian Association in order to give students an opportunity to become acquainted with some of the literature that is of special significance to college men and women. The exhibit includes books on religion, education, psychology, sex, relations of men and women, boys' work, vocations, and race relationships.

The books will be on display in the M. C. A. building, Balentine, the library, and the boys' dormitory throughout the week of February 5-12. Students and faculty are invited to inspect the display. Those desiring to purchase copies of books may secure them from the individual in charge of the exhibit or at the M. C. A. office.

College of Technology Inaugurates Strict System of Rules to Prevent Students Taking Excessive Cuts

Dartmouth To Hold Winter Carnival This Week End

Dartmouth College's twentieth annual mid-winter carnival will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week under the auspices of the Dartmouth Outing Club, the largest outdoor college organization in this country. This gala snow and ice festival attracts guests from all over the East and is considered one of the social events of New England's winter calendar.

The winter sports tournament which forms the most important part of the three day program will have competing teams from ten American and Canadian colleges and universities, New Hampshire, Cornell, Syracuse, Williams, Vermont, Worcester Polytechnic, Bowdoin, Massachusetts Agricultural, McGill and Bishop's University. The winter sports program will include ski-jumping, cross-country ski races, snowshoe races, proficiency ski races, speed skating races and fancy skating competition.

Freshman Five Defeats Kents Hill

The Kenyonites forged one more link into their chain of victories when they battled the Kents Hill five to a standstill, and nosed them away from the victory line 30-27 Saturday night at Orono. The winning of this fast mixup still leaves the Frosh with a clean slate. Kents Hill was the winner of last year's prep tournament and looked like a formidable opponent. Several times during the scrap, the visitors opened up with a scoring threat that almost gave them a win. The "dead eye" of Pearlmuter did much to balk their prospects of victory. Hall and the MacMichaels were the high men of the mixup.

The victorious Frosh will tackle Cony High School Saturday night as their next opponents.

Dean Paul Cloke of the College of Technology started a battle against habitual cutters Wednesday when it was announced in all technology classes that any man might be dropped from a course as a result of cutting, and that cuts taken 24 hours before or after the vacation periods might result in a man being suspended from the university.

There has been a great deal of cutting in the university during the past fall semester, and deans say that there still seems to be a misunderstanding of the cut system. The College of Technology had a great many cuts during the fall semester this year.

RULES

Unauthorized absence will be considered cause for action as follows:

1. Dropped from the course.
2. Dropped from the University.

Unauthorized absence 24 hours before or after holidays, vacation, or recess, will be considered cause for immediate action irrespective of previous absences.

Please read the rules regarding absence printed in the booklet for guidance of students, as well as the rules posted on the bulletin boards.

Coeds Take Final Exams in Basketball

In taking their finals, co-eds on the basketball squad were not allowed to overlook this major sport. For the many who came out for practice on the varsity squad Thursday night, it was the first examination. Paper was distributed and pencils borrowed informally. Even more informally, the test was taken. In a reclining position using the gymnasium floor as a universal desk, the co-eds wrote rules and other data on the hoop sport.

The freshmen took their athletic medicine in a similar fashion, if at a different time. They have come out for the sport even better than the varsity during examinations. At the Tuesday night varsity workout two freshmen women were obliged to play in order to make a sufficient number for scrimmaging.

Senior Skull Poverty Ball February 22 to Be Gala Event

Old Clothes Will Be in Order; Open House Parties Discontinued by Fraternities

One of the gala occasions of the year will be the Senior Skull poverty ball to be held Saturday, February 22, at eight o'clock. This promises to be one of the finest and most enjoyable festive occurrences of the season. Most any old thing will do in the way of apparel for a poverty depiction of this nature. The price of admission is one dollar per couple. Students are advised to come prepared for an evening of riotous laughter and good fun. The poorest in the way of clothes will be in order for this affair.

Harold Lloyd's Harmanians will furnish the dance music. The evening will close a holiday that promises to be full of thrills and excitement. During the afternoon the frosh track team will compete against Hebron in a dual meet. In the evening, before the ball, the Kenyonite hoopers meet their fastest competition so far this year when they buck up against the courtmen from the University of New Hampshire. After an afternoon of athletics the Senior Skull dance should

The poverty ball follows the mid-winter intramural ball which will be held the night before. The fraternity houses have decided not to hold parties. All out of town co-eds or visitors to the ball will have the opportunity of attending two dances over the week-end.

The Senior Skulls wish to announce that freshman restrictions will cease Friday night. All freshmen desiring to do so may escort women to the poverty ball.

FINAL EXAMINATIONS

The episode of the stealing of the final military examinations was but one in a long-continued series of like events. Year after year, the practice has continued. Members of the faculty have been asked not to leave copies of final examinations where the light-fingered gentry among the student body can lay hands on them. But to no avail. Time and again a small select circle of a large part of the student body has procured exam sheets and gone to meet the examiner with grins of exultation smothered as well as possible.

It seems a pity that students supposedly recruited from the better class, should so far lower themselves as to be a party to a sneak-thief's guilt.

The "honor system" would prove a total failure at Maine if one is to judge by this latest disgrace. To an impartial observer, theft of this kind is indicative of a not-too-high moral standard.

It is true that instructors are lax in their duty if they leave examinations lying around. But this does not excuse the thieves who take them. If theft of this kind is evidence of a progressive civilization, we would seem to have fallen far short of the civilization of King Alfred's day, when a purse of money could lie on the highway without anyone taking it.

OLIVER HALL AND MAINE

Mr. Oliver Hall, editor of the Bangor Commercial has been a frequent visitor on the Maine campus during recent years. His talks before journalistic groups on the campus have proved to be a great help.

This year Mr. Hall was one of the speakers at the Kappa Gamma Phi banquet held during the interscholastic journalistic conference. He has also taken a great interest in classes in journalism at the university, and threw open his editorial rooms to University of Maine student journalists several times during the past fall semester.

The journalistic organizations join in thanking Mr. Hall for all that he has done to make this work more interesting and practical for Maine students.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF

Do Maine co-eds know what Dutch treat means? Glancing carelessly through the columns of Judge we find a debate which might prove interesting to these young ladies.

"Resolved that all college dates be Dutch treats." By an enormous majority the students of a women's college recently voted for the affirmative on this question. But it was only the decision after a debate, not a new canon of conduct.

A minor scandal of our college generation is the amount of money the men spend on the girls as contrasted to the amount the girls spend in return. There is a certain pretense of reciprocity, but oh, so mild. Prom at men's colleges is organized with Roman prodigality, while the week-end return visit to the women's college is organized with Spartan parsimony. And during the holidays at home it is always the boys who pay and pay and pay. Co-educational institutions, we are told, tend toward the same doctrine of masculine fiscal responsibility.

It's all wrong and everybody knows it. Boys' spending money comes from the same source as girls'—i.e., from Dad. We have never seen any statistics showing that the fathers of male descendants average to be more prosperous than the fathers of females. Or more generous. Indeed, we are baffled by two questions—where do the boys get the extra funds they spend on dates, and what do the girls do with what they save by not paying their share?

The whole human race believes in getting something for nothing, making the other fellow pay if it is gracefully possible. Girls can get away with it, supported as they are by the stale traditions of courtship, the vestiges of an outworn chivalry, the pseudo-aristocratic delusion that no young gallant should ever admit that he is short of cash or credit. Only concerted action will ever bring about the reform of emancipation and self-respect for girls and financial relief for boys. Why don't the student bodies of some of the great women's colleges get together and by formal vote make it fashionable for every girl to insist upon going Dutch treat?

Editor of the Campus:

Dear Sir:

Exams have failed to be a test of how much one has gained from a course. Among the many final exams that were stolen during the past semester was an accounting final. Many on the campus knew just what to study for, and as a result received high ranks on their exams. I, for one, had access to the stolen exam in accounting, but as I had another exam on the same day, I didn't bother with it. If I had studied it I could have hit the final for an A.

Mr. Chadbourne, the instructor in accounting, is one of the fairest teachers in this university. He is interesting and can certainly put his stuff across. I am not blaming him at all. Neither am I peeved over getting an E because grades mean nothing in my young life.

J. C. '30

Editor of the Campus:

Dear Sir:

It is nothing to be sneezed at for it is certainly a clever manipulation when Ole Joe Army managed to sneak from the military department with a rare prize, the final examination. For years the military department has held sublime the honor that was due them but today they must bow low to a little ridicule. The army, once a stronghold and a fortress is but now a manger where little ones are fed on the etiquette of future wars. The future wars have not yet come and neither has the etiquette. To you whom it may concern, watch your finals and guard your stronghold on a military basis. Again not to my surprise you'll see Ole Joe Army coming out amidst the shatter of rifle bullets or the sputter of commandry words with the final safe and sound.

Sincerely,
A. L. H. '30

Editor of the Campus:

Dear Sir:

The deplorable condition of the department of history at the University of Maine is looked upon with regret by a large number of history majors.

When Professor Mitchell and Professor Whitmore left the University of Maine last spring they left the destinies of history majors in the hands of three school boys. Dean Colvin, for whom I have the highest regard, was ill for some time last spring and this fall, and the brunt of the responsibility fell into what I and many of my brother and sister history majors, consider to be entirely incompetent hands.

Now that our friend the southerner has packed up his bags and left the campus and Professor Whitmore has returned there may be some improvement, but it would have been a real help if the rest of the boys had followed in the footsteps of their partner.

For our political theorist we have a man who is teaching a foreign government course solely from the English government and their colonies. I believe him to be sadly lacking as a teacher of foreign governments and I know that other students in his classes would agree with me in this if they dared to express their real opinions.

Another thing that I would like to point out is that there is no personal element in this letter, but when an instructor cannot get enough across to his classes to pass at least half of them it is time for him to quit teaching and look for something that he can do.

I write this letter, not to make trouble or to cause any hard feeling, but simply to state what is my opinion and that of many history majors with whom I have classes. Most of them seem rather afraid to express their opinions. I am taking courses in history from most of these instructors at the present time, and while this letter may not do me any good, I do hope that it will, at least, result in some serious effort on the part of someone to try and make an improvement in what should be one of the important departments of the University of Maine.

Sincerely,
H. E. K. '30

IN OTHER COLLEGES

Rules for the guidance of kissers at Kansas U. were issued recently by the Kansas Board of Health.

Never kiss in crowded places or a poorly ventilated room, the instructions say, but if you must kiss, take a hot mustard foot bath and avoid drafts in case you feel "all in" afterward. Other rules are:

Guard against sudden changes in temperature when kissing. Kissing in a coon-skin coat one minute and a lighter apparel the next is extremely dangerous. Don't kiss any person who has chills and fever.

At a party, where "postoffice" and similar games are played, be sure to gargle frequently.

Where to go when one's college dormitory is padlocked? This is the poignant problem which confronts eighty students at the University of Michigan, thanks to an untimely raid by the local authorities, in the course of which a quantity of spirituous liquors were found hidden in the attic of the dormitory. What would happen if the same occurred here?

POLITICS AT DEPAUW

THE DEPAUW, student publication of Depauw U., Indiana, criticizes the deplorable state of student politics at that University. The editorial reads: "With the landslide into office of twenty student officials without a sign of opposition shows perhaps the most deplorable political condition that has been in existence at Depauw for years."

Freshmen now don't have to worry about being thrown in Mirror Lake, according to the OHIO STATE LANTERN. It's frozen.

At Grinnell College, Iowa, a fifteen foot fence has been erected around the lower landings of the fire escapes in the co-ed dormitories to prevent the co-eds from slipping down the escapes to keep after-hour dates.

News from the U. of Michigan indicates that quite a number of students are working their way thru college by boot-legging.

Well, soaks—folks, the Spring Siesta has started.

INTRAMURAL BALL TO BE HELD FEBRUARY 21

The Intramural Mid-Winter Ball will usher in a week-end of festivities which give promise of being the outstanding functions of the year. Sports, dancing, and with them the holiday spirit of Washington's birthday will prevail throughout the campus and gladden the hearts of snowbound Mainiacs.

Phil Cohen's Maine Troubadours, composed of eleven well known jazz masters, will furnish the music. And above all the Troubadours will bring with them, as an added specialty, Louise Nichols, the little girl who has crooned and "blued" her way into the hearts of thousands of radio listeners of WLWZ at Bangor. Refreshments will be served.

PHI KAPPA HOLDS BOWERY PARTY

Phi Kappa Fraternity held an informal party Friday evening. Thirty-five couples were present and danced to music furnished by the Troubadours. Captain and Mrs. Ware were chaperones. The library of the house was converted into a real old fashioned bar-room, and root-beer was on tap along with free lunches. The bar was presided over by Edward Greely. Vivid posters of boxers and movie stars helped to carry out the effect of a saloon. During intermission pictures were taken of the group.

"VODVIL NITE" TO BE HELD IN MARCH

Vodvil Nite is to be about the middle of March this year. As yet no definite date has been set; final announcement will be made next week. The program already promises to be snappier than last year. Several fraternities and sororities have signified their intention of entering. Notices, with definite information as to length and character of acts, will be sent to the various organizations in a few days. Watch for more news in the Campus next week.

CHI OMEGA HOLDS TEA

Chi Omega entertained at a bridge tea at the country club in honor of their patronesses on Saturday afternoon from three until five-thirty o'clock.

The patronesses present were Mrs. George Simmons, Mrs. Frederick Youngs, Mrs. Paul Cloke, and Mrs. Everett Davee. Many alumni returned also for the occasion. Dorothy Baker and Charlene Ellis poured, and Rebecca Spencer and Mary Bean served.

A.T.O. HOLDS RADIO PARTY

Alpha Tau Omega entertained at a radio party Friday night. Ten couples were present. A buffet supper was served and Mr. and Mrs. Chester S. Ramsey were chaperones.

The Outing Club dance on Friday night, Jan. 31 more than lived up to the requisites for a good time. The idea of everybody wearing sport togs lent a different atmosphere to the evening. The decoration of fir trees was effective and lent a background for the rustic furniture in the chaperones' corner.

Many couples enjoyed themselves immensely and will be looking forward for more such fun by the Outing Club next year. The money from the dance is being used to sponsor the Winter Sports team and to go toward the cabin fund.

Helen Stearns was chairman of the dance, and Isabella Lyons and Harry Davis comprised the committee.

M.C.A. ENTERTAINS DR. HUFF AT TEA

Several faculty members and guests attended a tea given by the M.C.A. in the M.C.A. building on the afternoon of January 29 in honor of the Rev. Dr. L. H. Huff of Montreal, Canada. Subsequent to this affair, Dr. Huff gave a talk on the Relation of Science to Philosophy.

The patronesses of Tri Delta entertained the women of the sorority recently at the home of Mrs. Sweetser in Orono. After a thoroughly enjoyable informal supper, musical entertainment was furnished by Mrs. Brautlecht. Fraternity meeting was then conducted around the cheerful fireplace.

Special guests of the evening were Dr. Patch, Dr. Ava Chadbourne, and Mrs. Kirschen, the latter a Tri Delta from Whitman College at Walla Walla, Washington.

FRESHMAN DISCUSSION TO MEET AT WESLEY HOUSE

The discussion group of freshman women will hold a meeting February 12, at 6:30, in the Wesley House at Orono. A discussion on "Manners" will be held. All freshman girls are cordially invited to attend, and to bring questions which they would like to have answered.

A. L. DEERING TO SPEAK AT HECK CLUB MEETING

Arthur L. Deering, assistant director of agricultural extension work at Maine will speak to the Heck Club, Wednesday, February 12 at 7:30 P.M. in 28 Winslow Hall.

Mr. Deering has been active in the work of the Federal Farm Board in Maine. He has taken for his subject "Developments of the Federal Farm Board."

Everyone is cordially invited. Refreshments will be served.

Dean and Mrs. L. S. Corbett will entertain the members of the Student Senate at a supper in their home on the campus Tuesday evening.

President Harold S. Boardman has been invited to attend, and he will speak at a meeting to be held after the supper.

It is expected that the president will give some information on the possible alterations in the chapel suggested by the Senate.

Miss Mildred French, secretary to Dean Paul Cloke of the College of Technology, is convalescing from a recent appendicitis operation at the Stinson Hospital in Bangor.

Debating

Harry Mayers, John Gehring, and Charles O'Connor have been selected to initiate the debating season with the question—Resolved: That the plan of complete disarmament should be adopted by all nations excepting such forces as are needed for police purposes. These men, upholding the affirmative side, will meet the Massachusetts Agricultural College team and the debaters of New York University about February 14. The reason for the limited number of debates scheduled for the trip of the Maine debaters lies in the varied questions considered by the different schools this year.

As there is no clearing house for debating questions, it was impossible to agree upon the subject for intercollegiate debating. An announcement has been issued to the effect that the Harvard Chinese Council will be present at this university on February 27 to debate on the question of the emergence of women from the home.

Professors Evelyn Buchan, Ava Chadbourne, and Dr. Levinson gave interesting talks to the Women's Debating Council on the question of the success or failure of American College Education. This question is being considered as a possible one to be adopted for the coming season. As yet, plans for debates have not been definitely arranged.

CORRESPONDENCE

Editor of the Campus:
Dear Sir,

The wearers of the green necktie certainly are lacking something of the fight and interest that is a necessary requirement of every successful class. The most emphatic proof is the lack of Frosh material out for track. With the Bridgton meet only ten days away, there are only three or four men out for the running events, and a fair number out for the field events.

Conditions were never as bad as this before, and it sure is time for you freshmen to wake up, or else consider the idea of wearing the green bow until June or at least until you learn to be real Maine Freshmen.

Let's see all of you freshmen who have any ambition at all, go over to the Indoor Field and report to Coach Jenkins as soon as possible. You owe it to your University, to your Class, and to yourself.

E. Gunning '32

Editor of the Campus,

Two weeks ago a group of girls represented Maine at Bates Play Day. When they returned they were bombarded with such questions as "Did you win" or "How did you come out"—expecting the answer, "Oh, we won", or "we lost". I should like to explain to the people on campus that play days have no "win" or "lose". They are something new which have been gaining prestige every year.

The main purpose of these play days is to promote the Spirit of Play, and not that of competition. This is done by dividing the girls at a play day into groups, each group being made up of girls from all the colleges represented. In this way no group has more than one girl from each college. The playing is conducted through these groups and every one tries everything whether they have ever done it before or not.

Play days offer an opportunity to a greater number of girls to participate in organized play. It makes friendships between colleges and girls in college where enmities might have resulted from competition. They develop play for play's sake—

Not merely to win, but to play;
Not to destroy—but to build;
Not smugness, but beauty in growth;
These our aims—for play days.

Sincerely,
M. E. B. '32

Editor of Maine Campus,
Dear Sir:

On Feb. 1 some three or four hundred spectators were present when Maine met Bates in the revival of Winter Sports on this Campus. This was evidence that there is considerable interest among the student body. Among the members of the team there is even more enthusiasm. It is true enough that Maine did not win, but if we examine the score closely we will see that those events in which they lost were so closely contested that only seconds or one or two points made the difference. Then if we stop to think that the team is entirely self-coached and that it pays its own way thru the agency of the Maine Outing Club we begin to realize that they should certainly be congratulated for their showing.

If I were asked to offer a bit of constructive criticism I would say that it seems only reasonable that they be given the greatest cooperation possible by both students and administration. In the 7 mile cross country ski race there were only two Maine men entered against four Bates men. Is it possible that there are no more than two men at Maine capable of making a good showing in cross country? Let's have more men out next year, not only for this event but also for all others. This year, as I understand it, Winter Sports have cost the University absolutely nothing. It would seem fairer if a few hundred or more dollars of the vast sums spent on major sports could be diverted to Winter Sports each year. There are numbers of men who are not qualified for the major sports yet who are experts at the so-called minor sports. Should they be deprived of the chance to use their ability because all funds "simply must" go to support football, track, and baseball?

Very truly yours,
Thomas H. Baldwin, Jr. '32

PHIL BROCKWAY ELECTED
EDITOR OF MAINE-SPRING

At a recent meeting of the Contributors' Club, Philip Brockway was elected Editor-in-Chief of the Maine-Spring to fill the vacancy made by George Ankeles at a recent meeting of the Contributors' Club. Mr. Brockway has been associate editor and one of the chief contributors of the magazine. Mr. Ankeles was forced to resign because of the point system rules.

The generous support and interest that the campus gave to the last issue was very gratifying to those who gave their time and effort that Maine might have as good a literary magazine as any college of her size, the editors said. There will be another issue about February 24. The copy has not been chosen for this edition as yet, and people who have stories, essays, or poetry may drop them in the campus postoffice or send them to Mr. Brockway.

PHI KAPPA SIGMA HAS SKATING RINK

The Phi Kappa Sigs have showed an ingenuity remarked at by many, in their converting of a tennis court into a perfectly good skating rink. Even the snow did not keep these ice fiends from enjoying their daily skate, for the more it snowed the more they cleared, flooded and skated. They went even farther in their craze for this winter sport. When the shades of evening fell upon their miniature rink some enthusiastic soul had not had his fill of skating. Darkness spoiled his chances of enjoyment; but nothing could be left undone in the pursuit of his pleasure, so a lighting arrangement was set up. Both by day and night the clinking of steel in the back of the Phi Kappa Sig house has made envious many a co-ed who would much rather be skating than going to the Strand.

PROF. EVANS ADDRESSES KAPPA PHI KAPPA

Professor W. S. Evans, of the Civil Engineering Department of the College of Technology, addressed the meeting of Kappa Phi Kappa, national educational fraternity, held Tuesday evening at the M.C.A. Building. President Ermo Scott presided. Professor Evans, in his speech on "The Curriculum in the College of Technology in its Relation to Engineering", traced the curriculum of his College in its relation to vocational educational guidance. A discussion followed. Refreshments and smokes were served.

Dean Cloke acted on the committee of Student Affairs whose chief activity was to consider the question of stressing to the students in high school the need for men in the engineering fields due to the great expansion in industry.

There were numerous lectures and sessions on various phases in the electrical industry. Professor Hill was the guest of a group of New York alumni at a luncheon. Dean Cloke was unable to attend because of the committee meetings.

BOWDOIN SPORTS LOSSES ARE $2,000

According to an article appearing in the Bowdoin Orient, the average losses incurred in athletics are around $2,000. That year found expenses the heaviest, $32,594. The report since 1925:

LIBRARY TO BE KEPT OPEN FRIDAY EVENINGS

The library will be open on Friday evenings during the same hours as on other nights according to a recent announcement made by President Harold S. Boardman.

A record will be kept of the number of students who are in the library on Friday evenings to determine whether it will be worth while to continue keeping it open this extra night.

SCREEN

Even if you've never seen the inside of a raccoon coat or don't know which end of a football to kick, you'll give three cheers for "SO THIS IS COLLEGE", which is bound to score a field goal when it shows at the Strand Theatre Friday and Saturday.

The University of Southern California had the honor of being chosen as the background for this 100% talking, singing and dancing picture. The college cheering section and some of the prominent members of the campus take an active part in the picture.

"Dynamite," Cecil B. DeMille's first talking production, will play at the Strand Theatre Monday and Tuesday. This story by Jeanie MacPherson introduces a spectacular coal miner into high society, and accomplishes a dramatic and exotic result not unlike, in effect, those achieved by such earlier productions as "Manslaughter" and "Male and Female".

"Dynamite" is a colorful and fascinating melange of coal mines, wild parties, pretty girls, pretty gowns, country clubs, and state's prisons. It's great entertainment.

If Edith Talbot, '32, and Earle Gowell, '30, will present this page at the box-office they will receive a free pass to any performance.

MAINE BOWLERS TO COMPETE WITH COLBY

A new form of intercollegiate competition in Maine will be inaugurated Saturday when a bowling team consisting of men picked from the interfraternity loop will meet a similar team from Colby. Asa Waggatt has been elected captain of the Maine team. The other men who will roll are Vance Springer, Russell Lathrop, Stewart Donahue, and "Skeet" Sullivan.

A return match will be held at Waterville sometime during the latter part of the month. If present plans are carried through, matches will probably be arranged with Bates and Bowdoin and a state series formed. A cup would be awarded annually to the winner.

The match this week will be held at the Strand Alleys Saturday afternoon at 4:30.

Over the Horizon

HERE they come—the nucleus of an all-electric merchant marine. Yesterday, they were a dream. To-day, they are well over the horizon, linking the ports of the east and west coasts with fortnightly service. The goal of the Panama Pacific Line is to build three more turbine-electric ships, thus enabling weekly New York-Frisco sailings.

Even now, the three liners, California, Virginia, and Pennsylvania, constitute the largest fleet of turbine-electric commercial ships in the world.

Besides propelling these ships, electricity hoists freight, raises anchors, mans pumps, turns rudders, drives winches, and warps the vessels into their berths. It lights lamps, spins fans, operates elevators, cools and cooks food. Its magic touch is apparent on every deck.

The planning, production, and distribution of such equipment has been largely the responsibility of college-trained men who are working with General Electric and who have aided in bringing these ships over the horizon.

Military Department Suspects Sophomores of Stealing Final Exams

Report Today Says That Re-examination Schedule For Wednesday Night Will Not Be Given; Other Exams Are Taken

Suspecting that a final examination in Mt 3 had been stolen the instructor who gave the test searched the person of one of the students during the examination which was given on January 31 according to students who were in the class. Several members of the class said that one man in the group sent a note to a military officer stating, "just to inform you that the exam is out." Men in the class told the Campus that the man who sent the note had the final himself.

A re-examination in the course had been scheduled for Wednesday evening, but after several students complained it was decided to postpone the re-examination pending action of the University authorities, and a notice on the bulletin Wednesday stated that the re-examination had been postponed and Thursday it was reported from the Registrar's office that the exam will not be given.

That Maine students are going in wholesale for the practice of obtaining final examinations from instructors' offices and from other sources was evident during the past final period when a large number of final exams were at large on the campus.

Students were seen passing around military finals, and parts of an accounting final were known to several fraternity houses. Another group of students procured what they thought to be the final examination in elementary psychology, only to learn that instead of the mimeographed sheet which they bought from a student for $2.00 that the final was on a printed form.

At the beginning of the fall semester President H. S. Boardman made a rule to the effect that instructors were not to leave examinations in their offices, but it seems that either the instructors failed to observe the rule or that the foraging students rooted out the examinations from another source. The exams were out at any rate, and they were not only out, but very little attempt was made to conceal them.

Last spring there were several raids staged on instructors' offices, but this season the thing seems to be worked out systematically. There has not been so much heard about damaged doors and locks this year, but there seemed to be more finals than ever floating around.

The attitude taken by students at Maine toward final examinations seems to be that "the other fellow will have the final and therefore, all should try and get it."

CO-EDS HAVE SKATING RINK

The co-eds have a skating rink. At last the kindly University authorities have decided that possibly winter sports are not too strenuous for women. Hence, the crew of the University are busy at work on the Balentine tennis court which will be flooded and scraped.

Co-ed: Will you follow a piece of food thru an earthworm, please?

Doc Young: Well, I prefer not to just now, but eventually.

REHEARSALS UNDERWAY FOR "THE SWAN"

A tentative cast has been chosen for the play to be presented by the Masque in a few months. The Swan is a romantic comedy by Franz Molnar, a famous Hungarian playwright. The cast includes nine men and eight women, the majority of whom are veteran actors and actresses at Maine. The title role is to be played by Sylvia Gould who is promised to fill the part ideally. Mary Soule, Milledge Beckwith, Raymond Bradstreet, and Atwood Levensaler are all to be seen again in particularly adept roles. Rehearsals are already under way and with the new semester, concentrated work will begin.

On February 14 at the Methodist Church in Orono the M.C.A. Valentine party will be held. All freshmen, both men and women, are invited. Plenty of fun and refreshments are promised to all who attend.

Modern spare time diversions: touch football on fraternity lawns; sun-tan baths by the Mt. Vernonites; and a nameless game played by the commuters in the gym each noon hour.

Co-ed: "I don't think I should get zero in this exam."

Prof: "I know it, but it's the lowest mark there is."

NEW COURSE IN JOURNALISM TO BE OFFERED

In the spring of 1930 Frederick G. Fassett Jr. will conduct a new course, English 30 or Advanced News Writing, a two hours' credit course. It will include systematic work by schedule on local and state papers.

Its members will act as reporters, copy-readers and head-line writers and will do assignment work here and away. The main purpose is to enable those persons interested in journalism to make a practical workout of the technical knowledge acquired from occasional class lectures.

The prerequisites will be Eh 23 and 24, News Writing and Reporting and Eh 27, The Mechanics of Editing.

Frontiers of telephony—old and new

Yesterday the natural course of telephone expansion was to penetrate the nation's frontiers, building new lines and adding new subscribers.

Today finds many new "frontiers" for telephone expansion—among them the homes of present subscribers. Upstairs and downstairs, wherever needed, additional telephones are being installed. People are learning that there is added utility in convenient communication.

This new field of activity was conceived by commercial development men of the Bell System. Just another example of forward planning to make telephone service more valuable.

First Compulsory Chapel Held at Colby; President Urges 'Fair Trial' For Plan

"Whatever the final result of this experiment, we should be glad that we have tackled a question of great importance in our common life and have substituted for our 'laissez-faire' method one of deliberation and constructive change. Not all change is progress, but there can be no progress without change. It was to be expected that objection would be felt to the action that has been taken.

"I am glad that this objection has been expressed in the Gladiator Column of the Echo. It would be a most unhappy state if no one dared, or if the opportunity were lacking, to voice his opposition to measures taken in matters relating to our common life. The critics who have expressed themselves in the Echo have aimed their objections not so much at compulsory chapel as at the action of the Student Council in making their recommendation in opposition to the vote of a large majority of the students against compulsory attendance.

"It should be said that the questionnaire vote of the students was probably the result of hurried judgment, while the council has given long and careful consideration to the question. In any event, we should be glad that the council has developed into a body that deals with questions of more vital import than fixing the dates of dances and other such innocuous odds and ends and has had the wisdom and the courage to deal constructively with more fundamental problems.

"I have no doubt that some of you are feeling a bit 'sore' this morning. This is too bad, for the opening of a new semester ought to be a happy and hopeful occasion. Some of you think that your personal rights have been encroached upon.

This may perhaps be open to debate. Personal rights are not to be thought of lightly, but one who thinks overmuch of his rights is likely to become peevish and unhappy. Social progress is being achieved today by thinking of the common good and by the willingness to adjust one's own private and selfish interests to the larger interests of the group.

"I want to clear the atmosphere a bit so that any one who feels that he must be 'sore' may know at what mark to aim the shafts of his displeasure.

"The faculty as a body had nothing to do with this change. The matter has never been discussed and no action has been taken by them. I am not sure that they would have voted their approval. It is plain that the compulsion extends to them, and some of them will have to change their methods materially.

"The Council failed to fix a schedule of cuts and to provide penalties for overcutting by the faculty. This apparently has been overlooked. The students are to pay the penalty of reduction of course credits. An easy analogy suggests a similar reduction of salary for delinquent faculty members.

"Neither is it fair to attach too much responsibility to the Student Council. I cannot escape the unhappy feeling that their action was taken in deference to what they thought was my desire. This they deny and their denial does them credit. Those of you who were present will recall that early in the year I expressed my disappointment over the attendance at Chapel and suggested that the Council take up the question of improving the existing condition. At their invitation I attended one of their meetings and discussed possible means of making our Chapel serve a larger purpose. Since that time the Council has carried on its own deliberations and has taken the action under which we are now operating.

"If I wished to avoid criticism, I could make a fairly good claim that the credit or the blame for the change belongs to the council. Fairness, however, compels me to state that the credit may be given

WOMEN'S RIFLE TEAM WINS

The women's varsity rifle squad was victorious in their match with the University of Wichita which ended in a final score of 929-910 for Maine. This week the team is showing some good competition with the University of Nebraska. From the fifteen chosen women the ten whose scores are the highest succeed in making the team for that game. The following fifteen women have been chosen to shoot in the Nebraska game.

Dorothy Culley, Capt., Erma Barton, Helen Sparrow, Dorothy Somers, Janet Roney, Eunice Copeland, Marjorie Stevens, Marian Avery, Gilberta Watters, Erma Gross, Kay Lang, Vitolia Lobiki, Marvia Pooler, Kay Ranney, and Dorothy Ross.

The schedule is as follows for week ending: Feb. 15, Keene Normal School; Feb. 22, Cornell; March 1, Mass. Aggies; March 8, Wyoming; and March 15, Maryland.

BANANAS DISAGREES WITH THE GROUNDHOG

Bananas, the University of Maine's black bear mascot, who passed up his hibernation in expectation of a mild winter but was double-crossed by Old Man Boreas, remained unperturbed today on the matter of pessimistic ground hog prophecies. He still has his own ideas on weather prognostication. In the season when his brethren usually are oblivious to worldly affairs, Bananas is fat and frisky and giving a lively indication of the likelihood of an early spring.

to them, that the blame belongs to the president.

"I have spoken of this as an experiment, and so it must be regarded. The plan is open to change whenever we become convinced that there is a better way. I do not think I need to ask you to cooperate in every way in an attempt to make these assemblies contribute to the best in the life of the college."

COURSE IN FISH AND GAME CULTURE SUGGESTED FOR MAINE

A course in fish and game culture will be added to the curriculum of the University of Maine if a resolution adopted by the Pine Tree Fish and Game Association at a recent meeting is written into the statute books.

DARTMOUTH WINTER CARNIVAL TO BE HELD THIS WEEK-END

picting the epic of Dartmouth in the past and enacted on a brilliantly lighted snow and ice palace. This will be produced through the cooperation of the Dartmouth Players and the varsity and freshman glee clubs. During the last act the Carnival queen will be chosen from among the guests of the students to represent the spirit of Carnival and to rule as queen of the snows.

At the close of the program the spectators will participate in a moccasin dance on the ice, an innovation not only to Dartmouth Carnivals, but also, as far as is known, to the United States. This unique form of dancing is held at some of the Canadian carnivals. Following the dance there will be general skating and tobogganing by moonlight. The Outing Club's new clubhouse will extend its hospitality to guests. Fraternity dances continuing till dawn will close the first day of Carnival.

Friday and Saturday will offer an extensive program of events including a hockey game, basketball game, swimming meet, ski-joring, the Carnival show (produced by the Dartmouth Players) and the biggest social event, the fancy dress Carnival Ball.

Each year the Outing Club introduces an elaborate setting for this fantastic circus; this year it will represent the colorful circus tent in the gay nineties. On the campus the students have erected a huge ice tower modelled after the modern skyscraper, while the individual fraternities compete for a cup given to the group exhibiting the finest pieces of snow and ice sculpture. Each Carnival has found the competition very keen for this trophy with some weird designs offered.

The work toward this program starts in October and lasts until the final day of Carnival, February 8. The executive body of the Outing Club, known as Cabin and Trail, calls for volunteers from the undergraduate body about 1700 of whom are members of the club. Unlike most college social affairs, the whole program is run on a non-profit basis as all work in the Outing Club is purely of volunteer nature.

BETA AND PHI GAM HEAD INTERFRAT LOOP

With the close of examinations, Intramural basketball is back in the limelight once more. Competition is becoming keener as the climatic period of play-offs draws near. Several clubs have received new players with the opening of the new semester while some valued basketkeeters have taken the homeward path.

The comparative strength of the contest still seems to rest in the Northern League. Alpha Tau Omega and Phi Gamma Delta seem to be the only threats of the Southern aggregation.

Beta Theta Pi still leads the Northern aggregation with Kappa Sigma second and S. A. E. and Phi Eta Kappa looking formidable.

Monday night the melee opened anew when Kappa Sigma walloped Sigma Nu in a battle that ended 35-20 in favor of the former. Lambda Chi Alpha also took a drubbing from Alpha Tau Omega, 47-12.

Phi Mu Delta stopped Sigma Chi Tuesday night in a runaway mixup where the orange and black whipped their opponents 32-12.

The upset of the week came Wednesday when the Dormitory Council with a bevy of new hoopsters, romped away from Delta Tau Delta 17-7, in as fast and skillfully played a game as rooters could wish for.

MAINE ON SHORT END AT K. C. GAMES

Failure to get going cost the mile relay team a race with Northeastern University in the annual K. of C. games Saturday. The time, however, was the second fastest of the entire meet.

Harry Richardson placed third in the Leo Larrance Special two mile run. It was won by the Polish distance star, Pietkiewicz, who was making his debut in this country.

In the mile run Lindsay placed fifth against a strong field.

This is the first indoor meet of the year and the indoor track squad should be in fighting trim for the B.A.A. games only a few weeks away.

Dean Marriner of Colby College Is Chapel Speaker

that it is up to college men to solve the problems which have arisen in the automobile industry from the great increase in consolidation of companies, stating that they already play a very important part in the insurance business. Dean Marriner said, "It matters little what courses you take in college in the pursuit of culture". He defined culture as "what you have left after you have forgotten all you deliberately set out to learn". "And there is always something left", he said. The dean presented two facts which he made emphatic to college students, first, the increasing necessity for an early choice about life vocation and second, the high correlation between marks in college and success in business. He finished his talk by again repeating that "business does want college men".
