

$600 SCHOLARSHIP OFFERED FOR FOUR YEARS STUDY HERE

Award Open to High School Boys in Aroostook for Agriculture Course

The American Agricultural Chemical Company through its president, Mr. Horace Bowker, recently announced the appropriation of funds for the establishment of a $600 scholarship. To cover the tuition fees of an Aroostook boy for a full four-year course at the College of Agriculture of the University of Maine. The scholarship is to be known as the "W. H. Bowker Scholarship" in memory of Mr. Bowker's father, a pioneer in scientific agriculture in New England, a trustee of Massachusetts Agricultural College, and the founder and president of the Bowker Fertilizer Companies and the Bowker Insecticide Company.

This scholarship will be awarded thru the Houlton office of the company; it will take effect in September, 1933; and it is open to all boys who are enrolled in the agricultural courses in the institutes, academies, and high schools of Aroostook, and also in the Patten Academy of Penobscot County.

While the committee of selection, which has not yet been selected, will consist of at least one representative of the College of Agriculture, the majority of members will be chosen from among the agricultural teachers, growers, and others in Aroostook who are well acquainted with the work of high school boys. Two alternates will also be named, so if the winner fails to qualify or to finish the course, a substitute will be available.

Mr. Bowker said in part, when announcing the scholarship—"Farming is becoming more and more of a specialized profession, and adequate training combined with practical farm experience is becoming more and more of an advantage. It is essential for the future of the nation's agriculture that the best qualified men stay on the farm. This scholarship is not for one boy but for Aroostook. Nothing can take the place of a four-year college training and contact with the men who are making agricultural progress."

Mr. Bowker stated that the basis for selection would be the outline suggested by Dean L. S. Merrill. The main points of the selection outline are: 1. Farming Status; 2. Ability to Farm; 3. Ability to Work with Others; 4. Leadership; 5. Scholarship; and 6. Character. Further details of the requirements and a full list of the Committee of Selection will soon be made public, and will be sent to all of the high schools concerned.

On Monday, February 20, each sorority will make out a list and pass to the dean, the bids for the women it wishes to pledge.

On Tuesday, February 21, the women eligible will sign their preferences and on Wednesday, February 22, at a place and time appointed, eligible women will appear to sign their bids and to receive their pledge bows.

The annual meeting of the men's division of the Maine Christian Association was held December 10 and 11 in the Moulton Union of Bowdoin College at Brunswick. The delegation from Maine consisted of Mr. Cecil Fielder, Paul Langlois, Clarence Wadsworth, Henry Conklin, Howard Stevens, and Donald Stewart.

Gus Sonnenberg Has Meal In Kappa Sig Kitchen Here

Gus Sonnenberg, world famous wrestler, was a visitor on the campus last Friday. After his wrestling bout in Bangor on Thursday night he met several college students. Being a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity he was invited to the campus for dinner the next day and he accepted.

He came to the campus in the morning and was conducted about on an inspection tour by Roger Hefler. It being necessary for him to leave Bangor on the one o'clock train he was unable to stay for dinner, so took his meal in the kitchen of the Kappa Sigma house in true hurry-up fashion.

Roy Gavin confessed a few days later that he had a wonderful hold on Gus and would have thrown him except that the room in the Kappa Sig house was not large enough. He admitted that Gus was a pretty good man.

FACULTY MEMBERS ATTEND CONCLAVE

Nine at Modern Language Association Meeting In New Haven

Nine members of the University of Maine faculty attended the annual meeting of the Modern Language Association of America at New Haven, Connecticut, on December 29, 30, 31. A similar meeting is held yearly by scholars and professors of modern languages and literature at a chosen college either in the East or Middle West. Yale University was host to the convention this year.

The program included lectures, reading of papers, a tour of Yale University, and a large banquet. Governor Cross of Connecticut was the principal speaker of the banquet at which William Lyons Phelps was toastmaster.

The University of Maine was represented at the convention by Dr. Drummond and Mrs. Silverman of the German Department, Prof. Peterson of the Spanish Department, and Professors Ashby, Small, Crosby, and Turner, and Miss Foster and Mr. Heilman, all of the English Department. Illness prevented other members of the faculty from attending.

Registrar Is Soon To Resume Duties

For the first time in twenty years Registrar James A. Gannett has been absent from his office on account of illness. Mr. Gannett was taken ill with influenza the day before Christmas and his condition was so severe during the crisis of his illness that he was not allowed any visitors. Yesterday Mr. Gannett had recovered sufficiently to visit his office for a short time and his physician believes that he will be able to resume his full duties shortly.

BRICE ON COMMITTEE OF COACHING ETHICS OF COACHES ASSOC'N

Committee Report Accepted At Twelfth Annual Meeting

The report of the Committee of Coaching Ethics of which Fred M. Brice, coach of Maine varsity football, was a member, was accepted at the twelfth annual meeting of the American Football Coaches Association. Serving on the Ethics Committee together with Coach Brice were: "Hunk" Anderson, head coach at Notre Dame, E. M. Romney of Utah Agricultural College, and Dr. A. H. Sharpe of the University of Washington. The four coaches drew up their reports during the football season and it is to be used as a standard to be followed in future years.

The main topic under discussion at the meeting, according to Coach Brice, was the complication of the game as it is played today. As a result of the complicated game it was expressed that too much of a burden was placed upon the coaches and players.

The code of ethics as submitted by Coach Brice and the remainder of the Committee on Coaching Ethics was as follows:

1. To look upon one's coaching work as an integral part of the school system with a definite contribution to make to the cause of education.
2. To keep always in the foreground the fundamental educational objective of athletic competition and to make other ends subservient to this main purpose.
3. To consider the welfare of the players of paramount importance at all times and not to countenance their exploitation for personal or private advantage.
4. To cultivate the confidence and respect of rival coaches; to look upon them as colleagues and friends and to treat them and talk to them as such.
5. To use one's influence to counteract unfounded rumors of questionable practices or violation of the rules by opponents.
6. To give all reasonable support to the officials in charge of a game.
7. To refuse to teach, or permit, methods of technique, or of play contrary to the letter or spirit of the rules.
8. To encourage the players to respect and accept without wrangling the authority and decisions of the officials and refrain from insulting talk to them or to their opponents.
9. To discourage illegitimate recruiting, betting on the games, and all other practices tending to commercialize the players and deprive them of the character building qualities that should be a vital part of football training.
10. To be gentlemanly and considerate in victory, undismayed and courageous in defeat.

Ellery Walter Speaks At Morning Assembly

"The World on One Leg" was the topic of the talk of Ellery Walter of New York at the assembly this morning. Mr. Walter, as a student at the University of Washington, was a member of the varsity crew. In his junior year an infection which he received while rowing, caused the amputation of his leg. Instead of returning to college he went around the world on an extended trip on which he interviewed many of the world's greatest personages including Mussolini, Pope Pius, Von Hindenburg, and Lloyd George.

His experiences were most interesting and he made the most of his opportunities. His lecture this morning dealt with his first trip. He has taken other trips to Europe, however, including an extended trip to Russia where he interviewed Stalin and taught English in a government institution.

Oratorical Contest On World Peace To Be Held

Oratorical competition as represented by a contest sponsored by the National Peace Association will take place in Stevens Hall Tuesday afternoon. The declamations which are limited to fifteen minutes duration are all to be on the subject of World Peace. The winner of this contest will meet the winners of similar contests conducted by the other Maine colleges in a state engagement at the University of Maine.

Prizes of ten and five dollars will be awarded to the first and second winners in the preliminary competition. The hour on Tuesday is 4:15.

SNOWBIRDS SCORE TIE WITH M'GILL U. FOR FOURTH PLACE

New Hampshire Retains Title At Lake Placid Carnival, Dartmouth Second

Coach Ted Curtis' Winter Sports team tied for fourth place with McGill University in the annual Intercollegiate Winter Sports Carnival held recently at Lake Placid, New York, in which thirteen colleges and universities from the United States and Canada competed. The University of New Hampshire retained its former title, winning the contest with twenty points. Dartmouth College was second with fourteen points and Ottawa third with ten.

Horace Drummond, stellar two-miler, placed second to Andberg of New Hampshire in the two-mile snowshoe race to garner the only points made by the Black Bear aggregation. Al Prince, honorary captain of the yearling cross-country squad finished fifth closely followed by Don Corbett in seventh place.

After leading the field for the first eight laps of the two-mile skating race, Harry Hasey, fading in the final sprint was only able to finish fifth. Shea of Dartmouth, star Olympic performer, was the winner of the event.

Manager Don Green placed tenth and Leif Sorenson twentieth in the one-mile downhill ski race in which thirty-one competed. Sorenson also placed tenth and Green seventeenth in the ski jump. Bruce Ashworth, State Champion ski jumper, was unable to compete because of illness.

The fourteen kilometer ski race, in which Green is at his best, and the slalom ski race, in which Sorenson was expected to star, were both called off because of snow conditions.

Winston Robbins, honorary captain of last year's squad, accompanied the team on the trip in the absence of Coach Curtis. The colleges which entered teams in the meet were Bowdoin, Dartmouth, New Hampshire, Maine, McGill, Ottawa, St. Lawrence, St. Michael's, St. Patrick's, Toronto, Trinity, Yale, and Williams.

Ashworth Attends Economic Meeting

Dr. John H. Ashworth, head of the Economics department, has recently returned from a ten day trip through the mid-west where he made extended stops in Cincinnati and St. Louis.

In Cincinnati, his first stop, Dr. Ashworth attended the annual meeting of the American Economic Association of which he is a member. This was a four-day session, and during it many vital economic issues were discussed; among these was a discussion over the advisability of inflating the currency. While a few economists upheld this move, Dr. Ashworth stated that the majority present were opposed to it as they did not consider it to be a sound principle.

While Dr. Ashworth was in St. Louis, a meeting of Maine alumni and their wives was held there for the first time in more than ten years. A great deal of enthusiasm was manifested at this first gathering, and it is now planned to organize an alumni association in St. Louis in order that the Maine grads there may keep in closer touch with one another.

Florence Jensen is ill at her home in Portland.

Coolidge Accepted Bid to Fraternity With Monosyllable when at Amherst

Always a man of few words, Calvin Coolidge, in the fall of 1894 when a delegation of three men came to his rooms at Amherst College and offered him a bid to Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, answered with the monosyllable "yes." James B. Cauthers, New York lawyer, who was head of the chapter when it pledged the man who was to become Chief Executive of the United States, recalled the incident last week. He said, "I recall distinctly I popped the question right off and Cal said just 'Yes.'"

Though Coolidge was a senior at the time when he was pledged he had certain tasks to perform and Mr. Cauthers said of him last week, "I never knew him to fail in any work I assigned to him. I never knew him to fail to do a thing on time when he was an undergraduate. When the boys would get into some sort of wrangle, Cal would get up and straighten the whole thing out in two or three

IS RHODES WINNER

ARTHUR A. BROWN

2 FRESHMEN CO-EDS INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Margaret Sewall, Elisabeth Philbrook in Hospital After Auto Crash

Margaret Sewall of Old Town and Elisabeth Philbrook of Brookline, Mass., prominent members of the freshman class, were severely injured in an automobile accident on the Old Town-Orono road Wednesday evening, Jan. 4, while on their way to basketball practice from their residence in Old Town.

The car in which they were riding crashed into a truck that was parked beside the road. Difficulty was experienced by police in extricating the girls from the wreck. They were taken to the Deering Hospital at Old Town, although Miss Sewall was later removed to the Eastern Maine General Hospital at Bangor. Their present condition is reported as being very satisfactory.

Miss Sewall sustained severe cuts and a fractured thigh. Miss Philbrook was painfully lacerated about the face.

The car which was a Christmas present to Miss Sewall, was demolished to such an extent that it is remarkable that the girls escaped without further injuries.

Miss Sewall is captain of the freshman girls' hockey team and is Women's Sports Editor of the Freshman. Miss Philbrook also played on the hockey team and is a Freshman reporter.

It is expected that the girls' injuries will keep them out of school for about a month.

Rumors of Suspension For Grippe Groundless

Rumors that college classes might be suspended because of the large number of cases of grippe were emphatically denied yesterday by a University authority. "The total number of cases will be high," he said, "but the daily average is about thirty. There has not been one serious case. Most cases lasted but two or three days each," he stated.

An extra nurse has been employed by the Health Service to aid in taking care of those sick. Lambda Chi Alpha employed a special nurse, when their total reached twelve cases at once. Several faculty members have also been absent from classes because of illness.

ARTHUR BROWN '33 WINS RHODES PRIZE FROM NEW ENGLAND

Award Is Two Years Study At Oxford with Third Year if Desired

For the first time in twenty-four years a student of the University of Maine was awarded a Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford University, England, when on December 12 Arthur A. Brown, a senior in the department of mathematics, was announced one of the four winners of this award from the New England district. Incidentally Mr. Brown was the only one of the four winners from New England who is a native New Englander.

The other men to whom these scholarships were awarded as announced by Dean Paul Nixon of Bowdoin, chairman of the district committee are: John W. Bodine, Germantown, Pa., a student at Wesleyan University; Ivan A. Getting of Pittsburgh, Pa., Edison prize scholar at Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and Owen F. Walker of Canton, Ohio, a student at Brown University.

Arthur A. Brown was born in Lewiston on September 2, 1913, and is now a resident of Bangor. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha social fraternity and of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi, honor fraternities. He is president of the Contributors' Club, editor-in-chief of the Maine Review, and was associate editor of the Prism last year. He has been awarded the scholarship given by the class of 1905 and the junior scholarship at large. During his years at Maine he has participated in basketball, track, and wrestling.

Maine's first and only other Rhodes scholar was Ballard Keith of the class of 1908. Mr. Keith, now an attorney in Bangor, was awarded the Rhodes Scholarship in 1908, and took his degree from Oxford in 1911. He then returned to Maine where he took his degree from the Law School in 1912. The law school has since that time been discontinued.

Brown will sail for England some time in September. The Rhodes Scholarship gives him 400 English pounds each year for two years, and the option to study a third year with the same amount if he desires at the end of the two years.

Senate Changes Nominating Rules

Changes in the rules for the naming of delegates to class nominating committees, which were proposed two months ago by a committee of the Student Senate, appointed to investigate the rules in the light of the manner in which they worked during the last election, were adopted by the Student Senate at its meeting held in Rogers Hall Tuesday night.

The new rules concerning freshman delegates to nominating committees are: The delegates for nominating committees from the Freshman class shall be as follows:

For the men:

A. Oak Hall—one from each floor.
B. Hannibal Hamlin Hall—One from each floor in the south section, and one from each floor in the north section; the men to be represented from the floors shall consist of the regular dwellers of the floors, plus the four freshmen from the corresponding floor on their side of the corridor in the middle section.

C. The delegates from the dormitory shall bring a written statement certifying their authority with the signature of the head proctor.

D. One from each fifteen off-campus freshmen may be a delegate. He shall bring a statement certifying his authority with the signatures of the men he represents.

For the women:

A. The Maples—two.
B. Mount Vernon—two.
C. The delegates from The Maples and Mount Vernon shall bring a written statement certifying their authority with the signature of the head proctor of their respective halls.

D. One from each fifteen off-campus freshmen women may be a delegate. She shall bring with her a statement certifying her authority with the signatures of the women she represents.

As the result of requests from students the Department of Spanish will offer a three-hour course for beginners to start the second semester. It will be given the first period, Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

A Word of Caution

The use of fraternity houses as a place of residence during vacations is forbidden by a University ruling. A number of years ago this rule was put into effect to aid the fraternities in the protection of their property. Most houses closed during the vacations, but some did not because a few students would desire to remain in the house. Leaving the houses open was found to be unsatisfactory, but in some cases the fraternity would vote to do so, and it was to help out those who saw the danger of leaving the house open that the rule was passed by the University.

The rule serves a two-fold purpose in that it protects both the property and the reputation of the fraternity. If a house is properly locked the possibilities of robbery are lessened. If no one uses the house the possibility of a fire is reduced. The reputation of the fraternity is guarded when the house is closed during the vacation, since the possibility of parties of a questionable nature is eliminated. There are organs in New England which have the audacity to call themselves newspapers, which would take the slightest rumor and build a very sensational story from it.

Enforcement of this rule seems to be growing lax. No doubt it is difficult for the University to conduct a daily inspection during vacation periods. Since the rule is for the protection of fraternities more than of the University, those organizations ought to be sure that they are protected and the rule obeyed in the future.

Congratulations

The University of Maine received what is probably the greatest honor it has had in the past twenty-four years last month when Arthur Brown was awarded a Rhode Scholarship. His being awarded the scholarship was due principally to two factors, one of them being his own intelligence and hard work, and the other being the educational efforts of the University carried on by the faculty.

Maine deserves a few pats on the back for this honor, since it was in competition with all the other colleges of New England that the award was won. To Arthur Brown the Campus extends congratulations and the hope that he will meet with the same success in all his undertakings at Oxford that he has had at Maine.

Pete Weston '36 Sailed In Grenfell Expedition

By Richard E. Adams

Sailing out of Portland Harbor the last of June on board the schooner George B. Cluett of the Grenfell Expedition, Lowell (Pete) Weston '36 and fifty other college men steered a course for the wild and frozen coast of Labrador to experience circumstances seldom met with in the ordinary life of the college student. Every summer Sir Wilfred Grenfell makes a trip to his missions on the Labrador coast and takes with him a group of young men who do the necessary work to keep these little shore villages supplied with food, fuel, and medical supplies.

The expedition experienced wonderful sailing weather, which soon brought them to Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, their first stop. Here supplies were taken on board for delivery to those poor human beings living in the far North. After several other stops to take on supplies, the schooner proceeded to St. Anthony, Newfoundland, the base station of the Grenfell mission. The boys left the Cluett here and went aboard the mail steamer Kyle, which took them to their station at Cartwright, Labrador, where they spent the entire summer.

While at Cartwright the boys spent day after day in tedious labor in preparation for laying a pipe line. During this work they met with many difficulties such as the black flies, always so prominent in northern climates in the summer. Pete tells of times when it was necessary to wear nets throughout the entire day in order to be protected from these insects. Finally, after many hours of laborious digging, the task was completed. Sir Wilfred was present at the official opening, when the first flow of water burst forth bringing to the inhabitants of Cartwright, for the first time, a constant supply of fresh water. He proclaimed it the greatest engineering feat ever accomplished on the Labrador coast.

After work always came play. However, in Labrador amusement was somewhat limited. In those cool Labrador evenings they would take a small boat, row to a good fishing ground, and during the course of the evening make a catch of as many as fifty beautiful salmon. Pete's prize possession was a fifteen pounder caught on one of these trips. The only other amusement of the boys was to grow beards. It is said that Pete had the longest, toughest, most wiry, blackest beard up there.

LOWELL N. (PETE) WESTON as he appeared after a few weeks without a razor on the Grenfell Expedition last summer

And so this life went on, days sped by, until one evening in late August the group set sail once more, leaving behind them a happy group of native people, expressing in their parting salutes their appreciation for the work done by the Grenfell Mission. Seven days later, on Labor Day evening, the stately schooner sailed by Portland Head Light, which seemed to send out a warm welcome to the hearts of that joyous group of young adventurers.

Co-ed Has Interview With Ringer Of Wingate Bell

By Barbara Edes

What's the most popular thing on campus? It's even more popular than the bookstore or the library. It has even more admirers than the honorary lieutenant. It is more closely watched than "the snoopus." It speaks often and says less than the college professor, yet the very sound of its voice brings happiness to a thousand people.

Why, it is none other than the good old bell in Wingate tower. But do you think this rings all on its own accord? Not by a long shot!

I decided that I had seen it swing back and forth long enough without knowing who was on the other end; so I set out to find the mysterious person. I went to Wingate and started to climb. Higher and higher I soared. Narrower and narrower grew the stairs, faster and faster came my breath. Finally, when I had gone almost as far as I could, some kind soul asked me whom I would like to see.

"Please, sir, I'd like to see the bell ringer," I managed to stammer between breaths.

"You'll find him on first floor," was the answer.

So that was my first lesson about bells. Ringers didn't take refuge in the belfry, as I had always believed.

When I finally reached the ground floor I caught sight of a rope. There I waited, expecting to see an old man with long beard and stooped shoulders. But here I learned my second lesson. All bell ringers aren't old-time village sextons.

I hardly knew what to say, since I had planned to find out how many decades of service he had rendered. This never would have done; so I asked him what he thought of his job.

"Well," he said, "it's good as any job, but I do think they ought to have a different bell. This one sounds like a funeral."

He thinks that there should be an electric clock with bells in each building. What is more there isn't a sign of a clock in Wingate. The bell ringer has to check his watch with the clock in the physics building. Of course, his watch isn't a hundred dollar affair. If the bells happen to be a little bit off, who can you blame?

Track Club Plans Work For Future

At a meeting of the Track Club held recently the purpose of the organization and plans for the ensuing year were outlined. The Track Club was formed some years ago to aid in the promotion of track athletics, and is made up of the faculty manager of athletics, the coach of cross country and track, and one member from each fraternity house. During the past year, however, the organization has not been very active but it is hoped that the new program will revive the old interest.

One of the main purposes of the present club is to aid in the promotion, not only of track athletics, but of all intercollegiate and intramural athletics. More competition in all forms of athletics is strongly urged, and all members were asked to encourage their fraternity men to compete for the various teams.

An addition to the old program is that of aiding in the entertainment of visiting athletic teams. One member of the club will be definitely assigned to meet the visiting teams when they come to the university, to show them about the campus, and to assist them in any way possible. The representatives of the organization at the various fraternity houses at which the teams stay while at the university will aid in the entertainment.

The Track Club also proposes to aid in the conduct of all interscholastic contests held here.

As in former years, a scholarship will be awarded annually to that member of the freshman track team who is in financial need and who shows some promise in track athletics.

Because of the additions to the purposes and program of the club, a change in name has been proposed. An organization similar to the Blue Key Society or the Green Key Society of Dartmouth will probably be formed.

The MAINE SNOOPUS

OH MY! OH MY! The good old business manager of the Campus is paying too much attention to a forester's sweetheart....What has happened to the Herrick-Miliken romance? The lack of pin is quite striking....Quoting from George C. MacKinney's daily column in the Boston Daily Record thusly, "When Swampscott's Fred Burke, now an undergrad at U. of Maine, set forth for 8 weeks in the wilderness at the University's Princeton, Me., forestry camp, he left behind a co-ed whose heart will not cease to pine for him during his entire sojourn among the moose and icicles"....Perhaps it was the good old Christmas spirit that made it happen but six pins changed owners during the vacation, and twelve hearts fluttered as the pins changed....And another heart that did a little somersault during the vacation was that of Howard (Soap) Stevens who met a beautiful young lady in Portland and proceeded to fall quite heavily. To hear Steve tell it we think he has fallen in love with a jewelry store, pearly teeth, ruby lips, eyes that sparkle like diamonds, etc., etc....Now to drop back to a little ancient history which has never been published. Way back in 1932 the organization called Scabbard and Blade conducted the annual military ball. Mrs. O'Snoopus's small child, Snoop, was present at that hog wrassel and presents the following roll of honor of those young ladies who looked most beautiful: first place on the list goes to charming little Dot Blair, the others are: Dot Sawyer, Emily Thompson, Peanut Bunker (maybe we oughta give her first place since she is the new lieutenant colonel)....Other little items picked up at the ball and worthy of note: Mel Means emulating Stan Laurel as he watched the orchestra do what it could for "Chinatown." Don Green's hop, skip, and jump dancing. No wonder he's a good snowshoer. The ice cream was mighty fine, and the orchestra certainly put realism into their playing of "Pink Elephants"....Rumor has it that Don Corbett was quite a success socially on his little trip to Lake Placid over the vacation....Emmy Snookums Beers poured at tea during the holidays....We wonder whether the A. T. O.'s enjoyed their party Saturday, and while we're about it, what sort of a town is Hampden?....And our little news-editor got himself an M. C. A. Membership card and went to the Bangor Y for a swim. Imagine his embarrassment when after doing the length of the pool several times an attendant informed him that it was lady's hour and he must remove himself suddenly....And when the Masque picture was being taken for the Prism the lights went out. All was quiet; all was dark. Then the lights came on again and Kenneth was holding Charlotte on his lap....Pete Talbot and his pal were observed Saturday night sporting canes in true Broadway fashion....What do you think of technocracy?....Some time before the Christmas vacation, according to a story told us by a Brown freshman, three Maine Betas interested in seeing that a friend of theirs, who was a frosh at Brown, pledged at the right house decided to drive down to Providence to give the lad a pep talk over the weekend. So-o-o-o they drove the three or four hundred miles to Providence and when they got there, found that their pal was spending the week-end in Boston. Vuss shew in de immediate vicinity ven de event in question occurred, Sholly? Having already nominated our roll of honor, we now nominate for oblivion the buses from Bangor to Boston for running out of gas....Lest we forget—Dot Findlay's matches dropped out of her bag when she offered to loan a student a pencil while doing her Practice Teaching. Was she flustered? Not at all—"Oh," said Dot, "here are the matches to light the gas stove with." Tsk! Tsk!....And the Phi Gams put their pledges outside to sleep when they heard only five more cases of Flu were needed to close the University....And have you heard Louise Clement's rendition of the Stein Song? It's a sure treat for diversion seekers....But there's no woman like Judd's woman from Old Town who gives him 20¢ for carfare and 80¢ for the movies. Yep, it's the woman who pays....Some tough joint—the Maples—they can just about get by with one matron a month....Who are the harmony boys who yodel in Stevens Hall between classes? Veddy soddy—we don't want any....Groucho Mintz helped the Mt. Vernonites carry their snow-fight to a successful conclusion when after washing one freshette's face with snow he allowed her to chase him across country. That's chivalry!....But here's real dirt—Willie Wood and Betty Crowley accidentally got their laundry cases mixed!

Amherst Professor Refers To Dean Stevens' Work

Professor Williams of Amherst College in his recent publication "Magnetic Phenomena," published by McGraw Hill Book Company in the International Series in Physics makes five references to work done by Dean James S. Stevens on magnetostriction during the period 1898-1900. In this work Dean Stevens applied the interferometer to the measurement of changes of length of the order of magnitude of one wave-length of light. The series of papers by Dean Stevens reports investigations upon the change in length of rods and wire upon magnetization, change in bending upon magnetization, and change in elastic constants upon magnetization. Dean Stevens' work is also referred to in the "International Critical Tables."

Mrs. Asa Adams, roll call chairman of the Orono Branch of the American Red Cross, wishes to express the thanks and appreciation of the chapter to the various campus organizations and fraternities who, through their response and cooperation in the recent roll call, helped the Orono Branch to go "over the top" with such a fine record.

The following organizations contributed to the success of the drive: Alpha Omicron Pi, Beta Theta Pi, Tau Epsilon Phi, Mt. Vernon House, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Eta Nu Pi, Phi Kappa Sigma, Phi Mu, Hannibal Hamlin Hall, Oak Hall, and Balentine Hall.

6 o'clock means nothing to telephone service!

Bell System service must go on all the time. Day and night, Sundays and holidays, it must handle with speed and accuracy not only the usual traffic but also the unexpected rush of calls.

To meet this obligation, Bell System men tackle problems of many kinds. At Bell Telephone Laboratories, scientists develop new kinds of apparatus. At Western Electric, engineers find ways to make telephones, switchboards and cable more and more reliable. In the telephone companies, traffic engineers devise improved operating methods that make service faster, more accurate, more dependable.

Result: at noon or in the dead of night, the public reaches confidently for the telephone, knowing that Bell System service never stops.

FROSH A TEAM STARTS SEASON WITH 36-21 WIN

Defeats Calais Academy As Woodbury and Johnstone Star

The freshman A basketball team opened its season auspiciously with a decisive 36-21 win over Calais Academy at the Armory court Tuesday evening.

The frosh team took the lead at the outset, clearly displaying its superiority, and ended the quarter with a 14-9 lead. At the end of the first period, Coach Kenyon sent in his second team which increased the lead to 20-11 at the half. The regulars did not see action again until the final canto. In all, four teams were used against the visiting quintet.

Harold Woodbury, acting captain of the frosh team, put on a sparkling exhibition of hoop play, scoring 14 points although he was in the game less than two full periods. Johnstone, first string center, likewise flashed for the winners, scoring eleven points. Warson and Traynor played well for Calais Academy.

SPORTS SPIELS

By BOB BERG

Some interesting controversy is going on in the sport columns of the Maine and Bowdoin sections in the Portland Sunday Telegram concerning the so-called cross country team at the Brunswick College. It seems that a story was issued from Bowdoin that the Polar Bear harrier outfit were actually cross country champs of the state although it did not compete in the State Meet in which Maine and Bates participated. The story is based on proxy, since Bowdoin finished ahead of Maine and Bates in the New England cross country run, so that if all three Maine teams had finished in the same positions in a triangular meet as they had in the New England then Bowdoin would have naturally won and are thus the best team in the state.

As it is, your scribe happens to be writing the Maine column and was so offended by the story that in his column the following week he objected to the fact that Bowdoin was the better team. He based his objections on the fact that such a story should not come from Bowdoin about cross country since Bowdoin has not got a cross country team, but a road running team. That is, it seems that the Polar Bear's track coach, Jack Magee, is strenuously opposed to cross country work as he asserts that it is detrimental to his half milers, milers, and two milers. Therefore, he organized a road running team instead, which is not supposed to consider cross country running as that includes such obstacles as steep hills and ploughed ground.

That is all very well and good, but if Magee says he has a road running team, then why did he enter his outfit in the New England which are known all over the country as a cross country race? That

Frosh B Team Drops Opener To Old Town

The freshman B hoop quintet dropped its initial game of the season at the Old Town High court Friday night, 24-16.

The Old Town team took the upper hand at the outset and piled up eight points before the frosh team could get under way. After the first quarter the game was played on even terms. Hampered by the small size of the floor and by poor passing, the freshmen were unable to cut down their opponent's lead.

Raymond, playing forward for the Maine team, brought the spectators to their feet when he sank three long heaves from behind the center stripe. Bearce also played well.

Munroe Romansky attended the national Tau Epsilon Phi convention at Washington, D. C. for four days, during the Christmas recess.

is the chief question which your scribe has asked in two of his columns for the Bowdoin reporter to answer. As yet, no reply has been made although it is hoped that in this week's paper the Bowdoin columnist will try to explain the situation. It certainly is queer for a team utterly opposed to cross country running to take part in a cross country run. Perhaps Bowdoin's brilliant coach has something up his sleeve or does not like the word cross country.

Jenkins Pointing To K. of C. Meet

In preparation for the annual Knights of Columbus meet at Boston the latter part of this month, Coach Jenkins is making an attempt to shape up his one mile relay team.

Elwin Moulton, the leading 220-yard sprinter and member of last year's relay team, reported for track for the first time this season at the call for candidates. He seems a likely prospect for this year's relay outfit. Other outstanding candidates are Ken Black, Russ Shaw, Bill Cole, Harry Williamson, and Roy McGinley.

Two of the outstanding members of last year's relay quarter, Don McKiniry and Bob Pendleton will be a great loss to the team in the K. of C. meet, as both boys are at forestry camp and will not return to college until the second semester. Coach Jenkins will miss both of these consistent quarter-milers. McKiniry, one of the fastest starters in the University, was number one man on the relay outfit last year.

The Intramural Basketball Tournament will swing into action tonight in the indoor gym when Sigma Phi Sigma will meet Sigma Nu, Lambda Chi Alpha will collide with Kappa Sigma, and Phi Gamma Delta will battle it out with the Independents. Contrary to the custom of previous years, there are three leagues formed this year instead of two, due to the large number of teams entered in the tournament.

WRESTLING CANDIDATES PREPARE FOR TOURNEY

With 17 candidates working out daily on the mats at Alumni Gym, Coach Sam Reese is slowly rounding his men into shape with an eye for Intramural wrestling bouts to be held sometime at the last of February.

More than half of the men are Freshmen and Coach Reese is conditioning his men with a series of exercises and is teaching the green men the fundamentals of the contortionistic sport.

Among those trying out are: Chester Batchelder, Ralph Copeland, Preston Whitaker, Lorimer Graves, Giles Byer, John Adams, Philip Snow, Ralph Demont, G. Foule, Richard Captain, Philip Jenkins, Roland Blake, H. Hanson, Donald McNaughton, Raymond B. Larcom, Neal Franklin, and Roland Clifford.

These men are divided into 5 classes in weight. They range from 135 to 175 pounds. Last year's team was divided into 4 classes and the addition of the other class is the work of Prof. Wallace.

Fifteen first place medals and thirty second and third place ribbons were awarded to place winners in the seventh annual Christmas Handicap meet at the Indoor Field on Saturday, Dec. 10. The meet was sponsored by the Maine Track Club, and it marked the close of the fall training period.

The running of Ken Black and Goddard, and the work of Frame and Webb in the field events were the outstanding features of the meet.
