Boris to creep in stacks

New spider patrol replaces Murph

by Raoul Pillmore
Staff bone twister

The UMO police announced yesterday that their patrol dog, Murph was being replaced by a king size tarantula.

The hormone fed insect will begin patrolling the library tonight, snagging any unwelcome visitors or janitors who are in the library after hours.

Scarry Birdsnest, the spiders trainer explained that, although Murph was doing his job, the spider will be able to make rounds in the library much faster that the dog will be able to catch and hold intruders more efficiently than the canine.

Birdsnest and Boris went through a rigorous training period in the Mojave desert last month, after the arachnid was discovered in a bunch of bananas outside York cafeteria at the beginning of the semester.

"we are confident that Boris will be quite a deterrent to anyone who is thinking about spending a night in the stacks," Birdsnest said. "The only thing I'm worried about is if he finds one of the janitors. I had some problems with him in the training period because he kept eating the people he caught. Hopefully that won't happen

Murph, the deposed library guard, is reportedly trying to eek out an existence by selling Milkbones on the streets of downtown Old Town. Murph's owner, Blod Nerdy, said the dog has been depressed since the firing and has taken an intense dislike to anything having to do with spiders. "He used to love Spiderman comics," he said, "but when I came home the other day after the firing, he had wet all over them." It was the full collection too. Now he is off to hustle for a living. After all we've been through, it is really a sad thing. I tried to coax him home but he ran away. "Go get the furry thing to get your slippers fatso," is all he said as he ran off," Nerdy said.

One of the main reasons for changing over to a spider patrol was economical, Birdsnest explained. "He catches most of his own food and never needs to be taken for a walk," he said. Stray dogs will also be taken care of by Boris, according to Birdsnest. "We will be killing two birds with one stone, if you'll excuse the expression. Boris will get a free meal and we won't have to worry about what to do about the animals," he said.

President Haul Sliverman hinted that the spider may well be given a promotion in the next few weeks. "Boris is under consideration for director of public safety," Sliverman said. "Instead of sending repeat offenders to court, we will just send them to Boris for dinner," he said.

Trees to fall, Mall will soon be stoned

by JShawn Bradprick
Staff writer

In a surprise move today, the physical plant has announced a plan to cut down both Elm and the Ash trees on the mall to make way for "numerous rocks" that were planted by some geology students doing a term project.

Physical Plant Director Alanon Lewdis defended the operation as "a sound program in economics." Despite the high investment UMO made in both the Elm and Ash tree programs, Lewdis said in the long run, the rocks would prove more profitable.

"Look," Lewdis said, "I know how much we've spent on the trees, but even if the trees didn't catch any diseases like Dutch Elm Disease, they're going to die sooner or later.

Rocks live forever, and they never get sick."

The whole program started with two Irish geology students who are here on a foreign exchange program, Bobby Brassballs and Rhun Amucking. "Our native country has grown rocks instead of trees for centuries," Brassballs was quoted as saying. In fact we have Rock-a-thons in Ireland where everyone drinks whisky and watches the rocks grow."

Lewdis said that the rocks weighed only one pound when planted but in a hundred years he hopes to have "12-ton boulders" standing on the mall.

Some students were against the substitution of rocks for trees. One group protested the plan by demonstrating on the mall. "We're ought to prove that once again, the administrators have their heads up their asses," one student was reported saying. However, a campus police detachment arrived and quickly beat the students to death, effectively ending any further protests.

"Give us guns and we could have wiped out the scum much faster," said police spokesman Terry Burger, as he polished up his world famous bong collection.

With the death of the students, effective protest is about ended, except for some campus dogs who plan a "piss-on-you" rally Saturday.

However, the administration says it is undaunted by any opposition. As he lovingly stroked a splendid specimen of Schist, Lewdis said, "Hey, everybody should own a pet rock."

Sliverman to be sainted

by Muck Raker
Stuffy writer

The vatican has announced that UMO's president Fred Sliverman will be appointed as a saint Feb. 1, to coincide with Winter Carnival activities.

Pope John Paul II announced in a communique that Sliverman was selected because "he has outstanding qualities, he's an outstanding guy, and he has lasted a semester without being fired by McCarthy."

The Orono administration reacted mixed to the news of the appointment of Sliverman. Dwight Wornout, dean for studious affairs, was ecstatic over the news.

"Gee whiz," Wornout said. "I'm all goose bumps."

Vice-President for petty cash, John Coup D'Etat, said he was disappointed that he had not been considered for sainthood.

"I brushed my teeth every day and take a bath once a month," D'Etat said. "I even go to bed when my mommy tells me to. Honestly!"

Tom Acetic, also of studious affairs, also had some acid remarks for John's pronouncement.

"If I don't get named by next week I will hold comment but a source close to the president who refused to be quoted, was anyways.

"As soon as Fred returns from Haiti he plans on preparing for the ceremonies," the unreliable source said. "We have rented a sedan chair for him and hired four lucky students but contradicted the method of selecting the four students to carry the saint-elect.

"These students were informed by their professors that it was the only way to get off academic probation," he said. "We had 10,000 eligible candidates."

Haiti gets new campus

by Smutten Footenmouth
staff writer

The eight professors visiting Haiti have decided to stay there and establish a new campus of the university, said Cankersore Hattrick Bacardi Thursday.

The new campus will have a program for students wishing to graduate with a degree in human rights. The courses offered next semester will be social injustice and administrative vacations.

According to Bacardi, the eight campus of the Super U - UNH- will house its students at Bangor Community College. The blue buses, which will run from Bangor to UMH every half-hour, will be furnished by Joan Sear of Smold Town.

A spokesman for the faculty group, Ax and Finaces Deen Charlotte Web, said the three days they have been in Haiti, the faculty have become quite adept at administrative vacations. Lice Sciences and Aquaculture Deen Flappin Chickenwing said he has plans to finance faculty trips to the Diminishing Republic, Faminaw, and Archenimia.

"The possibilities for new frontiers are endless," Chickenwing said. "Eventually we hope to establish a campus in every Third World country in the western hemisphere," he said.

Distractor of Intergalactic Agricultural Problems Louis N. Klark said the faculty in Haiti has been following Chickenwing's orders to the letter. "We haven't done a thing since we've been here and we'll be glad to share the experience with the rest of the faculty upon our return," Klark said.

Axing Nice President Funinsun said the Haitian people have been very cooperative in the faculties' efforts to establish a new campus. "The local people have already built several thatched huts to be used as classrooms," Funinsun said. "We have a lean to that can be used for a place to congregate. The faculty at UMH tells me we will call it the Rhetorical Onion," he added.

Chickenwing stated the trip to the upcoming trips to other Third World countries will originate from the faculty denigration funds as well as money saved from paying the current faculty slave wages.

Work-study students fund department 'heads'

by Cray Z. People
Cowdung writer

In an economy measure, The financial office has announced that workstudy students will be charged $1 everytime they fill out their time cards.

"I expect to generate a lot of pocket change," said Batty Bart, director of insurrection at financial collections. Bart said the move resulted from an intense need of various department heads to find spare change for the pay-toilets.

Arsty Gasman of the propaganda department was all for the move, saying "It's about time. The pressure is starting to really get excruciating." Gasman said other than funds for the toilets he was trying to raise money for his golfing greens fees that accumulate during the summer months. "The price of the pay toilets on golf courses are outrageous too. It wouldn't be so bad, but they are so far apart."

Other department and administration heads (no pun intended) lauded the change. KKK Webhead of the College of How to Play Deck (with your girlfriend) said he was against the move but said he realized that it was needed. "My sexy secretaries now can have money to be able to have a safe place to hide when all those perverted students come looking for them."

Vice rat for affairs of students, the Marquis de Sade, said he felt the move was a proper one: "Imagine all the paine the students will have to go through to pry that extra dollar from their wallets. The pain will be unbearable. My only regret is that it will relieve other painful problems."

Individual students weren't very happy about the change. Most felt that such a thing could have been predicted because of the way the university likes to charge fees.

"After all, they did charge us for paper plates in the commons," said Horn. E. Fratboy, a kindergarten student from Outer Mongolia. "I'm paying $500 in extra fees now. I think tuition is just used to pay for food to feed the psych departments mice."

A co-ed, big Buxom, said she was glad the fee is being charged. "Now all those professors will be able to uncross their legs during lectures and move around a bit more."

The football players were particularly unhappy over the move. "Wha's he tink he do, anyway. Now we doan have money for beer and raw meat," said one. Another commented, "Maybe we ain't got couth, but we want our buck back."

Campus editor Steve McGrath reacts as Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt describes the duties of his new job.

Hustler recruits McGrath

by Goforit Atallcosts
B.S. manager

Steve McGrath, the controversial and always kinky Maine Campus newspaper editor, will no longer meet the daily grind. McGrath, after taking interviews with such outstanding pieces of literature as Playboy, Penthouse, OUI, Hustler and Playgirl, received word directly from publisher Larry Flynt that he had a job with Hustler.

Flint was quoted as saying, "Steve has the makeup to be a real contributor to our organization. His views on obscenity, rape, and incest will undoubtedly open up new areas to probe. Steve has the raw talent to find a whole, different dimension to writing about sex."

In talking to McGrath about his new career, he replied, "Playboy has better chicks, but with Hustler, you have a better chance of making it. I don't mind starting on the bottom. I know I'll get to the top someday."

When asked about starting salaries, McGrath was surprised to find out the job came with pay. "Oh, I get paid for this? The benefits were more than enough for me."

Asked if the abundance of healthy women will distract him, McGrath replied, "Got, I hope so, but it could be a very sticky situation."

McGrath said the job would only be for a short time. "I'll begin with April and finish up with June."

The Fuhrer entertains large crowd in 'the pit'

by Joe Magoosheik
Staff writer

He was living in Brazil. He was thought dead by the rest of the world. He had assumed a new identity. He left all this to lecture as a LSD speaker.

Yes, Adolf Hitler is alive and well. His speaking engagement at Memorial Gym last night, was termed successful in attendance terms, as 4,000 people turned out to hear Hitler damn Jews, the French, and Josef Stalin. Hitler received $6,000 for speaking at UMO. Because of his successful speaking engagement at UMO, Hitler has been scheduled to speak at several Klu Klux Klan organizations in Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi.

Peter Slabbe, LSD chairman said,

"Hitler has unique qualifications, it's not every speaker that can boast of taking over countries and terrorizing people."

Former Alabama, George Wallace, has reportedly been actively promoting the speaking engagements for Hitler. Upon hearing that Hitler would be speaking in the south, a South Carolinian minister and member of the moral majority said, "Finally, someone who also agrees with me that God doesn't listen to Jews' prayers."

When president-elect Ronald Reagan heard of Hitler's speaking engagements in the South, he said, "Well, golly gee, I heard he wasn't such a bad guy since he stopped beating horses and shaved off his mustache."

TV's Wild Kingdom due to film UMO 'zoo'

by Ty D. Bowl
Staff writer

UMO will be in the spotlight of national television, according to UMO chairman Peter Blabbe.

"We just received word yesterday that Marlin Perkins and Jim Fowler of Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom want to come to UMO to shoot a segment of the show," Blabbe said.

Blabbe said the two television sportsmen had read reports from the Bored of Cruelities which called the university "a zoo." He said Perkins could think of no better place to shoot footage of animal wildlife than a zoo.

Perkins, contacted in New York, said he and Fowler would land at Bangor International Airport, then take a land rover to the campus to avoid attention.

"While Jim sneaks up behind the students with a net, I'll distract them with this handy bright colored cloth. Then, when we have the animals subdued, we'll jab them with tranquilizers," Perkins said.

He said the tranquilizer would not hurt the students.

"But like these students, who must fend for themselves in the wild, people too, must have that protection. Mutual of Omaha can offer that good, solid protection to real people."

Perkins said he and Fowler would tag several of the students to trace their migration habits. "We are also interested in their eating habits," the naturalist said.

Blabbe said it was a "real honor" to be selected for the show. "They could have done the show on animals at UNH or URI, but I guess they figured we had a higher caliber of animal here at Orono," he said.

Enough said

All right, enough is enough. Sure, we could have sat here a while longer and taken it, just as a sled dog can shoulder one more lash of the whip. But we shouldn't have to. You, the university community, shouldn't have to.

We are not mice, we are not punching bags, we are not Devo. We are people.

There is a time and place for everything. A time when the dirty linen must be brought to light and blown in the breeze. Now is that time.

But we need not name names. That would be petty. You know the offenders as well as we do.

But how did they ever get entrenched, snugly as mice in a den, into our favorable community. Unfortunately, we must look inwardly.

Too long have we lived the good life. But those living the good life soon have to pay the hotel bill. Now the bill has come.

And what can be done? who will wield the rod of punishment against those who have wronged us? That is a good question and one without an immediate answer.

For we all know a stitch in time saves nine and rolling stone gathers no moss, but is there any way to make bitter batter into better butter?

We think not. That is why now is a time of action. The forces must be gathered. The student must speak. For, only then, can the driftwood and the meely meal be weeded out. Now is the time to separate the chaff from the wheat.

And we will lead that cause. We know it is the responsibility of a newspaper to be strong, to lead and to point out corruption. Today, that corruption has been fingered. Now a solution is needed.

We say it is time to start at square one. Beating around the bush gets you nowhere but to the other side of the bush. And after all, what are we searching the bushes for when we know the real crux of the problem.

In our eyes, the solution is clear. So clear, in fact, that it is even unnecessary to go into it. Well, maybe we'll just go into it a little.

Crime and social injustice. Yes, that's enough of a hint to let you onto their game. This is not small potatoes. We're talking the big spuds on this one.

And the deviants themselves know it's only a matter of time. For quite a while, the newspaper has been onto these wrongdoers. Now, with this editorial, the university itself knows about them. In time, we'll even tell the proper authorities.

But for now, let them sweat. The days are numbered, boys. It won't be long now.

Then, this community can return to the peaceful land it once was. The river will still flow peacefully by and term papers will still be turned in late. Yes, we can all breathe a sigh of relief when the bad apple is extracted from the apple barrel.

It will be the city on the shining mountain. Well, maybe not a city, maybe only a town. And just because we're located on an island doesn't mean you still can't call it a mountain.

Since when can't we make a mountain out of an island.

This is still America, isn't it? Yeah, that's what I thought.

Kampus Kolumns

The following is an interview with New Sedition columnists Junk Simms, Mike Lowroller, Thieve McGrath, Tom Kedorkian and Glen Chaste. Each Monday through Friday, these literary midgets offer their respective contributions to this space: "Borecar 4," "The Real-Nice World," "Mental moats," "Dear Cesar-ian," and "Ringneck Review."

The New Sedition is now looking for individuals to replace those of the above who will be lost to graduation, apathy, venereal disease, et cetera. Hence, this interview is presented in the hopes that it will encourage columnist applicants for next semester. I.e., if these guys can do it, anybody can!!!

Jive Turkey: "Why did you guys each agree to write a column every week?"

Junk Simms: "I like to see my name in 18-point type. You don't get near as big a byline cranking out news."

Mike Lowroller: "This fulfills one of my childhood dreams."

Thieve McGrath: "Basically, it was peer pressure. I'm the editor, and I'm supposed to have a column. If I don't, people will think I'm inept as a writer. Now that I do, people see that I'm inept as a writer. It's a no-win situation."

Tom Kedorkian: "There is a need for the type of column I write. Newspapers need to be balanced. News stories are clear and straightforward, whereas my columns are clouded and obscure."

Glen Chaste: "Columns? We were supposed to write columns? I thought this was a funny shaped space for second-rate editorials!"

Jive Turkey: "Where do you guys get your ideas?"

Junk: "Why, they're everywhere! You've got one crawling on your shirt! Holdit... Gotch!... Ahhh. Missed. The little buggers can be elusive sometimes."

Mike: "Mostly, I draw from my Childhood. In fact, I can remember doing the same type of thing when I was a little boy -- speculating about my childhood."

Thieve: "I steal them from other newspapers."

Tom: "Sometimes, I take ideas from Catch-22. Sometimes from the Wizard of Oz. Sometimes I write without any clear idea at all, and other times I have ham with my eggs."

Glen: "I just think, 'alright. It's time for an idea,' and COWABUNGA! I get one!"

Jive Turkey: "What has been the general theme of your columns this semester?"

Tom: "The general theme? I'd have to say yes, I would vote for the candidate of my choice given an opportunity to finish a sentence on the same subject I started on."

Junk: "That's a tough question. My columns aren't always what they theme to be."

Glen: "That conservatism shall rise again! (Shit floats)."

Mike: "That it's possible to have survived a drab childhood and still grow up be prolifically sentimental."

Thieve: "What do you mean by theme?"

Hansen breaks guitar sitting record

Guitarist Randy Hansen has the music world in awe after completing three straight months under the world's largest guitar to set a world's record in the large guitar sitting competition. Previous record holder zclaudé "Flat lap" Fender was there when Hansen broke his two month-three week and six day stint to become the Guinness World Champion guitar sitter.

"I can't believe the guy had enough butt to withstand that guitar," said a crushed Fender. "It's all in the butt you know, that's the first thing to go," said the dethroned champion. An obviously pleased Randy Hansen expressed relief and elation on hearing that he had broken the world's record (as well as his sacrum and coccyx). When asked what was the hardest part about the 20'2" guitar Hansen replied, "Barred chords."

Although just recently recognized by the Guinness Book as a legitimate event guitar sitting actually dates back some 400 years to the ancient Aztecs, the first guitar makers. According to native ritual the event is marked by a special star that appears in the sky every year (known to the natives as Bill Haley's Comet). A large fire is made and all the natives bring out the guitars which they have been working on all year in preparation for the big festival.

In ancient times the guitar sitting went on until everyone dropped and one person was left. The person then became the king for a year (sort of like queen for a day). It was also required that the king become the finest guitarist in the land and to aid the leader the best guitarists in the community got together to tutor the king. This process, known as Springsteening in ancient lingo, however indebted the king to this select group, hence also the founding of the special interest group.

Hansen trained on two smaller guitars in preparation for the three month sit. Brothers Mason Hansen, Anson Hansen and David-Jansen Hansen were there to celebrate with brother Randy and presented him with a gold plated wheelchair inscribed on the back, "Good job Randy. May you soon be up and sitting."

Meanwhile Randy Hansen has no immediate plans for the future. When asked if he would ever compete should his record be broken Hansen said, "I didn't train for over a year so I could quit if I lost the title. It wouldn't be easy but if I busted my ass I'm sure the title would only be a hair's breath away."

Hansen now heads to Butte, Montana for rest and relaxation. While there Hansen will take sitar lessons and see "Gone With The Wind" in its entirety, three times daily just to stay in shape. Selected readings from War and Peace will also be included in the training program as well as all Happy Days 'sit on it' episodes.

Fender claims revenge and said that when uncle Freddie hears of the news he will help the former champion regain his championship form.

Clint Eastwood preparing to slip into his orangutan costume

In one of the most surprising turnabouts in movies history Clint Eastwood revealed today that his pal orangutan Clyde that starred in Every Which Way but Loose and Any Which Way You Can was only Eastwood in disguise. When pressured about ripping off devout Clyde fans Eastwood explained, "What do they expect. They really think that a monkey can do things that I can do?"

Clyde's trainer Biff Bingo, who was as shocked about the revelation as the public said, "Eastwood sure had me fooled. He grunted and groaned exactly like Clyde used to."

In fact that quote sealed Bingo's fate as it revealed that he knew more than was previously thought. After more research was conducted it was found that just before Every Which Way But Loose was due to start filming Clyde had run into contract negotiation difficulties and as a last resort Eastwood volunteered to play both parts with the use of trick photography.

The first film was such a lasting success that producer Emmanuelle Manuel decided to monkey around with the public and see if the Clyde-Eastwood scam would work one more time.

Although the film has been revealed as a fraud the public is going to the theater in record numbers, apparently liking Eastwood better than the real Clyde.

Clyde is now suing Ringling Brothers, Warner Bros., and cough drop magnates the Smith Brothers in a triple damage suit. It is doubtful that Clyde's accusations of Ringling Bros. rejection and selling of him to Warner Bros. and Warner Bros. failure to renew the astronomical contract that led to a cold that Smith Bros. cough drops could not relieve would be successful.

O.K., McDeath is bad; but our review is worse

Last night, the 47th evening of "McDeath" opened. This reporter thought it was about time to review it. And he was sorry he did.

The people playing Mr. and Mrs. McVillian were much too lively when they took their curtain call. I mean really, they're supposed to be dead.

The soldiers had the most interesting lines in the play; they walked around with bloody swords, and said nothing.

The story of McDeath was easy to follow. You see, this guy (Mr. McVillian) decides to bump off his landlord and become top landowner in the country. The fact that the landlord has left all his holdings to his 16 sons has nothing what-so-ever to do with it. McVillian makes the landlord watch three straight hours of "Laverne and Shirley". Naturally, the landlord died soon thereafter.

Then, tasting the joys of killing through cruelty, McVillian decides to kill everyone else. He sets up a deal with three little old ladies.... He's kill the people, and they'd dress them up in lace, and put them in a blood-spattered hole in the floor.

In the meantime, Mrs. McVillian is going crazy because Mr. McVillian is so busy killing people, that he has no time for her. So she decides to bring attention to herself, and win her husband's love by watching four hours of "Happy Days." Unfortunately for her, it only made her fall asleep, which made Mr. McVillian angry. So he killed her, which made her very happy.

The actors playing the major parts were very boring, which made it easier for McVillian to kill them. The set was o.k., but I question the setting of an amusement park for such a dastardly tale. A T.V. studio would have been so much more approp. The costumes, swords and bandaids, were very effective. by I. M. Bored

Batman 1980

BATMAN 1980!

Although it's been years since his series went off TV, we can all see that the caped crusader has kept his graceful form. Batman celebrates a birthday this month, so we thought that we'd include some of the more intellectual Batman jokes that have been passed down through the ages:

Q: What did Batman wear when he went swimming? A: a bathing suit.

Q: Where did Batman plant his flowers? A: In a batanical garden. (O.K., we're really rolling now.)

Q: Why does Batman brush his teeth with Gleem? A: So he doesn't have bat breath.

Q: Why does Batman walk around in his pajamas? A: Because he doesn't have a batrobe. (And Finally...)

Q: What did they say about Batman when he went crazy? A: He has bells in his batfry.

Dear Dr. Cornea,

I have a problem with my contact lenses. They keep falling out at the most embarrassing times and I must stop down and search for them under the bed...I mean in the carpet. Any way, it is annoying to everyone I come in contact with. Is there anything I can do?

Dear Heddy,

This is a common problem among people with red hair, beady eyes, and head lice. Fear not, for the solution is simple. Apply a dab of crazy glue (available at any drugstore, without a prescription) to each lense before putting them on each morning. Note, however, that the contact lenses must be cleaned each evening with denatured alcohol. If your eyes become irritated within a week, see a real doctor.

Dear Dr. Cornea,

Lately I've been bumping into walls, people, and moving cars with alarming frequency. I am unable to see things right in front of my face, much less at a distance. Moreover, from dawn till dusk, I see nothing but blackness. I have come to depend very heavily on my sense of smell and hearing to get around. Also, I have experienced a strange attraction to canes and german shepherds. Shoot straight with me, doc, am I blind?

Dear Ray,

You do indeed describe some of the most common symptoms of "inferensis no-workus"; common blindness. It would be wise of you to visit an optometrist immediately to get an informed opinion.

As far as your attraction to canes and dogs goes, I would recommend a psychologist who specializes in those kind of sexual problems.

Dear Dr. Cornea,

All my life, I have had very deep-set eyes. I would like to become a fashion model and I have the "credentials," all except my sunken eyes, that is. Is there some corrective surgery that could remedy my "tunnel vision?"

I have been able to remedy this problem on numerous occasions, while avoiding costly and complicated surgery. Come into the office for a routing and brief check-up. Two weeks later, upon receipt of your bill, it will be all you can do to keep your peepers in your head!

Dear Dr. Cornea,

Recently, I have had severe headaches throughout the day. Also, my eyes tire easily and irritate me. My face is swollen around my eyes and it itches a great deal. I have huge boils on my neck and shoulders, my teeth are brown, and my hair is falling out. Also, I vomit blood throughout the day. Do I need glasses?

Erection in Student Gov't fails to be a big turn-on

To the Editor:

So o.k., what's all this about a Student Government erection in the spring?

I know there is a new student president every year, but I don't think that his degree of excitement should be splashed all over your newspaper.

I don't care (and don't think I'd be excited by) a graphic indepth study of his particular bulge.

Whenever the new man gets voted in, just let him be.

Why, he should be chosen on the basis of his LEADERSHIP qualities, not his sexual acrobatics, even if that has been the standard in the past. (No, I won't name names, I have my scruples, y'know. Anyway, if you insist on putting your mind in the gutter, I will have no part of it--I refuse to associate myself with any group that puts so much importance on the whole sexual thing.

Just because governmental power is such a heavy TURN-ON to some people, that's no reason for all the rest of us to see HOW MUCH of a turn-on it is! I say to all other concerned students, let's keep our hands off this matter!

propaganda 9 Bauzer Bowling perverted

To the editor,

I have noticed a disturbing trend on campus lately, one which your columns have not borne out yet. I find this trend offensive, pervasive, and extremely disgusting. I am speaking, of course, about the recent rash of "Bauzer Bowling." These poor little pooches are subjected to extreme cruelty while being rolled into a furry sphere and hurled across hard wooden alleys, purely for the sport of their tormentors. I myself own over 67 bauzers and cannot sleep nights knowing they may one day become some overweight bowling-team housewife's next "strike." I have no desire to allow someone to make my little bauzers their "perfect three-hundred!" I ask, therefore, all owners of bauzers (and dogs in general, for it is only a matter of time before ruthless Curt Gowdy-types turn to dachunds and even great danes for their deranged sporting pleasure!) to put an end to this crime against canines. Stamp out BAUZER Bowling!

Showing off boxer shorts beats freezing buns

To the Editor:

When I first came to this campus, I never thought the college paper would print this kind of letter. I mean, let's face it, any other rag would simply crumble it up and throw it away. So, here goes.

You are the most impotent type of sheet that I've seen. I am referring to the article you printed in last week's Campus which discussed the apparent lack of boxer shorts on campus.

Well, I think that boxer shorts are much better than no shorts at all. I mean if everybody goes around with only "Hawaiian style" underwear, people are gonna freeze their little wazoo's off. So this is what I say, y-fronts are chic. They won't bag, sag or worse yet, wrinkle, under those $9.95 Sears double-knits you're wearing right now. So don't be bashful, show off those briefs, and let folks know the long and short of it!

Well, you finally did it. Now I am so ticked off with the way you've written your stories that I have filed a multi-million dollar libel suit against your newspaper because you actually printed the truth.

Yes the truth. Awful isn't it? There were no misquotes, made up facts and figures and blind accusations. What are we, the American people, going to do if we can't depend on the press to write the untruth?

With not yellow journalism, why should the public buy your paper? That's right they would have no reason to do so. Let's get on the ball and start stretching the truth.

UPI ranks basketball Bears tops in U.S.

Jock Can-only-type
Staff writer

The University of Maine Black Bears were ranked the number one college basketball team in the country following their three consecutive blow-outs in a recent UPI poll.

Us Press Idiots (UPI) here at the Maine Campus sports desk voted the Maine Squad in a unanimous decision over second-rated DePaul and third-ranked Kentucky. Maine received all three first place votes and it marks their first-ever appearance on the Top 20 in the country list.

With impressive wins over East Carolina, Siena, and UNH last week, Maine was an easy choice for the number one bill. Head coach Skip Chappelle said, "I'm not surprised with the decision. I think we deserve being number one in the country, the boys have certainly earned it." Chappelle has been instrumental in the Black Bear winning skein as he came off the bench and sank 19 of 20 from the free throw line, mirroring the form that enabled him to be one of the top free throw shooters in the country in 1960.

DePaul Coach Ray Meyer and Kentucky mentor Joe B. Hall both felt that Maine deserved the top spot in the poll. "They can beat you in so many ways," said Meyer, "they have tremendous size in the front court and are a legitimate pick to go all the way."

Hall said, "They're really the only team on our schedule that is capable of beating us. I wouldn't be a bit surprised to see them in Philadelphia come March."

The Black Bears feature a controlled offense which boasts Player of the Year candidate Rick Carlisle. Experts believe the choice will be between he and DePaul's Mark Aguirre, depending upon who wins the national championship. If Carlisle wins the award, it will mark the first time in the history of the NCAA that the Player of the Year and the Heisman Award winner went to the same school in the same year. Earlier this fall, UPI voted in another unanimous decision, Lorenzo Bouier as the recipient of the Heisman trophy.

The Black Bears (3-1) play Connecticut before playing in two yuletide tourneys. They are expected to defend their number one ranking through those games setting up what could be a preview of the national championship when they face the Kentucky Wildcats in Kentucky on Dec. 30th.

Pucksters to tackle Islanders

by Tank McNerph
Stiff Writer

The Maine Black Bear hockey team will be taking on the Stanley Cup Champion New York Islanders next week. Maine received the invitation to play the Islanders when Hal Barbour, coach of the Islanders, saw Maine play Boston College.

"This is one of the finest teams in the country and they deserve a shot at us," said Barbour.

Mack Semaphere was proud to accept the invitation given out by Barbour saying, "we've been very fortunate thus far against some tough squads, but this will probably be the toughest game we'll play all year."

The members of the Bear squad were also excited about the invitation. Phil Semenick, team captain, said "If we can play good team hockey and stay tough in the corners with the larger Islanders, we'll make a game of it. We have the chance to show the pro scouts what to look forward to in the coming years. If we can play well maybe then we'll get the ranking we deserve."

John Fartorella, the scrapper for the Bears, said he was "looking forward to taking on Tike Bossie and some of the other so called 'tough' guys on the Islanders."

All in all, the game should be very interesting. The game is scheduled for Dec. 20 at 8:00, down at the Nassau Coliseum in Long Island. Tickets for the bus and game will be available on Monday. We recommend no one drive down in their car or they may be walking back. No-sports passes should be turned in for tickets so the passes can be resold by the athletic department.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Sad indeed was the sight that confronted reporters Thursday morning on the White House lawn. Maniacal laughter was heard coming from within as dozens of crippled, maimed, and dead ducks were hurled from the window of the oval office. Sources say Carter smashed his desk, and used the wood to nail over his office door, barricading himself inside. Mrs. Carter held reporters at arm's length as she told them: "Everythings's under control. It's just that Jimmy's going through a very trying time."

WASHINGTON, D.C.—In a brief interview, Secretary of State-to-be Alexander Hague said "he's just thrilled about the news." Sources say he later placed a collect call to San Clemente, and was overheard as saying "it could be just like old times."

MOSCOW—In what is termed an "emergency summit," lame-duck President Carter flew to Moscow yesterday to discuss the turmoil in Poland with Soviet leader Brezhnev. Upon arrival, Carter ran to Brezhnev, embraced him and proceeded to smother him with kisses. "Oh Leonid, Carter was quoted as saying, 'it's been so long!'" Then, with a stern look at the Soviet leader, he added "but Jethuth, big guy, you boyth should thtop it before thomebody geth hurt."

Carter later said his actions "promoted good feeling."

WASHINGTON, D.C.—President-reject Ronnie Ragano has announced his plan to eliminate all vowels from the printed and spoken word in America as soon as he gets into office as an economy measure. It seems that Ragano feels this country could save a "lot of wasted time and energy on unnecessary letters." According to informed sources however, this is just a ploy by Ragano staffers as Ragano is reportedly unable to speak coherently anyway, and this would make public speaking easier for him. When asked to comment on the matter, Ragano said "stff t pr ss, trkys!"

IRAN—Ayatollah Khomeini called a late-night press conference yesterday with western reporters to relay what he termed "some wild and crazy news." Upon arrival, elated reporters were told "the American hostages will definitely be home by Christmas." Obviously in a sadistic mood, he then thumbed his nose, giggled, and stuck out his tongue as he screamed "but I didn't say this Christmas!!"

WARSAW—In the winter meetings, reporters learned Thursday that a secret deal is underway between the U.S.—Polish governments that would send 75,000 Cuban refugees to Warsaw for 40,000 vexed factory workers and a dissonant to be named later. However, the Cubans' agent, president-reject Ronnie Ragano may nix the deal, saying "our hard-working Spies are worth more than your candy-ass Polaks any day!"

New UMO track becomes a reality

by the Crockpot
Writer on the Run

The track team has been bringing in prize rejects for their outdoor track facility. The rejects have been quite impressed with the tartan track surrounding the field and are really having a good time in the newly constructed steeplechase water pit, the only natural one in the nation.

Coach Jim Ballboy is thrilled with the new facility. I talked to Ballboy in the $6,000 press box, which was made possible through contributions from various athletic supporters.

Ballboy said, "the athletic department has done an outstanding job in bringing the university a super track. Just think, it only took them 40 years to accomplish it. I'm pleased they got it done before my retirement."

Coach Ballboy has his own little helper in Bruce Humble. "Humble has put his foot in his mouth many times by trying to rush the track issue before the athletic department god Hal Westerly. Finally, Bruce's effortless pursuit of a track has worked," Ballboy said.

In this season's christening of the new facility, former coach Ed Sterno was presented with a plaque for his coaching excellence. However, Sterno wasn't present because he was busy deciding who would run the mile for his hand picked protege, Ballboy.

Track fans watch the exciting steeplechase race over UMO's new track. Dyer Straits finished first, with Jock Strapp in second. The rest of the entrants had to be fished out of the natural waterpit jump. Also shown is the new $600,000 pressbox. [photo by Will Masonite].

While the bubbly coach Hunter was bouncing around on the track, coach Ballboy and Sterno were conversing in the press box, having a steak and tea, as athletic diety Hal Westerly enters.

On the track the steeplechase had just finished. Dier Straits finishes first followed by Jox Strapp. The rest of the field had to be rescued from the new, natural water jump.

Maine leads 40-37 with two events remaining. I'm with coach Humble who's smiling, because of the new women's varsity track team. "When I planned to have women's track made a varsity sport, I was hoping in track but cheerleading is OK," Humble said. "The only problem is that they are the only ones here. I guess the rejects don't bring people to the meet."

Track has never been a spectator sport at UMO, but then again UMO won't be the only school using the all-weather facility. At a press conference today, Westerly announced the track could be used for a fee. Five dollars for regular season and $1,000 for championship meets. Remember, money is the name of the game, even in 1980.

Around the world in sports action

TULSA, OK—The Professional Golfers Association today received a citation from the Moral Majority for "moral conduct above and beyond the round of duty." A Majority spokesman cited such behavior as taking penalty strokes and yelling "fore" when hitting the ball. The citation was given after evangelist Aural Rabbits reported seeing a "900-foot Jack Nicklaus" in a vision.

NEW YORK CITY—Promoters Rob Rarum and Don Kingpin announced the formation of World Team Boxing today. Eight franchises will be granted, with each franchise to field a boxer in each weight class. Mohammad Ali has been appointed commissioner, mainly to keep him from boxing again. When reached for comment, Ali said "I am the greatest, but World Team Boxing is the latest. I am the greatest pound for pound, but I can't go no 15 rounds."

NEW YORK CITY—The North American Soccer League moved its headquarters to Orono, Maine. The league will now be known as the Greater Bangor-Brewer Y League. Former NASL Commissioner Phil Woosyone announced plans for franchises in Bangor, Brewer, Orono, Old Town, Veazie, and Hermon, with possible teams in Levant and Winterport. Woosyone said, "We started too big and overexpanded. So now we're going 180 degrees."

QUETTA, BALUCHISTAN—Transexual Renee Richards today won the mixed doubles final in the Petrodollars Desert Tennis Classic. Richards downed Andrea Jaeger and Ken Rosewall 2-6, 6-4, 7-6.

NOTTINGHAM, ENGLAND—Tragedy struck at the Robin Hood Invitational Archery Tournament today. Frenchman Jacques LaPointe was killed by an errant arrow shot by American Indian Joe Straight Quiver. Authorities arrested Straight Quiver, calling him "bowed and extremely dangerous." The two had quarrelled earlier, and LaPointe's last words before he died were, "O.k., o.k., I get the point."

BOSTON, MA—The baseball winter meetings were abuzz after Haywire Silliman's latest move to improve the slumping Boston Red Sox. First, Silliman traded all Red Sox players under the age of 30 for the Tabasco, Mexico, Pistaneros of the Mexican League. "These peons will play for free," Silliman said. In a second move, Silliman fired septagenarian Ralph Houk, and hired former Washington Redskins coach George Allen. "The future is now," Silliman innovated.

NEW YORK CITY—In an effort to stem player violence, N.H.L. president Flo Ziegfeld, in conjunction with the Ralph Nadar group, Fans Against Recurring Contact Ever (FARCE), introduce a new safety device. The device consists of an airbag underneath a player's jersey. When contact is made, the airbag inflates, thus saving the player from injury. Alan Eagle-eye, head of the N.H.L. Players' Association, decried the move as "sending hockey back to the Zeppelin age."

Commentary

The maturity of old ballplayers

I'd like to confront my critics with what I believe have been the rational decisions that Stubby and I have made over the past five years to shape the bright future of the Red Sox you used know and still love.

First of all, Silliman and LeCrux Co. didn't really have the money to buy the Red Sox ballclub and the American League owners were justified not to accept our ownership with open arms. But we've been making friends fast since that bitter beginning and the owners have found that dealing with our incompetence has been rather profitable.

The best decision we made was cleaning house, especially the removal of the competent Dick O'Tunnel, who for many years as general manager for the late Tom Squawky had developed a prestigious reputation among the other league owners. He really is the one that built the ball club in 1975 and, except for a few players and a pitching staff, part of the 1981 ballclub you will be paying more dollars to see play next year.

O'Tunnel had to go. Competence and incompetence would have created quite a media event and really tipped our hand to the other American League owners.

Unbuilding a legitimate World

Champion hasn't been easy, but in the interest of professional baseball and making all teams more compatible with one another, we have done a fine job.

Take Milwaukee for instance. We trade them two young fine ballplayers in Ben Oglivie and Cecil Cooper, bench strength and Red Sox farm boys, and more than that, they both loved being a member of the Red Sox ball club.

We trade Bernie Carbo for old time favorite George "The Boomer" Scott; figuring having two old great players alternating at first is better than one young developing Golden Glover.

We got Bernie back, but had to let him go on waivers because of conflicting interests. Bernie wanted to win the world championship and have fun off the field with "Spaceman" Bill Lee. Ballplayers can't do both. Things were really promising with Stan Papi, who could do neither!

The fans have been really berating Stubby and I for not diving head first into the free agent meat market. The truth is we don't eat meat, and don't have the bucks to throw around after the great success we had with Mike Torrez and Bill Campbell, all losses aside, and the workmen's compensation we've had to pay Bill to keep meat on his table. I really enjoyed looking forward to playing the Yankees when Torrez tried to pitch for them, and it's still just as exciting when he pitches for the Red Sox. All the American League owners, our great friends now, are all smiles usually after games and trades.

The free agency market has also put a lot of pressure on us to our players. You still remember Luis Tiant, George Scott, and Bob Watson? And this year at the league meetings after our competent drafting in the free agency draft, we will be looking to plug a few holes in the infield and outfield. We pay our pitchers a good sum, all fifteen of them, and to help increase gate receipts, getting rid of Freddy Lynn and Rick Burleson.

Both are playing out options, Lynn wants to return to California and Burleson's such a gutsy ballplayer, who has nothing but words of confidence for his teammates, that he ought to bring some proven old timers to the club. I'm afraid that what it will take to complement our good old pitching staff that likes to get the eight men behind the mound in the game and serve up souvenirs for the people that pay good bucks to sit in the bleachers.

No-sports pass new admission technique

by Scoop McGarble
Lengyel Gym Bureau Chief

In a press conference today, UMO Athletic Director Hal Westerly and Business Manager Trueheart B. Rascal announced a new method of admission for students in UMO varsity games.

The all-sports pass will be replaced by the no-sports pass. The no-sports pass will cost $68 a semester, and will guarantee admission to six varsity games of the student's choice, excepting hockey games, in which students will be allowed to stand outside Alfond Arena and listen to the reserved ticket holders cheer when Maine scores.

Westerly, in announcing the change, said "No-sports passes will eliminate overcrowding and raise revenue. Students will appreciate the limited games they're able to see more, and will more fervently read sports pages to follow our quality Black Bear news."

In other news, Westerly announced the moving of all women's athletics teams to Lengyel Gym, which was renamed the Lengyel Sports Complex. When asked where the women's swim team would practice and hold its meets, Westerly replied, "I dunno, maybe we could weatherize and flood the archery range." Swim team coach Jeff Wrench was unavailable for comment, as he was playing racquetball with diving coach Rich Millstone. Assistant track coach Bruce Humble said, "Gee, it's nice to have our own facility, but it gets kind of boring running five times around the gym for the 100-yard dash, and the shot is making a lot of holes in the floor."
